Russia Bars U. S. Official From Visit To Moscow

Senators Also Refused Visas for Inspection Trip to American Embassy

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Soviet Union has refused permission for Assistant Secretary of State ohn Peurifey and members of the Senate Appropriations Committee to enter Russia to inspect the American Embassy in Moscow, it was disclosed yesterday.

Announcement that the Russian Foreign Ministry had refused visas, despite two requests from the State Department, was made by Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) of the Senate committee, which plans a European trip in October.

The State Department confirmed the fact visas had been refused for Peurifoy and the committee, but declined to comment last night.

Trip Held 'Unsuitable'

Bridges said the requests for visas specifically said that the group would inspect only "the operations of the embassy." Nevertheless, he quoted the Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs as stating:

"Inasmuch as the USSR is not considered a country that could be made the subject of an investigation on the part of visiting Senators, we do not consider their trip to be suitable."

Purifoy has direct control of visas, passports and the operation of United States embassies throughout the world, Bridges said.

He added that "refusal to admit him to enter Russia to inspect the American Embassy came as a distinct shock to State Department officials and members of Congress."

Soviet Action Denounced

The State Department refused to disclose whether or not it was considering an official protest to Moscow.

Refusal of visas to Peurifoy and the members of the Senate group led to an immediate demand from Bridges that this country "start rigidly scrutinizing all Russian applications" to enter the United States.

Senator C. Weyland Brooks (R., Ill.), another member of the committee, likewise denounced the Soviet action.

Word of the refusal was cabled to the State Department by United States Ambassador Bedell Smith, Bridges said.

Purpose Emphasized

The New Hampshire Senator told correspondents that Ambassador Smith, in his report to the State Department, stated that in a second request to the Russian Foreign Office he emphasized that the committee was concerned only with examination of the operations of the embassy.

"This refusal of Russia to grant permission to an official delegation from the United States Senate to visit even the American Embassy in that country once again shows Russia in her true light," Bridges declared.

"They want no disclosure of true facts to emanate from behind their iron curtain. It might be interesting to watch and see what Americans they do admit in the future. It won't be much of a compliment to these Americans.

"I think this poses the important question of just how much longer we are going to permit indiscriminate admission of Soviet subjects and sympathizers to the United States.

"I believe we must start rigidly scrutinizing all Russian applications from now on."

Brooks Issues Warning

Brooks issued a warning against any financial support to other than democratic governments.

"This action by the Russian government . . . should be proof positive of the fallacy of the stupid policy of using the American taxpayers' money to support bad governments under the guise of being the arsenal of democracy.

"The Soviets were never our allies. They were cobelligerents using our sacrifices, blood and treasure, to expand their tyranny

Germans Man Czech Border For 'Invasion'

'Resistance Army Of Ukrainians' Said To Be 6000 Strong

Hof, Germany, Sept. 30 (AP).—German police officials said tonight they were rushing hundreds of men by trucks and automobiles to the Czechoslovak border after receiving reports that 6000 members of the "Ukrainian Resistance Army" were approaching the American occupation zone.

(A dispatch relayed from Prague said Czechoslovak security police in the border area reported they knew nothing of such a band.)

Road blocks were established on all roads leading to the border.

American Military Government officials were unable to confirm the reports. A German official said he had received word from the frontier of a concentration of guerillas near the Czech border town of Asch, 13 miles southeast of Hof.

Air raid sirens sounded in this Bavarian city for the first time since the war. It was not certain, however, whether they were due to the guerilla reports, or tests that have been taking place recently throughout the United States zone.

Recently 40 Ukrainian guerillas crossed into the American zone at Passau. They said they had fought their way from Poland and were followed by thousands more. They claimed they had met Russian and Polish troops in pitched battles before fleeing. They said they were anti-Communists. They were armed with mortars, light artillery and heavy machine guns, as well as rifles, hand grenades and light machine guns.

An official U. S. Army report on this group said the guerillas had claimed to have clashed with Polish and Soviet troops in southern Poland last June. One group estimated at 10,000 was surrounded and cut off then, and another group of 4000 was headed south through Czechoslovakia to the American zone, the report said.

Army Strictly Neutral In Skirt Length Battle

AFL Group Hits Lewis

Anti-Communist Labor Oath Facing Probable NLRB Test

Metal Trades Union Urges All Officers To Sign Affidavits

San Francisco, Sept. 30 (AP).—Delegates to the AFL Metal Trades Council's national convention here voted unanimously today for a resolution demanding that all AFL officers "yield to the (Taft-Hartley) law's filing requirements."

It was a move directed against John L. Lewis' recent refusal to sign anti-Communist affidavits required by the new labor act. Lewis's action prevented the AFL executive council from ordering signin ogf non-Communist affidavits for lack of unanimous consent.

The resolution will go before a convention of the AFL Building Trades Council tomorrow.

It will be taken to the floor of next week's National AFL convention here.

Yesterday John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades department, denounced Lewis' position and recommended action.

Today's resolution, a result of Frey's statement, was questioned by George Q. Lynch, president of the AFL Patternmakers' League, on the ground it would not compel Lewis to resign.

Answering Lynch's query, Frey stated: "No resolution can compel anyone to do something he refuses to do. But any refusal will put that person in an embarrassing position."

Lynch retored: "I want this on record—I want the record to show thatI know this someone you are talking about, and this person is not easily embarrassed."

He said he thought the AFL convention ought to "solve this problem in a very effective way." Later a reporter asked him what he meant. He said "Take John L. off the AFL executive board."

Without naming Lewis but leaving no doubt as to whom he meant, Frey told metal trades convention delegates yesterday:

"I have no confidence in a man who says 'I'm doing this because of my conscience' and denies seven million laborers the right to protect themselves" by pleas to the National Labor Relations Board.

Lewis refused to go along with the decision of 14 other AFL executive board members to sign anti-Communist affidavits, and thus qualify AFL unions under the Taft-Hartley Act to take their causes before the NLRB.

WARL Employes' Petition Dismissed Under Red Provision

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A case involving employes of radio station WARL in Arlington, Va., appeared last night to be heading for the first test on the controversial non-Communist affidavit provision of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The National Labor Relations Board disclosed that its Baltimore office had dismissed a petition for a collective bargaining election among WARL employes. The grounds were that the AFL Executive Council have not yet executed the affidavits.

Under a ruling issued by NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham, no local union can avail itself of the board's services until all its officers, all those of its parent union, and all those of the top organization, CIO or AFL, have sworn they are not Communists or revolutionary sympathizers.

Top CIO and AFL officers have so far declined to make the affidavits. A fight over this issue has been waged in the AFL Executive Council. Mine Workers' Leader John L. Lewis leads the forces opposing signing the declaration.

WARL technicians are members of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, all of whose officers, local and national, have executed the required oath.

Last July, the local, No. 1215, agreed with the WARL organization, Northern Virginia Broadcasting, Inc., on a consent election to determine the collective bargaining agent. It was to have been held on September 3.

In the interim, however, the Taft-Hartley Act became effective and Denham issued his ruling. The union pressed for the NLRB to

Argentina Admitted to U. N. Council

Russia and U. S. Vote Together With 39 Other Nations On First Ballot

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.,
Post Reporter

Flushing Meadow, Sept. 30.—Juan Peron's Argentina won its greatest international triumph today by being elected, with United States and Soviet support, as a non-permanent member of the Security Council for the next two years.

The election came on the first ballot by an overwhelming vote of 41 out of 57 nations of the Assembly. Canada was also elected to the council on the first ballot, and also by 41 votes.

But for the third of the three expiring memberships, to succeed Poland, a bitter deadlock developed between the Ukraine, backed by Russia, and India, supported by the United States. Seven roll-call ballots failed to give either one the required two-thirds majority, and the decision was postponed until tomorrow.

Czechs Get Only 8 Votes

The United States wanted to put Czechoslovakia, a Soviet satellite, into the third vacant council seat, in accordance with the custom that the Soviet bloc shall have one of the non-permanent places. But the Czechs got only eight votes, and the Ukraine had 33, apparently as a result of a deal between the Latin Americans and Soviet Russia.

The United States stood firm against the Ukraine and switched its votes to India. It was not challenging the Russians' right to have at least one helper and sympathizer on the council.

But through all the nine ballots the United States and many of its friends stood unyielding against electing the Ukraine because it is a constituent republic of the Soviet Union. Secretary Marshall went to the world series game this afternoon, but left instructions to the delegation not to vote for the Ukraine in any circumstances.

After the fourth inconclusive ballot Andrei Vishinsky of Russia, strode to the rostrum to protest that "some delegations either forget or wish consciously to violate the desiderata of the Charter." He referred to Article 23, which provides that elections to United Nations councils should give "equitable geographical distribution" among member states.

He pleaded for the election of "a Slavic country" as a right, but his appeals did little good. The Ukraine's vote climbed slowly to within four votes of the required two-thirds, but at this point the balloting was interrupted and adjourned.

Further Embittered

If it had continued there is little doubt that the Ukraine would have won. Whatever the final result, Russians and their friends are further embittered with Secretary Marshall and the American delegation, whom they accuse of trying to strip them of any support in the council.

In view of American support of Czechoslovakia, the accusation has little basis. Since the Czechs cannot command the needed votes, and since Poland cannot be reelected, Yugoslavia is the only ostensible independent country in the Soviet bloc for whom the Americans can vote—and it will be hard to get

Foreign Relations Committee

Vandenberg's Senate Group Meets Nov. 10 to Study Aid

(Banker proposes United States corporation to administer European aid. Page 3)

By The Associated Press

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said yesterday that in the matter of emergency aid for Europe "the immediate question is one of elemental human survival in a free society."

Vandenberg, the recognized Senate Republican spokesman on foreign policy matters, made that statement in announcing he has called the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to meet November 10 in accordance with a request from President Truman. Vandenberg is chairman of the group.

Noting Mr. Truman's request that key Senate and House committees explore western Europe's "urgent winter needs for food and fuel," Vandenberg added:

"This proposal is submitted separately from plans dealing with long range economic recovery on a self-help basis although they have factors in common."

Mr. Truman asked Monday that four congressional committees study a 580-million-dollar fund for European winter aid before he determines whether to summon a special session of Congress.

Explaining why he had not called his committee to meet until November 10, Vandenberg said the State Department "will not be ready with concrete proposals until November 1."

He added that "other essential reports, including findings of congressional committees visiting Europe and also the report of the Harriman Commission, will not be available until that time."

Secretary of Commerce Harriman is directing a study into the question of how much aid the United States can give Europe without injury to its own economy.

With Vandenberg's call for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to meet, three of the four committees Mr. Truman asked to study European aid have now been summoned to convene in early November. The others are Senate Appropriations and House Foreign Affairs.

The fourth committee is House Appropriations. Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), chairman of it, is now in Europe and is not expected back until late next month.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) discounted the possibility of congressional action to aid Europe before the regular session in January. Taft, traveling eastward on the last leg of his Western tour, said he doubts that a majority of

Major Parties Asked to Back Food Saving

Voluntary Rationing Held Favored by Chairman Luckman

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Charles Luckman, chairman of of the Citizens' Food Committee, President Truman's food conservation group, last night called upon both political parties to unitedly support his food-saving program.

Details of that program are expected to be made public today, after a meeting of the full committee scheduled for the White House at 11 a. m.

Luckman met with President Truman, Cabinet members and top presidential advisers, and then hurriedly glanced through samples of thousands of letters of encouragement and advice that have been sent to him at the presidential mansion.

Insists Upon Backing

"We will not embark upon any food program unless it has the full backing of both parties and all Americans," Luckman said after the conference.

Hearers took his remarks to mean that he had a program for voluntary rationing to submit to his full committee today. It was described as one of "emergency nature" instead of a long-time proposal extending into next year's crop-growing season.

When he left the White House he was headed for a series of conferences with Republican leaders.

President Truman echoed Luckman's call for united support for the conservation campaign late in the day when he spoke to a group of editors of business and trade publications.

Regardless of how we may differ in domestic politics, the President told them, the entire Nation should unite on its foreign policy.

Advertising Planned

Mr. Truman revealed that an advertising campaign for the voluntary food saving plan will soon be started, reaching every section of the country.

One bit of cheering news for the Luckman program to halt the wild soaring of prices came from the Nation's grain pits. The upward surge of Monday, when virtually all commodities went the full limit allowed in a day's trading, abruptly stopped.

When trading opened the market continued its bull movement, and then, upon word that other

Suggestion They Give 6 Billion in Supplies Causes Consternation

By a Post Reporter

Flushing Meadows, Sept. 30.—Latin America insists on being paid in United States dollars for any help it may supply to Europe under the Marshall Plan.

Twelve of the leading Latin-American delegations came to this conclusion at a private meeting last night, The Washington Post learned from one of them today.

The meeting was called because of Latin-American worry and bewilderment over the recent report of the 16 European nations in Paris. This report estimated that about six billion out of the 22 billion dollars worth of supplies needed by Europe in the next four years could come from the Western Hemisphere outside the United States.

Some of the Latin American delegates interpreted this to mean that Europe was expecting government appropriations from their countries to supplement appropriations from the American Congress. Several of them intend to go to Washington later this week to get clarification, if possible, from the State Department.

Meanwhile Secretary-General Trygve Lie published a United Nations report that 16 "devastated countries" of eastern and western Europe would have a total deficit of $1,787,000,000 by the end of this year, even if they used up all their existing resources of gold, foreign exchange and other assets to pay for their essential imports.

His report was a revision of an earlier United Nations report, issued in February, on the prospective needs of war-devastated countries. It covered 10 of the 16 countries that participated in the recent "Marshall Plan" conference in Paris—Austria, Belgium, Luxembourg, Denmark, France, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and the United Kingdom.

It also contained estimates, submitted by the governments themselves and not checked by any outside authority, from six countries that did not join the Paris discussions—Albania, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia.

It showed that the eastern European countries will need heavy stopgap relief this winter if they are not to cut their imports drastically.

Rent Boosts Of 3 to 4% Hits 25,000 In District

Landlords Given Right to Charge Increases in Taxes To Their Tenants

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell yesterday authorized an average 3 to 4 per cent rent increase for an estimated 25,000 to 35,000 Washington residents.

Cogswell's order did not give a flat rent increase. Instead it told landlords of buildings containing from one through eight-family units that they can now shift to their tenants the actual monthly costs resulting from increases in property taxes and water rents since 1941.)

Leases are not affected. Cogswell said he has no power to issue an order changing rents under a lease. The order applies to housing rented on a month-to-month basis.

Order Effective Today

The order is effective today, but the actual rent increases are not. They take effect on the day a landlord serves notice on his tenants and files an original copy of the notice with the Rent Administrator showing the new rent and the calculations that went into fixing it.

These forms are available at Cogswell's office, 1740 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Cogswell said he thought it would be expected that most landlords would make the higher rents effective on the November bills.

The order does not apply to buildings containing more than eight apartment units, to hotels, rooming houses or boarding houses. Cogswell explained these are still to be treated on an individual basis by the rent agency.

Earlier a 7.1 per cent increase in the rents for 99 units of the River Terrace Housing Development, in the 3200 and 3300 block of East Capitol st., was recommended by District Rent Examiner James G. Tyson. The proposal would become effective in 10 days unless tenants appeal. Myron Davy, owner of River Terrace, had asked a 13 per cent increase.

Here is the way rent increases under Cogswell's new order will be computed for single-family dwellings:

The landlord will report on the form his tax and water bills for 1941, his tax bill for 1948, and his latest water bill. He will write down the amount that the present bills have increased over those of 1941. This increase will be divided by 12 to get the monthly increase. That amount will be added to the old rent and the total will become the new legal rent.

Five Groups Protest

For buildings with two-to-eight family units inclusive, the calculation is the same, except that the monthly increase resulting from taxes and water charges will be divided among the tenants in proportion to the rent they pay. If the landlord occupies an apartment in the building, he will have to charge to himself a proportionate share of the increase.

Cogswell made the order public at an afternoon press conference. In the morning representatives of five Washington groups had conferred with him to protest against general increase of rents in the one-eight family buildings. Cogswell had voiced belief three weeks earlier that these buildings should get some rent relief to take care of the recent tax increases.

This was done while he was turning down the bid of the Building Owners and Managers Association for a general 15 per cent rent increase for Washington.

During the last year, tax assessments for the buildings covered in Cogswell's order have been boosted a flat 20 per cent. The tax rate on all real estate in the District has been boosted from $1.75 to $2 per $100 of assessed valuation. And water rents have been boosted 25 per cent.

Cogswell said he had taken judi-

Keneipp Urges Driver Tests Every 6 Years, Fingerprinting

By James Aicken
Post Reporter

District auto operators should be re-examined every six years to weed out those who are physically or mentally incompetent to drive, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said yesterday.

He made the proposal in his annual report to the commissioners for the fiscal year ended last June 30.

"We recommend that beginning with operators licensed in 1942 and proceeding progressively by years, each operator who has held a permit for six years be required to take a written test on the traffic regulations, a vision test, and, if necessary in the opinion of the permit examiner, a road test or special examination," he said.

Funds for re-examinations were included in the Department of Vehicles and Traffic budget request for fiscal 1949, Keneipp revealed.

The report also recommended that license applicants be fingerprinted for the purpose of checking their identity and discouraging use of fictitious addresses.

Such a system, Keneipp declared, would "eliminate impersonations and frauds" and "serve" as a deterrent to the use of automobiles in the commission of crime." It would mean only slight inconvenience to "the average, law-abiding citizen," he said.

Fingerprinting easily could be initiated next July, at the same time the reexamination schedule would go into effect, he said.

District traffic deaths dropped from 81 during the fiscal year to 78 last year—"the lowest level on record"—despite an increase in motor vehicle registration from 126,402 to 165,880, Keneipp reported.

Chicken Pie, Kale, Potatoes Listed Among Food Bargains

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

A menu of chicken pie, kale, and baked potato, topped off with a fresh fruit salad, is representative of the best food buys on the Washington market today.

Stewing chicken for the pie can be bought for 45 to 55 cents a pound, and one large chicken can be "stretched" to serve for several meals for the average family.

Greens of all kinds—collard, spinach and turnip greens, as well as kale—are reasonable, and potatoes abundant.

As for the salad, there's a large supply of Tokay grapes here now, small oranges are economical, and the apple season is nearing its height.

Highlights on other current food buys follow:

Meat, poultry, and fish: Breast of lamb and breast of veal are available for stew at the thrifty price of 25 cents a pound. Canned items such as corned beef hash, chili, and spaghetti and meat balls, aren't yet reflecting increased meat prices. Heavy turkeys, weighing over 20 pounds and costing about 56 cents a pound, are cheaper per pound than smaller turkeys and give a higher percentage of meat to the bone. Crab prices are still reasonable, but expected to go up in a few weeks.

Vegetables: It's "between seasons" on vegetables here now, with the locally grown ones almost gone and big California crops not yet in. There are plentiful kinds, however, including beets, lima beans, egg plant, sweet potatoes, lettuce, celery, radishes, peppers, and greens.

Butter and eggs—Retail prices are holding steady, following last week's drop. One dealer reports he is selling a third less butter than a month ago. Prices now 87 to 89 cents a pound in most stores. Egg prices are little changed, ranging from 71 to 89 cents a dozen, depending on size and quality.

Shortening—Prices on several well-known brands of vegetable shortening have dropped a couple of cents a pound in most stores in the last few days.

Political Row Besets Cuba Over Dominican Republic Plot

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 30 (AP).—A political controversy beset Cuba today after the Cuban army crushed an expeditionary force that had intended to conquer the Dominican Republic.

Senator Aurelio Alvarez, leader of the opposition, accused President Ramon Grau san Martin of having "armed gangs which sought to invade the Dominican Republic, in order to create an atmosphere of violence in Cuba and thus perpetuate himself in power."

Alvarez praised the army for "succeeding in restoring order and thus avoiding the possibility of a situation of violence" which he said would have aided Grau in his alleged "maneuver."

Grau denied Col. Oscar Diaz had made any statement that the expedition had sought to stage "a revolutionary coup (in Cuba) to prevent the elections." Elections are set for next June.

Newspapers had carried the remarks attributed to Diaz under banner headlines.

Until yesterday the Cuban government had denied recurrent reports that an army was training in Cuba to invade the Dominican Republic.

Diaz declared the expeditionary force sought to attack both the Dominican Republic and the "Cuban army."

He added that documents sent to the Cuban supreme court "implicated high personalities, including Minister of Education Jose Manuel Aleman." There was no comment from Aleman, who at the time Diaz was making the charge was in friendly conversation with President Grau.

Sources close to the expeditionary force said it finally put to sea "not" to begin the invasion, since they had almost no fuel or food, but only with the aim of going elsewhere on the eastern coast where they could obtain food."

Poland Reassured On German Plan

Stassen Rejects Tito Invitation

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, avowed Republican 1948 presidential candidate, declined today the invitation of the Yugoslavia government to visit the disputed Yugoslav-Greek border area but said he would be willing to observe the region with an official United Nations commission.

The message of declination to the Yugoslavia ambassador in Washington was sent after telephone consultation with Secretary of State Marshall and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Stassen said at a news conference.

Stassen was one of six Americans invited by the Yugoslavian government last Saturday to visit the border area and "see for themselves" whether that country is an aggressor in the Balkans as the United States has charged in the United Nations.

The others were former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., Dr. Harry Emeson Fosdick, noted pastor, John Gunther, author; and Manson Baldwin, newspaperman. None has accepted the invitation.

Argentina In Council

But as a matter of principle, the Americans are firm on only one point—that neither the Ukraine nor Byelo-Russia, as integral parts of the Soviet Union, should have the power that goes with Council membership. The two Soviet republics, however, were elected as full members in 1945, with the support of the United States and, as full members, they are legally eligible to any seat on any United Nations body except one of the permanent Security Council places reserved to the great powers.

Quite apart from the deadlock, today's proceedings were an exhibition of the seamy side of the United Nations, with block voting and backstairs dealing as brazen as a ward election campaign.

Although the voting was by secret ballot, the American delegation did not hide the fact that it supported Argentina's election. Earlier this week it had tried to promote Uruguay's candidacy, but switched on finding that the 19 Latin American nations, the biggest of all the blocs here, were standing solidly behind Argentina.

The Latin Americans had been busy mending their political fences, even in far-away Eastern Europe. They had made sure that the six Soviet votes here would go to Argentina in exchange for Latin American votes going to the Ukraine on the later vote.

Although the fact of a "deal" could not be confirmed, a Soviet official spokesman had no hesitation in admitting that his delegation had supported Argentina.

The election of Argentina not only provided the rare spectacle of the United States and Russia, by sheer accident, supporting the same cause; it also had the odd result of putting onto the Security Council a country which has been under Soviet attack here for refusing to carry out an Assembly resolution.

Last year's Assembly recommended that all members promptly withdraw their ambasadors or ministers from Franco Spain. Argentina not only sent a new ambassador there, but sent her President's wife to Spain on an ostentatious good will visit earlier this year.

The Argentines will hear much of this in coming debates here, but today it did not seem to affect their fortunes in the slightest.

The Security Council, and the world at large, will also hear a good deal from Argentina as a result of today's decision. The Argentine delegate, Dr. Jose Arce, is incomparably the most voluble, impassioned and untiring orator in this Assembly. A doctor of medicine by profession, a stickler for procedure by instinct, he pitches into debates on every subject that comes before the Assembly.

His Spanish pours out in such torrents that the interpreters find it hard to keep pace with him. His gestures while speaking are more picturesque than those of Vishinsky himself. His position can be predicted on the Franco Spanish issue, where he has tangled repeatedly with the majority of the Assembly, or on the veto question, where he has been one of the most outspoken opponents of the Great Power privileges.

But on most issues he is predictable and the Security Council will have to listen to many of his harangues before the two years are over.

Speculation about Canada's representative on the Security Council is centered at the moment on Gen. Andrew MacNaughton, who has been Canada's spokesman on the Atomic Energy Commission. The Canadians have many able young men in their Department of External Affairs, but most of them are regarded as lacking in the seniority needed to represent their country on the Council.

U. S. Says Measures To Revive Industry Constitute No Threat

The United States assured Poland yesterday that measures to revive industry in the combined American-British zones of Germany will not create a threat to Europe's security.

A note to the Polish Ambassador also renewed the long-standing United States proposal for a 40-year treaty to guarantee Europe against a revival of German militarism. Soviet Russia thus far has been cold to the offer.

The official United States position was detailed by Undersecretary of State Norman Armour in reply to a Polish protest September 14 against the Anglo-American plan to permit German industry to rebuild to the general level of 1936.

Poland contended the new Anglo-American German industry plan is "in complete contradiction with the Potsdam agreement" that the Big Four powers together should make such decisions.

Poland also said the move will create "a threat to the security of Europe," give German reconstruction priority over that of her neighbors, and revise reparations plans at the expense of Poland.

Armour replied that:

1. The United States has sought persistently more than two years to get the unanimous big-power approval to treat Germany as an economic unit, but the Moscow Foreign Ministers' meeting this year showed "little prospect of an early solution" of the impasse with Soviet Russia.

2. Because of the deadlock, steps by the United States and Britain were "imperative" to relieve the heavy financial burden of the occupation.

3. Pending Big Four agreement, "the United States feels justified in pursuing objectives which have been commonly agreed." The United States "has observed the main objectives in the Berlin agreement of eliminating German war potential, developing Germany's agriculture and peaceful assistance."

4. "The Polish government can not fail to be aware of the importance of German production to the economic rehabilitation of Europe."

5. The new level of industry plan will affect the reparations program but "it is hoped and expected that this effect will in the long run be more than offset by the benefits derived from . . . early resumption of normal trade relations with Germany."

and oppression throughout the world. This should be a warning to the members of Congress and the American people not to support any government that does not guarantee individual human freedoms."

This is not the first time since the war that either State Department officials or a committee of Congress has been refused permission to enter the Soviet Union.

Last July three members of the House Labor Committee, who had been assigned to study education and labor in Russia, were refused visas.

At that time, however, Russia explained that "lack of hotel accommodations and some other shortages caused by the war," caused denial of the visas

The House group included Representatives Charles J. Kersten (R., Wis.), Thomas L. Owens (R., Ill.) and John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.).

Kerston asked Secretary of State George C. Marshall to retaliate by ordering "the immediate removal of all excess Russian nationals residing in our country because of the acute housing shortage in the United States."

Under all rules of international usuage Russia has the right to bar even State Department officials of other nations from entry into the Soviet Union.

It was recalled yesterday that the American press itself has been divided on the recent action of the Justice Department in restricting a French Communist correspondent who was admitted to the United States.

The correspondent, Pierre Courtade, was assigned to cover the United Nations Assembly in New York. He was given a United States visa only on condition he would not go anywhere in the United States except New York City and the headquarters of the United Nations, and would not make speeches.

The conditions were comparable to the restrictions the Soviet government imposed on correspondents attending the Moscow Conference of Foreign Ministers.

Courtade made no protest at the limitations.

Flags for War Dead

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—Governor Lane today sent three Maryland flags to the New York port of embarkation where they will be used to honor Maryland war dead during the repatriation ceremonies.

The 5-by-8-foot flags were requested of the Governor by Maj. Gen. Ewart G. Plank, commander of the port.

The bodies of American veterans will arrive at the port apparently by October 19 since that was the date the general set for the flags to be on hand.

Gen. Clark Tells of Tiffs With Russians

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 30 (AP).—Gen. Mark W. Clark, who commanded fighting forces in Italy, said today that he couldn't tell everything about the Russians "As I might get on Vishinsky's All-American Eleven."

Clark, lamenting this Nation's failure to "defense democracy more clearly for the Russians" during the war, chided recent references by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky to alleged American "warmongers."

Clark said he might be accused of "rattling the saber," but he wanted to tell some of his entanglements with the Russians.

He told of an attempt by the Russians in Vienna to capture his intelligence officer. The Russians, he said, wore uniforms of American military police.

Clark said a Russian mission had been in engaged inespionage, and there had been a previous attempt to kidnap the intelligence officer.

"We set up a trap," Clark said. "The American officer lived in a small house. We surrounded it with ou ragents. We had trucks and equipment, ready to flood the place with light. We had to wait 10 days.

"Then at 3 a. m. some vehicles without lights came up the street, an da group of men ran in. Our men went in and there was a scuffle.

"We found the Soviet representatives dressed in the uniforms of American MPs, trying to capture our man. I reported the incident to the Russian marshal at once."

Bachelors Irked At Tax Idea for Old Maid's Home

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 30 (AP).—It was all a gag, fellows, honest. W. H. Burruss, a married man himself, jokingly suggested at an informal gathering here last weekend that a tax be levied on bachelors to pay for an old maids' home.

Representative Almond (D., Va.) in whose honor the reception was being held, remarked during his talk that he had received the suggestion and was thinking it over.

As a result, Burrus has been getting some serious chiding.

Soviet Share Of U. S. Trade Normal Again

Russia's share of total United States trade has dropped back to prewar size from wartime lend-lease and postwar UNRRA aid, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

The figures show Russia got 1.2 per cent of the value of all United States exports in the first half of this year and provided 1.1 per cent of all goods imported into the United States.

During the wartime peak, January to June, 1944, Russia got 23 per cent of total exports and supplied 1.2 per cent of United States imports. The exports were valued at $1,678,199,318 and the imports at $25,989,580.

This Year's Totals Decline

The total value of United States exports to Russia and imports from Russia during the first half of this year declined from the same period last year. Exports dropped 60 per cent and imports 43 per cent.

However, Russia's "commercial" or cash buying rose considerably. Soviet agencies paid cash for half of the $91,200,000 in United States shipments of goods to Russia during the first six months of 1947. (United States shipments to all countries amounted to $7,533,000,000 for that period.)

In the first half of last year, Russia paid cash for only 8 per cent of her goods from the United States. The remainder came through lend-lease (47 per cent) and UNRRA (45 per cent). In the first half of this year, lend-lease covered 16 per cent and UNRRA 34 per cent of shipments from the United States to Russia.

Machinery and vehicles made up more than 70 per cent of the goods Russia obtained in the United States during the first half of this year.

United States imports from Russia were, as usual, concentrated in undressed furs, which accounted for 51 per cent of total import, and metallic ores, 28 per cent.

Military Court Convicts Stepson of Last Kaiser

U. S. Armed Forces Strength Held Vital

Ex-Secretary of War Patterson Contends War Dead Ahead Unless U. S. Is Aroused

New York, Sept. 30 (INS).—Former Secretary of War Robert Patterson declared tonight World War III lies ahead unless America can be aroused to the need for vital national defense measures.

Writing in Cosmopolitan Magazine, he said:

Final Blueprint Not Drawn

Patterson asserted that although early study for a comprehensive defense program was carried out some time ago, the final blueprint has not been drawn. He said:

"This must be done without further delay. The plan must be comprehensive. We don't know when an attack will come. We do know that there will be no warning. We know that any attack launched will be maintained with an intensity never before conceived."

Patterson grimly asked:

"Who will run the Government if an atomic bomb explodes on Washington, destroying the Capitol and the White House and killing most of our high-ranking officials?

"Who is going to evacuate civilian populations from bombed-out areas?

"Who will set up hospitals for radiation victims?

Moving Problem Cited

"Who will move children to rural areas?

"Who will disperse vital industries in crowded areas when the bombs begin to fall?"

Emphasizing the need for universal military training, Patterson declared the United States has permitted its defense to collapse. He declared:

Hoffman Hits Truman

He said, however, that he plans to call a meeting next month of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, which he heads, to discuss the matter.

Meanwhile, Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) said in a statement that Mr. Truman is trying to "shove" onto the Republicans the responsibility of deciding on a special session. He said that if the President "lacks the courage to decide the simple question" he should resign.

Maryland Women Ask Conservation Study Material

Solomons, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—Maryland women will ask the Board of Natural Resources for advanced conservation study material for club groups.

A group of 26 women representing 4 organizations in a "workshop" session at the Chesapeake biological laboratory of the Department of Research and Education, decided today to ask the board for permission to send representatives to the next meeting to explain their needs.

Earlier, the women heard State Forester H. C. Buckingham review operations of his department, emphasizing recreation, forest management and fire control.

Edwin M. Barry of the Game and Inland Fish Commission discussed a management plan for the department.

Later, a laboratory demonstration dealing with the biology of oysters and crabs was conducted.

Represented at the sessions were the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, the Committee of Maryland Women on the Conservation of Natural Resources, the State division of the American Associated of University Women and the State Federation of Garden Clubs.

Harrisonburg Blast Victim Sues for $20,000

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 30 (AP).—A damage suit for $20,000 growing out of the Masters Building explosion, which killed 11 and injured more than a score here on July 2a, has been filed in Rockingham Circuit Court.

The suit is being brought by Perry W. Earman, Harrisonburg painter. He was working in one of the vacant storerooms of the building, when the explosion, said by investigators to have been caused by a leaking gas line, occurred. He received a broken leg and other injuries.

Named defendants were the Consumers Utility Co., holders of the Harrisonburg gas franchise; Miss Evelyn Masters, owner of the building; and W. M. Menefee, jr., trading under the firm name of W. F. Menefee and Sons whose trucks were unloading coal in the basement of the building at the time of the blast.

The return date of the motion is October 20, the opening day of the October term of the Rockingham Circuit Court.

Fullerton Man Painfully Burned In Truck Fire

Eddie Mulhauser, 41, of Fullerton, Md., received second- and third-degree burns yesterday when a trailer truck he was driving on New Hampshire ave., extended, near Piney Branch rd., caught fire.

Mulhauser, admitted at Suburban Hospital, was reported in "good" condition. Police said the driver fought flames for more than 100 yards before he brought the heavy truck to a halt on top of a cable guard railing only a few feet from a 30-foot drop into the East-West branch.

A Silver Spring fireman, Charles C. Barrett, 23, of 406 Sligo ave., narrowly escaped serious injury while spraying water on an auxiliary gasoline tank which exploded as the flames spread.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 30 (AP).—Herbert Fried of Richmond was elected president of the Virginia Association of Launderers and Cleaners at the final business session of the association here today. Bankers Hear Aldrich Urge U. S. Corporation in Aid Task Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Winthrop W. Aldrich, the banker, today proposed that the Government create a U. S. Corporation for European Reconstruction to administer this Nation's proposed 16 billion contribution to the economic rehabilitation of western Europe.

Aldrich

Strongly indorsing both the Marshall Plan and the recent report by the Paris committee on European cooperation, Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank of the City of New York, told the 73d annual convention of the American Bankers Association that "funds appropriated to assist Europe must be provided within the scope of a balanced budget, even though this might postpone for a considerable period of time the over-all reduction of existing taxes."

Moreover, he warned, "priorities between domestic and foreign needs may have to be established," while this country also may "have to introduce voluntary forms of food conservation in order to release a larger quantity for export."

Ties to Soviet Loudly Denied

Rome, Sept. 30 (AP).—Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist leader, angrily shouted down what he described as "insinuations" about his relations with the Soviet Union in a Constituent Assembly debate today on a motion for nonconfidence in the Christian Democrat government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

The government has been attacked as "servile" to the United States in the debate, now in its fourth day. Replying to that charge, Dr. Cesare Merzagora, Minister of Foreign Commerce, declared:

"There is an umbilical cord of ships between the United States and Italy today, without which Italy would die of hunger."

Russia Agrees to Conference On Future of Italian Colonies

London, Sept. 30 (AP).—Russia agreed today to a four-power conference on what is to be done with the Italian colonial empire, and named Georgi Zarubin, ambassador to London, to represent the Soviet Union.

Less than a year remains for the Foreign Ministers Council to agree on the future of the Italian colonies, which included Tripolitania and Cyrenaica in North Africa, Eritrea, Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland in East Africa and the Dodecanese Islands in the Mediterranean.

The Dodecanese Islands, however, have been ceded to Greece in the Italian peace treaty and Ethiopia has had her independence restored.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said a date for the conference had not been set but there was hope the first session could be held Friday.

The talks will be principally concerned with appointment of a commission to visit the colonies and make a report to the foreign ministers of Russia, Britain, France and the United States.

Informed British sources said Italy is likely to insist upon retention of an interest in the colonies acquired before Mussolini rose to power—Cyrenaica, Tripolitania, Eritrea and Somaliland.

In the absence of United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas, who is on a trip to the United States, the American representative at the conference will be Waldemar Gallman, minister counsellor of the United States Embassy here.

Pakistan and Yemen Take Seats in U. N.

Afghanistan Injects Sour Note in Refusal To Recognize Neighbor's Boundary Claim

Flushing Meadows, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Two more flags joined those of the other 55 United Nations today, and they also signalled the approach of one more stormy dispute.

The two Moslem state of Pakistan and Yemen were admitted to membership and their delegations were seated with quiet ceremony by the General Assembly. However, one dissenting vote was entered against Pakistan. It came from her neighbor, Afghanistan, which placed the locale of the dispute in the romance-ridden vicinity of Khyber Pass.

The reason for the objection, said a Hosayn Aziz, chief of the Afghan delegation, is "due to the fact that we cannot recognize the northwestern frontier as a part of Pakistan" until its inhabitants are permitted to decide if they want independence or wish to be part of Pakistan.

This decision must be "free from any kind of influence," he declared. Later, he told reporters, there was no question of annexing the province to Afghanistan. "All we want is that they be given a free choice," he declared.

Aziz said he would give a fuller explanation later to the General Assembly.

Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan, chairman of the Pakistan delegation, told reporters he didn't know what Aziz was talking about.

Before Pakistan separated from India on August 15, he said, a plebiscite was held among the Pathan tribesmen in that province under supervision of a British general. They weer given a choice of affiliating with Pakistan or India and 95 per cent of those who voted chose Pakistan. India had promised independence to the northwest frontier province if it wanted it, but only after voting to join India.

Although the Pathans had been instructed by their leaders to refrain from voting, he said 54 per cent of all eligible voters had participated in the plebiscite.

Both Pakistan and Yemen received a warm indorsement from Secretary Marshall before the vote. He was joined by Great Britain and several other countries but Soviet Russia said nothing.

Admission of Yemen, which is located at the southern entrance of the Red Sea, raised the vote of the Arab League to six—all of which are certain to e used against partition of Palestine. Pakistan, although a Moslem state, is not a member of the Arab League, but its delegation chief declared he also was opposed to the Palestine partition recommendations and preferred a "democratic state."

The Yemen delegation was headed by Prince Seif El Islam Abdulla, son of the ruler. He and his delegation were picturesquely dressed in black bubbahs (flowing gowns) decorated with gold braid and colored scarves, white imamahs (turbans).

MOHANDAS K. GANDHI
Observes birthday quietly

Gandhi Marks 79th Birthday At Delhi Today

New Delhi, India, Sept. 30 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, the nonviolent warrior who led India to independence only to see his people embroiled in a bloody aftermath of communal rioting, will mark his seventy-ninth birthday tomorrow.

He will observe the day with prayer and meditation while squatting before his spinning wheel. He disapproves fussy celebrations.

At first glance Gandhi appears old and feeble and his birthday finds him suffering from influenza. He has abandoned his ambition to live to be 125.

But he is far from frail. His sparkling eyes and heavily muscled chest do not reflect his age. He follows a routine which would cause many younger men to falter. He seldom sleeps more than six hours a night, rising at 4 a. m. and starting the day with a brisk walk, which younger companions often find too long and too fast.

Baby Takes Operation In Stride; Mother Faints

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—Drucilla Parson, 6½-month-old girl, came through an operation today to remove a safety pin from her throat better than her mother.

The baby was flown here yesterday from New Bern, N. C., in a chartered plane with her parents. After the pin was removed at the University Hospital, Baby Drucilla bounced around in a crib without a sign of ill effects. The mother fainted when she heard her baby was safe.

Institutions Start Food-Saving Drive

14 District-Operated Establishments Feeding 7000 Persons Have 5-Point Plan

As the District awaited plans for a Federal food conservation drive, restaurants and institutions yesterday acted to develop their own campaigns.

Brennan

District Purchasing Agent R. M. Brennan disclosed that the 14 District-operated hospitals and institutions feeding from 7000 to 7500 daily has embarked on the following conservation program:

1. Meatless days at least twice a week.
2. Reduction in use of eggs by 10 per cent.
3. Use of other fowl and fryers in place of roasting chickens.
4. Almost complete cessation of butter purchases and substitution of margarine or other spreads.
5. Use of spaghetti, cheese and other meat extenders.

Brennan singled out the District pail for particular praise. He said Donald Clemmer, director of corrections, was feeding inmates and staff on an average of 39 cents a day per person.

Increases in Month

District institutions have been faced with a jump of 10 per cent in egg prices within a month; a rise in sea food prices; a cent a quart boost on milk; 7 cents a pound jump on roasting chickens, but have been relatively undisturbed on the price of fruits and vegetables and beef, both of which are bought on contract, Brennan said.

The Washington Restaurant Association has asked its members to revive last year's "Clean Plate Club," urging patrons to take only what they can eat and eat all they take. In addition, a detailed program of food conservation was outlined to members at a meeting Monday night.

Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Association, said that high price meats "ar ealready off the menus" and that menu prices "are up some since it is impossible to absorb food coast rises."

Consumer Groups Meet

Local consumer groups met Monday night at a meeting held by the Washington Consumer Protection Committee, but have not made final plans for attacking the high price of food situation.

One of the affiliated organizations—the League of Women Shoppers—has concluded "regretfully" that the housewife's pledge not to buy meats selling at over 60 cents a pound has been discarded "since no meats are available at lower prices," according to Mrs. Kathleen Clift, president of the District chapter.

Mrs. Clift said many women were "not buying at all at present sky-high prices" and that the only solution to aid local residents, as well as provide food for foreign relief, was to "reinstitute price controls and rationing."

District Commissioners, who recently asked residents voluntarily to "refrain from eating meat" two days a week to aid European residents, yesterday had made no further plans for attacking the food problem.

Last year's chairman of the Washington Food Conservation Committee, Raymond F. Garrity, said his organization had concluded operations several months ago and he had not been approached about reviving it. The local drive sponsored by the committee was used as a model by many other communities.

Accused Cuban to Fly Home

Miami, Fla., Sept. 30 (U.P.)—Manolo Castro, Cuban national sports director charged with smuggling amunition from the United States to Cuba, announced he would fly to Havana to face possible arrest there by Cuban army authorities.

Castro

Haggard after a night in jail, the 37-year-old Cuban official posted $5000 bond. He still denied the charges.

When arrested yesterday, the Cuban asked "How can I get in touch with my friend Cha Choo Justice? Justice, University of North Carolina football star, said he had "never heard of Castro." Today Castro made no more mention of Justice.

The Treasury Department, according to the United States district attorney's office here, described Castro as a "revolutionist to overthrow the Dominican Republic."

McGrath, Sullivan To Run Campaign

Latter to Serve as Executive Director For Democrats at Truman's Request

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The Democratic front men for '48 will be McGrath and Sullivan.

Gael Sullivan, who apparently felt hurt when he was passed over for the chairmanship, yesterday decided to stay on as executive director of the Democratic National Committee. He withdrew his resignation after President Truman had summoned him to the White House and talked to him for 20 minutes.

"I'm staying on at the request of the President," Sullivan said afterward. "He told me, 'I need you and I want you.'"

As executive director, Sullivan will be the No. 1 deputy of Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island. McGrath is scheduled to succeed Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan as chairman when the National Committee meets here October 29, having been tapped for the post by Mr. Truman last week.

Some Influential Opposition

Some influential Democrats went out of their way to opose Sullivan for the chairmanship. They argued that he was putting too much emphasis on the Democratic Uarty as the party of labor, forgetting that it would take more than labor and liberals to elect Mr. Truman next year.

Sullivan's crusading zeal, however, had ben applauded by many in and out of politics, and this undoubtedly was one reason that Grath put the pressure on him to Mr. Truman, Hannegan and Mestay. Besides, party harmony is very much to be desired in a campaign year.

President Truman was represented yesterday as saying that McGrath and Sullivan would make a good team.

Both are natives of Rhode Island, and are neraly the same age—McGrath, 43, and Sullivan, 42. They attended Providence College together, are energetic, and have the Irishman's flair for politics.

Aide to Major Kelly

Sullivan left Rhode Island to teach in college, and got into politics by becoming an administrative aid to Ed Kelly, then mayor of Chicago. He later became an Assistant Postmaster General, and from that post went to the National Committee as executive director. During Hannegan's illness, he had full power.

A high-powered fellow, whose zeal on one occasion caused Mr. Truman to give him a "talking to," Sullivan yesterday praised the chairman-designate as a great asset to the committee, and added:

"I believ ehe will assure our rendezvous with victory in 1948."

Dollar Shortage Laid To High Prices in U. S.

Government economists yesterday pointed out that part of the cause of the disastrous shortage of dollar exhange in Europe is due to high prices in this country.

This country exported 400 million bushels of wheat each year for the last two years. It plans to export a similar amount this year.

At the average market price the wheat cost $1.66 a bushel in the year ended June 30, 1946, or 664 million dollars. Last year the price was $2.26½ a bushel or 906 millions. This year, so far, the average has been about $2.47, or a total of 988 million dollars.

Foreign nations pay for about half the wheat exports out of their scarce dollar supply. The rest, for former enemy countries, is paid for by this country and Great Britain.

Food Saving Support Asked

foods were to be substituted for grains for export, the trend turned.

The rush to unload touched off some thin margins. Wheat dropped 10 cents from the day's high, corn 7 cents and oats 8. Before the close, much of the loss was made up.

Soybeans Show Gain

One load of steers at Omaha sold for $36 a hundred pounds, a new high record. At Chicago one load matched the 1947 peak of $35.90 set the day before.

Hogs were up 25 to 50 cents a hundred pounds, with a top of $29 and lambs up 50 cents.

Debate Continues

Meanwhile the debate over the high cost of living, who is to blame for it and what to do about it, raged:

(1) Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) and Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) disagreed on foreign policy, the 1948 presidential race, and the responsibility for high prices, in a joint appearance at the National Press Club. O'Mahoney predicted Truman will be elected, praised the foreign policy, and blamed Republicans for killing OPA. Brown said Taft will be next Chief Executive, that the Administration doesn't know where its going on its foreign policy, and that Democratic domestic policies have brought high prices. Taft and O'Mahoney will stage a radio debate at Cincinnati Monday night.

2. Lew Hahn, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, notified members that "manufacturers' prices in many lines are still going up and that another 'inflationary spiral' is possible."

3. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, in a letter to Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), rebuked the Nation's grain exchanges for what he called an "inadequate" scale of margin requirements. His letter referred to a change of heart by Flanders last week when Flanders first asked for 100 per cent margins on grain speculation and then approved a minor voluntary raise by the exchanges.

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) revealed last night that he had forwarded a letter to Luckman urging substitution of potatoes for grain in the manufacture of alcohol.

"Production in the distilled spirits industry has been increasing during recent months, while consumption has been diminishing," Brewster wrote. Grain is needed for export, while potatoes can't be shipped abroad, he said.

Brewster asserted that he was "embarrassed in suggesting such a substitution, in that my State, Maine, is a very large potato producer."

Civic League to Meet

The Oakton (Va.) School and Civic League will meet at 8 p. m. tonight at Oakton Elementary School. The meeting is open to all residents of the community.

Taft Denies Deal To Stop Dewey

Senator Declares He Won't Join Forces With Stassen to Check Dewey in 1948

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 30.—Senator Robert A. Taft today denied any 1948 deal with Harold E. Stassen to "slit Dewey's throat."

His statement exploded the myth of any formal Taft-Stassen understanding on 1948 or anything else but it failed to squelch "Stop Dewey" talk.

Taft cagily answered questions on the subject after arriving in Boise for another speech defending Congress and a round of conferences with Idaho's divided GOP leaders.

"Is there any foundation for all the talk you hear that you and Stassen may try to team up to slit Dewey's throat?" Taft was asked.

"No, no foundation," replied Taft.

"What do you think of the idea?" a reporter pressed.

"No answer," smiled Taft.

Somewhat loose speculation on possible Taft-Stassen 1948 ties, speedily disowned in both camps, followed Taft's cancellation lats week of plans to announce his presidential intentions October 16.

Taft intended to unveil his decision before the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs in Columbus, Ohio, until Stassen also was invited to address the meeting. Aides said Taft's announcement with Stassen present "obviously wouldn't be appropriate."

Taft said today he had no "final word" on whether Stassen will address the Columbus meeting. The two are billed to speak within one day of each other in Des Moines—Stassen October 7 and Taft October 8.

Reporters on this trip are agreed that regardless of any formal or even tacit understanding between the two, Taft's, as well as Stassen's strategy of frank talk on all issues is designed to smoke out the reticent Dewey.

Taft, who has traveled through four States without definitely tieing down any delegates, found a variation of the some theme in Idaho.

Look For "Dark Horse"

Here GOP leaders are so convinced that a "dark horse" is going to win the nomination they will urge an 11-man uninstructed delegation next spring.

Taft and Dewey supporters are almost equally divided in Idaho's top level GOP organization, but young Republicans for Stassen claim they have the rank and file with them. Here the Eisenhower boom has made little headway. Some State leaders speak openly against "running a military man."

Taft today again ducked questions on whether he feels politically "encouraged" by his trip. He stressed however, that he has visited only five States, California, Nevada, Washington, Oregon and Idaho, adding:

"There are 48 States to be considered."

His decision, taken for granted by reporters as "yes," will be based on surveys in other States, he said.

Quips With Reporters

The Ohioan, who has dropped his earlier shyness to mix freely with reporters, quipped as he greeted them today:

"Same old faces, same old questions."

Last night he and Martha Taft, his wife, entertained the press contingent in their own car, a new addition to the train. Newsmen, representing papers of nearly every political coloration, had been chanting some of the picket songs they picked up on the coast.

Taft joined in the chorus on this one: "You can't scare me, I'm sticking to the union; I'm sticking to the union; I'm sticking to the Union. You can't scare me, I'm sticking to the union, I'm sticking to the union until I die."

To Attack Truman Policies

At his press conference in Boise, meanwhile, Taft:

1. Said, "Some ingenious person" ought to be able to find the $580 million dollars President Truman seeks for stopgap aid to Europe from RFC, Export-Import Bank of CCC reserves without calling a special session. He said he is under the impression these agencies have resources that could be made available on a "temporary" basis until Congress acts.

2. Hinted he will devote his last speech of the trip in Casper, Wyo., Thursday to an all-out attack on Truman Administration policies.

3. Slapped at creation of any more river valley authorities, saying: "We can accomplish development of our rivers without any Valley Authority."

4. Declined to discuss the priority in which welfare measures will be taken up by the next Congress, but said he hopes to consider as much of the following as a crowded docket will permit.

Probe Ordered Into Blasting Of Destroyer

Trieste, Sept. 30 (AP).—Vice Admiral B. H. Bieri, commander of the United States Mediterranean Fleet, today ordered investigation into the blasting by a mine of the United States destroyer Douglas H. Fox following reports the ship might have been off course. Three men were killed and 12 injured.

British Capt. C. S. Noakes said the destroyer might have been off course. He said the latitude and longitude given would place the ship several miles south of the normal course from Trieste to Venice.

Vishinsky Invited to Radio Panel

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has invited Andrei Y. Vishinsky to appear as a guest Sunday on the first of a series of broadcasts at which the late President's wife will be moderator, her secretary said tonight.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Miss Malvina Thompson, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, said the Russian deputy foreign minister was asked to appear or to send someone to represent him. He has not yet replied, the secretary said.

She said Mrs. Roosevelt also asked Stanoje Simic, Yugoslav Foreign Minister, to appear on the broadcast, first of a series of panel discussions of United Nations problems over the American Broadcasting Company network. Several Americans have been invited to appear with Vishinsky and Simic.

First topic on the series, to be broadcast at 12:30 p. m. (EST) each Sunday, will be the draft submitted to the U. N. General Assembly by the Commission on Freedom of Information, discussion of which led to charges and countercharges of "warmongering." Mrs. Roosevelt has been deseguated officially to answer Vishinsky's "warmongering" charges against the United States.

Ex-GI Admits Theft

Brooklyn, Sept. 30.—Arnold F. Kivi, 26, former Army sergeant, pleaded guilty today in the United States District Court of the theft of confidential photographs from the atomic bomb plant at Los Alamos, N. Mex.

Judge Mortimer Byers ordered him held at the Federal House of Detention here, under $10,000 bail pending sentence October 9. Kivi faces a maximum eight-year penatly.

Safe Resists Cleaver

Peoria, Ill. (U.P.).—The burglars carefully moved the 800-pound safe to the rear of the meat store so they could work without being heard. Then they set to work to crack it. They tried a new method, but it didn't work. Police found a smashed meat cleaver beside the safe. The safe was scratched slightly.

Stassen to Open Direct Drive for Delegates On Nov. 24 With Major Speech at Milwaukee

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen said today he would open his direct drive for delegates to the 1948 National Republican Convention with a major speech November 24 at Milwaukee, Wis., principal city in the State which holds a preferential Presidential primary next April 6.

The former Minnesota governor told a news conference he considered the Wisconsin primary the first major test of voter sentiment on the 1948 GOP nomination.

Committees are active for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Wisconsin, Stassen said, adding that neither man has given any indication of authorizing efforts in his behalf.

Stassen said his slate of proposed delegates would be headed by United States Senator Joseph McCarthy in Wisconsin.

The Minnesotan, only avowed candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, also announced a schedule of speeches and appearances for October which will take him the length of the United States three times.

His three major October talks, he said, would be October 7 at the Iowa State Bankers Convention in Des Moines, October 16 at the National Retail Druggists Convention in Chicago, and Octoer 21 at the Nobel dinner of the American Scandinavian Foundation in New York.

UMW Official

Kmetz Made Labor Dept. Assistant

President Truman yesterday appointed John T. Kmetz, an AFL United Mine Workers official, to be Assitant Secretary of Labor.

Kmetz

At the same time, he announced the resignation of Philip Hannah, Kmetz's predecessor.

The new Assistant Secretary is an official selection of the AFL, serving in the Labor Department with two other assistant secretaries, one of whom is officially nominated by the CIO.

Kmetz, born in Czechoslovakia 54 years ago, is a resident of Nanticoke, Pa. He has been a member of the nUited Mine Workers ever since he went into the Pennsylvania colleries as a boy, soon after his family migrated to this country.

He headed the UMW's "catch-all" union, District 50, from 1943 until six months ago. Previously, he was president of Local 900, and head of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor.

He assumes a position which Hannah, secretary of the AFL Ohio Federation of Labor, left because of what he called the "antilabor and undemocratic" Taft-Hartley Act.

In a letter to President Truman, Hannah said the law is "raising grave issues of civil liberties for the American people."

Transatlantic Airline Hit by Pilots' Strike

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—A sudden, pre-dawn walkout of 500 American Overseas Airlines pilots and other flight crew members threatened today to bring a complete halt to operations of the line which flies 24 round trips weekly to northern Europe.

Fve eastbound flights scheduled to leave today from New York were indefinitely delayed and a company spokesman said five other of the line's 17 big airliners were grounded in Europe.

Two transatlantic planes were en route here when the strike began at 4 a. m. (EST). Both arrived at La Guardia Field in Midday, one from Frankfurt, the other from Stockholm.

It was the second major airline pilots' strike ever called. Last October Trans World Airline crews walked out and halted domestic and foreign operations of the line for 21 days until arbitration was agreed upon.

David L. Behncke, president of the AFL Air Line Pilots Association, who announced the start of the strike in Chicago, said it did not involve a pay dispute but was caused by what he described as "American Overseas Airlines' 'strong-arm-or-else' negotiating tactics that bluntly attempted to circumvent the Railway Labor Act."

A unanimous vote to strike by first pilots and copilots preceded the walkout, Behncke said. He declared the pilots had bargained futilely with the line for 22 months following expiration of a contract December 1, 1945.

Harold R. Harris, the line's vice president and general manager, said the walkout "is illegal under the provisions of the Railway Labor Act, which also covers the airlines."

hold an election. The answer came last night. Baltimore Regional Director Ross Madden dismissed the petition, on the grounds that members of top AFL ruling body had not fulfilled the law's requirements respecting the affidavit.

It was learned at the office of Dan Tracy, IBEW president, that the union will appeal the decision to the NLRB. If that body upholds Denham's interpretation of the law, it appeared that the electrical workers would take the case on to the courts.

Meantime, dealing with another provision of the new labor law, the NLRB yesterday dismissed a complaint brought to it by the Foreman's Association of America. It acted on grounds that supervisory employes no longer have legal protection in collective bargaining.

Teamsters Local Faces Suits for $10,000,000

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Ten millinery manufacturers said today they would file damage suits aggregating 10 million dollars against local 808 of the AFL Teamsters Uunion, whose 12-day-old strike against the Railway Express Agency has prompted a Milliners' group to file charges with the National Labor Relations Board.

The suits will be filed in the New York Supreme Court, a spokesman for the legal firm of Lopin and Jacobson said.

The firm represents the eastern women's headwear association, which earlier today filed with the regional NLRB offices charges that the union picketing violated secondary boycott provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The association asked the board to petition the courts for an injunction restraining the union from picketing.

Six hundred New York City hat factories have been affected by the strike, as hats piled up because their shipping facilities were blocked by pickets. Walter K. Marks, association president, estimated 25,000 employes might be made idle by the strike.

Until last Friday, when garment district picketing began, the milliners had been using private trucks. The union had stopped use of Railway Express vehicles when the walkout began.

Express drivers have demanded a 40-hour week instead of the present 44 and a 15½-cent hourly pay boost. Drivers now get $58.10 weekly and helpers $49.38.

The Gallup Poll

Sentiment for Revising Taft-Hartley Act Declines

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 30—Organized labor's campaign to revise or repeal the Taft-Hartley Act continues to have considerable support from the American public.

In the latest test of sentiment on the act an Institute survey finds that nearly half of the voters who have heard or read about the law think it should be either revised or repealed outright.

However, the proportion favoring revision or repeal is not as high today as in a similar survey reported in August.

Those who had heard or read of the act were asked:

"Do you think the Taft-Hartley law should be revised, repealed or left unchanged?"

The vote today, as compared to August, follows:

	Today		August
Revised	27)	42%	32)	53%
Repealed	18)		21)
No opinion	27		25

Members of labor unions polled in the survey voted by 58 per cent in favor of revision or repeal, 19 per cent for no change and 23 per cent undecided.

A rather marked difference in attitude toward the act is found among Republicans and Democratic voters throughout the Nation, as the following table indicates.

Revised	29		24
Repealed	26	—55%	9	—33%

* * * *

A controversial feature of the bill, which John L. Lewis and other labor leaders have said they will defy, was put up to voters in an additional question in the poll, as follows:

"The Taft-Hartley law requires officers of labor unions to swear that they are not Communists before they can take a case before the National Labor Relations Board. Do you think Congress should or should not change this provision?"

The vote of all who have heard or read about the Taft-Hartley Act is:

Should change it	18%
Should not	64
No opinion	18

Rent Increase Hits 25,000

cial notice of these increased levies against property owners in preparing the new order.

Groups which sent representatives to Cogswell to protest rent increase action were the Washington Chapter of the Americans for Democratic Action, the League of Women Voters, the American Veterans Committee, the Potomac Cooperative League and the Washington Housing Association.

Benjamin C. Sigal, president of the ADA group, said the organizations contended that increases in taxes alone do not justify an increase in rent ceilings. He said that under the law Cogswell must consider whether there has been a substantial effect on the costs of operating housing before generally changing the ceilings.

Sigal said the group presented figures to show that while prices have gone up, the amounts that landlords of smaller buildings spend for repairs and maintenance have generally gone down since 1939.

He said the figures were based on an OPA study of rented 1-to-4-family buildings in 63 cities, excluding Washington for the period from 1939 to 1946. Sigal said it was found that total expenses declined 4 per cent during the period, while operating income—before paying fixed charges, went up 43 per cent, and net income went up about three times that much. He added there was no reason to believe Washington was an exception.

Sigal added "we are considering legal action" against Cogswell's order. He said such action would have to be based on the ground that the action was arbitrary and irresponsible. Sigal was asked whether he was prepared to describe Cogswell's order in those terms. His reply: "The action shows extremely bad judgment, put it that way."

Cogswell told his press conference the new order was issued under the authority of Sections 3 and 7 of the District rent control law. Section 3 gives the administrator authority to adjust rent ceilings to conform with changes in the general level of operating costs, like changes caused by tax increases. Section 7 carries general authority to make investigations and issue orders.

Cogswell explained that his reason for making the order cover buildings up to eight units and not those with more units was that the one-to-eight-unit buildings were the ones subject to the 20 per cent increase in assessments. For larger buildings, he explained, there was no flat increase in assessments, but a building-by-building adjustment.

General Order No. 12

(Relating to single family dwellings containing 8 or less family dwelling units).

Upon consideration of pertinent data and information relating to real estate assessments, taxes and water rates pertaining to housing accommodations in the District of Columbia, classed as single-family dwellings and multifamily buildings containing from 2 to 8 dwelling units, the administrator finds that there has become effective a general increase since January 1, 1941, in the real estate taxes levied against such housing accommodations by reason of increases in assessments up to 20 per cent and increase in tax rate of 15 2/7 per cent and a 25 per cent increase in the rate charged for consumption of water supplied to such accommodations and that, in order to effectuate the purpose of the Rent Act and to compensate for such general increases, it is necessary and proper to invoke the powers provided in Sections 3 and 7 of the District of Columbia Emergency Rent Act and therefore, it is by the administrator pursuant, thereto, this first day of October, 1947,

Ordered, that any landlord of rented housing accommodations in the District of Columbia, as described above, desiring relief hereunder shall prepare a sworn statement in triplicate on Form No. 79 as prescribed by the administrator and shall serve a duplicate copy of said statement upon each current tenant personally or by registered mail deliverable to the addressee only and shall immediately after said service, file the original sworn statement in the office of the administrator, and may retain the third copy for his own use.

Upon the filing of said statement fully executed in accordance with the provisions hereof the maximum rent ceiling of the housing accommodations covered by the statement so filed shall be the sum of the lawful maximum rent ceiling in existence on the date of this order plus 1/12 of the exact annual amount of the net increase since January 1, 1941, in real estate taxes and water rent payable by the landlord and applying solely to the housing accommodations covered by said statement (1) as to housing accommodations classed as a single family dwelling, in whole and (2) as to housing accommodations located in multifamily buildings containing from 2 to 8 units inclusive, the exact proportion of such net increases in real estate taxes and water rent as the rent of the particular unit bears to the total rent of all such units.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall not apply to any housing accommodations located in any building containing more than 8 apartment units per building, hotels or room or meal rates in rooming and boarding houses.

ROBERT F. COGSWELL, Administrator.

Girl Missing; Man Posing as Doctor Hunted

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (U.P.)—A man who posed as a school doctor and sought to entice pretty high school girls into physical examinations was being hunted by police today in the mysterious disappearance of 18-year-old Ramona Simon.

Ramona, an attractive junior at Western High School, vanished Thursday. She was last seen by a neighbor on a streetcar, presumably e nroute to school. She had received a telephone call the night before. Police said it may have been from the phony physician.

Teen-age girls in virtually every section of Baltimore have reported recent calls from a man who identified himself as a school doctor and requested an appointment to give them a physical checkup.

City school officials have warned all students to disregard the calls as fakes. Girls have been urged to travel to and from schools in groups.

search, received a call last Wednes-

Ramona, object of a citywide day night at a drug store where she worked after school hours. Police said that when she left home the next morning, she took not been known to do before. $15 with her—something she had

A neighbor, Mrs. Thomas Nolan, told police the pretty, dark-haired girl accompanied her on the streetcar but said little. Ramona seemed so preoccupied with her own thoughts, Mrs. Nolan said, that it was necessary to remind her where to get off for school. She never showed up there.

Other students reported to school authorities that the mysterious telephone caller sometimes identified himself as "Dr. Reed" or "Dr. Smith." He once claimed to have been a physician for the school registration board. No such board xeists.

Teen-age girls told their parents and police the man was always careful not to fix a definite time or place for his suggested examinations.

Phone Increase

To many a bedeviled keeper of the family budget, the request of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for an increase in service rates will seem just another straw on the back of a camel that is already overloaded. But utilities, no less than individual consumers, are victims of rising costs. It would be scarcely reasonable to expect one type of business to absorb all increased costs, thus curtailing expansion and possibly incurring operating losses, when other businesses are free to raise prices when they find it necessary. Consequently we think that Chesapeake & Potomac is entitled to a sympathetic hearing before the Public Utilities Commission.

As is the case with public utilities in general, the telephone company cannot charge what it pleases. Because of their monopolistic position, utilities are strictly regulated as to rates. During the present inflation their earnings in general have suffered considerably in comparison with those of private concerns. The railroads, for instance, have petitioned repeatedly for relief from the squeeze they have encountered. In most cases such increases have been justified in the public interest. For, in order to maintain adequate service and to provide necessary capital expansion, utilities must be able to attract investors, and in order to do this they must be able to return a reasonable profit.

The telephone company, in our opinion, makes a good case for some sort of rate increase. Its most compelling argument is the fact that its earnings are now under 3 per cent and are the lowest in 25 years. While its revenues have increased since 1939, they have not kept pace with expenses. Higher payrolls—they have increased, by company figures, 237 per cent since 1939—are the major item in increased costs, but by no means the only item. The telephone company must pay more for cable, for switchboards, for poles. Building costs, for instance, have risen 150 per cent since 1939.

Careful scrutiny of the evidence by the Public Utilities Commission is of course a necessity. We are confident, however, that the PUC is fully competent to arrive at a fair adjustment after thorough public hearings in which dissidents will have an opportunity to present their case. For the public is left the task of accepting philosophically whatever increase is granted as one of the inevitable accompaniments of inflation.

Outlawing Genocide

The pragmatic meaning of the genocide convention now on the agenda of the United Nations Assembly has been tragically underscored by the religious strife in Pakistan. Anyone still ignorant of the meaning of the term "genocide" can find in the reciprocal slaughter of Hindus, Sikhs and Moslems a precise illustration of the crime—deliberate extermination of a national, racial or religious group.

Secretary Marshall in welcoming the new Moslem state of Pakistan, along with the tiny kingdom of Yemen, to membership in the United Nations made no mention of genocide. And no doubt a United Nations devoid of any police power could do nothing to stop the slaughter. But a solemn recognition by the civilized nations of the world that organized pogroms or massacres of minority groups violate the fundamental principles of humanity enunciated in the preamble to the U. N. Charter might serve as a deterrent. A genocide convention would at least make the responsible leaders guilty of an international crime and punishable for it in any civilized land in which they might be apprehended.

While there is little open opposition to the genocide convention prepared by the U. N. Secretariat in conformity with instructions from the Assembly at its last session, some covert opposition is said to be developing which may delay or frustrate Assembly action. It takes the form, apparently, of a pious bid for codification of international law. Codification would no doubt have considerable value; but it would be unwise to regard it as an alternative to or substitute for affirmative statutory action by the Assembly. The draft convention before the Assembly distinguishes three types of genocide: (1) Physical—killing people directly or subjecting them to work or conditions which bring about their death; (2) biological—preventing reproduction through sterilization, breaking up families or forbidding marriages; and (3) cultural—destruction of the spiritual life of a national, racial or religious group by eliminating leaders and by razing churches, schools, libraries and museums.

Hideous as this crime seems, it has been resorted to throughout the whole of history. The extermination of the Jews in Germany is but the most recent instance. It is inconceivable that any civilized government should object to having such a crime outlawed. We hope that the General Assembly will fulfill its moral function by acting on the genocide convention before the current session comes to a close.

Cripps To The Rescue

Reconstruction of the British cabinet for the fresh Battle of Britain has begun with the naming of Sir Stafford Cripps, at present Britain's President of the Board of Trade (equivalent to our Secretary of Commerce), as Minister of Economic Affairs. This is an entirely new office. It has been created in order to put under Sir Stafford the direction of the titanic struggle that Britain must now make in order to live within her straitened means. For this purpose many functions have been transferred to the new department, and these will provide a highly centralized administration. There are enough of these functions to warrant the description from London of Sir Stafford as the No. 2 in the cabinet. Sir Stafford's job will be like that of an executive vice president in a business, akin in government to the one that Mr. Byrnes did in wartime, when his powers over the American economy gave him the informal title of Assistant President. Actually Cripps is commander in chief in a grim fight for survival.

To be sure, Britain's over-all output exceeds her prewar output, but the effort to raise the production of essentials for the revival of Britain, let alone of Europe, has gone awry. This, however, cannot be put down as Cripps' fault. The limiting factor in Sir Stafford's drive for more exports has been coal, and coal did not fall in Cripps' sphere, but in that of the Fuel Minister, the egregious Emmanuel Shinwell. Last winter, by allowing Britain's public utility coal reserves to run down to three and a half weeks' supply, Shinwell tempted Providence, and a blizzard brought about a complete rundown in industry, a rundown which cost Britain half a billion dollars of exports.

The cross purposes at which Britain's Labor government has hitherto been working are intended to be overcome by the Cripps appointment. Premier Attlee explains it as necessary in order to develop "a much closer integration of internal and external economic policy." In other words, Shinwell (and other department heads) will have to defer to Cripps. Sir Stafford has targets to shoot at in the Marshall Plan which will test to the limit all the grit and determination in the British character. Helping him will be the fact that he practices the austerity he preaches. The new regime now calls for "superausterity," and Cripps still will be an example, for he is rigidly disciplined, almost monastic in his habits, and the hardest-working member of the British cabinet. Some of his political enemies, restive under his program of what Mr. Churchill described as "strength through misery," say he believes in austerity for the sake of austerity. Alas, the disproof is in the present need.

Cripps has always had a greater comprehension of the need than any of his colleagues, and has never disguised the true inwardness of the economic ordeal from the British people. In this he is like Mr. Churchill himself, who believes that the basic constituent of statesmanship is to be even more pessimistic than the facts warrant. In this context Sir Stafford Cripps is the only statesman in a ministry of euphorics. A current story about Cripps illustrates his characteristic. To a labor union head he tried to show that under government ownership the workers would have to turn out twice as much for the same money. When the union leader protested that this meant that the workers, as owners of the industry, would get less than they had gotten as employes, Cripps is said to have answered dryly, "That's precisely the beauty of self-rule; its rewards accrue in Heaven."

Once a doctrinaire (he was once thrown out of the Labor Party for flirting with communism), Cripps is now a pragmatist, and his position could fairly be represented as a little left of center. To him nationalization is no panacea, but merely a change in management. Modernization is his creed, and he has sent "working parties" into British industries to overcome industrial backwardness. In this respect he is one with Jean Monnet, who drew up a plan for renovating the entire French economy. Cripps in his new office will have the British economy in his grip, and he has an opportunity such as has come to few Britons in history. If any man can rise to it, it is Cripps, who has been described as a "mixture of Victorian evangelist and Ford time-study man."

European Union

There is a potential significance to the 16-nation Marshall Plan report that goes far beyond its utility in respect of the current economic crisis. Those who dream of a union of European nations glimpse in it an initial halting step in the direction of that ideal. Winston Churchill's United Europe Committee, which includes such noted statesmen as former Premier Edouard Herriot of France and Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium as well as the British wartime Prime Minister, declared of the report, for example: "It will, we trust, be regarded not simply as the means of obtaining temporary American aid, but rather as the first step in the unfolding of a much bolder plan for the progressive and enduring integration of the life and resources of our great continent . . . If, as a result of Mr. Marshall's historic initiative, the foundation can be laid for the lasting collaboration of these 16 nations, we shall have made a notable advance toward the realization of a united Europe."

The cautious report itself can scarcely be said to lend much support to this hope. Actually, it promises little or nothing in the way of unification, falling short in some respects even of what the most effective utilization of available raw materials and facilities would dictate. But cooperation is the forerunner of integration. And necessity is its most effective goad. As the Churchill group put it, "Only by effective unity can we avert a rapid deterioration in the standard of living of all European peoples and check the mounting danger of war." This means economic unity at the outset. But if this works, political unity will no doubt gradually follow. The sharp edges of national sovereignty are being worn away a little. It may be that in western Europe we shall see the beginning of a more comprehensive federal union which is the only enduring guarantor of peace on earth.

Cakes And Ale

In the current controversy between Admiral Halsey and the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals, it is difficult to determine which side is the more unreasonable. Certainly, the admiral disclosed a curious prejudice when he wrote, or permitted his collaborator to write for him, that, "As a general rule, I never trust a fighting man who doesn't smoke or drink." This, of course, is a point of view that is rather widely shared, and seems to be based on the notion that a man who has no small vices is certain to have large ones. However, the fact that this is sometimes the case does not prove that it is generally the case.

Nevertheless, the statements made in the Clipsheet circulated by the Methodist Board do lend a certain plausibility to the admiral's opinion. It shows that the self-discipline of the board members in the matter of tobacco and alcohol by no means excludes in them the vice of meanness. No other name can be used for the ungenerous and uncandid insinuation that the admiral's much-criticized tactics in the Battle of the Philippine Sea can be sufficiently explained by his admission that he is no teetotaler. Nor has the board made much of a case in citing among the examples of fighting men who did very well without the help of liquor the Confederate Generals Lee, Stuart and Jackson. There is some reason to believe that all three of these examples were men who did not need any solace from liquor because they were strongly tempted to the love of war for its own sake. This perhaps is where they differed from Admiral Halsey's fighter pilots.

The reasonable attitude in these matters, as it seems to us, is that a man who is so minded should be free to practice teetotalism without disparagement of his character or courage by Admiral Halsey, and that the man who sees no harm, or sees even a positive good, in a reasonable use of alcohol and tobacco should not on that account be made a target for sneaking and malicious insinuations by the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals.

Arrested Coup

On the basis of current news, we owe an apology to Dictator Rafael Trujillo Molina of the Dominican Republic. In an editorial August 6, we termed "imaginary" the threat of an invasion that was being decried loudly in Ciudad Trujillo. Now it turns out that there was some substance to Trujillo's complaint. The Cuban army has captured two ships with 800 men aboard about to embark for an attempt to overthrow the Trujillo regime. Some 270 other revolutionaries were arrested on land, while an estimated 700 remain at large. In addition Cuban authorities have seized 11 airplanes and quantities of ammunition amassed by the freebooters who have been training in the northeastern sector of Cuba. While the force of the would-be invaders was hardly sufficient to cause Senor Trujillo to quail if his regime is as strong as he is fond of proclaiming, nevertheless it is apparent that his concern was not mere calamity howling.

How much, if any, aid the revolutionists received from Trujillo's embittered neighbors such as Guatemala and Venezuela is, of course, hard to say. Such alleged aid was the subject of several sharp notes to Cuba by the Dominican Republic. It is not surprising that in view of the notorious 17-year repression waged by Trujillo, there is a substantial body of persons in other countries, including Dominican exiles in the United States, who would like to see him ousted. It is natural, too, that the Communists should attempt to horn in on the discontent. But it would be a gross oversimplification of Latin American politics to assume that all resentment of Trujillo is Communist-inspired. Likewise it would be silly to believe, without further evidence, Trujillo's allegation that the current attempt was purely a Communist plot. At any rate, American officials ought to feel glad on one score. Cuba's action in suppressing the invasion has relieved this country of what might have been the painful task of supporting Trujillo under our treaty obligations.

HIGH NOON

Hushed in green summer's brooding heat
Leaves hang listless. No bird calls.
In crevice and hole the crickets sleep.
Grasshoppers hide by the mossy walls.
Daisy, Queen Anne's lace, tangles of vetch
Vary the motionless waves of grasses.
Only the sun's wide shadow of clouds
Moves with high gliding cumulus masses . . .
Dark ships of flowering seas that pass
High over field and tree and boulder.
Quiet of summer noon is here,
Resting with us, warm shoulder to shoulder.

"The Cold War"

Neither the President nor the Secretary of State confides in me. But it seems just possible that the difference between application of the so-called Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan is due to the difference in conditions which they are designed to meet. Walter Lippmann appears to have overlooked that possibility when he critically declared that the policy of the Harvard speech was conceived out of the unworkability of the Truman Doctrine.

An efficient fire department will turn its hose on a smoldering pile, yet will stress and employ preventive measures elsewhere. Mr. Lippmann would point to the second instance as proof of error in the first.

Since contrast is being stressed, I hazard the guess that Mr. Marshall knew of the Truman Doctrine before it was enunciated; and, conversely, Mr. Truman was consulted before the Marshall Plan was announced.

Fertilizer Prices

We, in the fertilizer industry, are somewhat disturbed by portions of articles which appeared in The Washington Post of September 22 under the general heading, "Rising Income of Nearby Farms Drained Away by Spiraling Expenditures." One story, based on a study of the situation in Fairfax County, states that although machines and chemicals have raised the efficiency level of farming, agriculturists there find that making the soil pay today is more costly than ever before. In another story presenting the picture in Montgomery County, President James D. King of the Montgomery Farm Bureau is quoted as saying that the costs of feed, equipment and fertilizer are "out of sight . . ."

We naturally cannot speak for other industries, but for our own we would like to say that the farmer today is not forced to pay higher prices for fertilizer as compared with other commodities. If the 1935-1939 period is used as a base, Government figures reveal that fertilizer prices now are only 35 per cent above that average as compared with the increase of more than 100 per cent in commodity prices generally. If the 1910-1914 period is used as a base, figures of the United States Department of Agriculture show that fertilizer prices at the farm in the spring of 1947 were only 33 per cent above that level. The prices the farmers paid for all his commodities increased 143 per cent, or four times as much, during the same period.

Those of us in the fertilizer industry are proud to say that fertilizer is just about the cheapest commodity the farmer buys.

Sick-Leave Probe

I note in the Federal Diary of September 26 the great concern in certain high places regarding the amount of sick leave taken by Government employes. The amount taken in the past will probably be little compared with that which many employes will find it necessary, and justly so, to take in the future if the present living conditions obtain here in the District.

Many career employes who were frozen to their jobs and therefore did not make a big killing during the war now find themselves on a static salary, with the cost of living increasing by leaps and bounds. Consequently, they are unable to stretch their salaries to cover an adequate diet, housing and necessary clothing, medical attention.

Naturally, Senator Ball, credited with inspiring the investigation, wouldn't be aware of such conditions, for, after all, didn't he get a salary boost of $5000 per annum since the upward trend of prices? And didn't he give the new $10,000 per annum assistant's job to his wife? Senator Ball, at the time of the publication of the names of the new assistants to the Senators, stated (in effect) that Mrs. Ball was the only person familiar with his work, that he was training some young men to take over in the future and that only $6000 of the $10,000 was going to his wife.

According to the Congressional Directory, Senator Ball was appointed to the Senate on October 14, 1940. How many of Uncle Sam's nieces, regardless of education or previous experience, can boast of $6000 per annum after seven years in the service of the Federal Government?

Saving Food

I make the following suggestion to aid in preventing the waste of food:

Request the hotels and restaurants of the nation to stop adjusting prices as between table d'hote and a la carte meals in such fashion that people are, in effect, offered a "bargain" if they order a full-course meal.

This ordering of full course meals results in many items being left uneaten and is one very prolific source of waste.

"Little Black Sambo"

The issue of Little Black Sambo should be settled once and for all time. This story has no place in the education of the children nor in the curriculum of the schools of a democracy.

Children have no prejudices. The adults instill the ideas in their boys and girls.

Last week, while I was shopping in a department store here in the District, my little 2-year-old boy was busy trying to convince me that he should have candy. I was interested in buying something else. However, a little girl about the same age approached my boy and put her arms around him, mumbling something no adult could possibly translate. The two children became interested in each other and both ended their conversation at the candy counter, pointing to their choice.

It wasn't anything new to see the two children interested in each other. All children will play together and find similar interest. The important thing to observe was the reaction of the parent.

I amusingly watched how perplexed and irritable the little girl's parents became. The complexion, ordinarily white, had changed to red. Nothing was done about the incident and after the sale was completed the children parted without having contaminated each other. SYLVIA M. MEANS.
Washington.

As a liberal mother, the controversy over Little Black Sambo has interested me considerably. My son (age 7) and my daughter (age 5) both developed their first interest in written stories from my reading them The Story of Little Black Sambo. They more than sympathized, in fact they completely identified themselves with the little colored boy and his family.

The story also illustrated the strongest emotions common to all young children of every race: (1) love of possessions; (2) reliance on devotion of parents; (3) fear of violence; (4) effectiveness of intelligence; (5) triumph of faith—all reaching a climax in (6), love of food.

What more could any story do?

Profiteering In Food Prices

On September 23 The Washington Post carried a front page news article which read in part ". . . most food prices in the United States are skyrocketing due to heavy eating at home, a short corn crop and shipment of food abroad." This statement apparently reflected the editorial position shifting responsibility for high food prices onto the people. Are high food costs, for example, meat, due to the reasons advanced? Let's look at some facts:

1. The overeating argument—Production of meat this year is very high, 23 billion pounds, or enough to provide a per capita consumption of 161 pounds, including the military. Estimated consumption this year, on the other hand, is 155 pounds per capita. This production-consumption ratio is actually better than that of 1939, when the corresponding figures were 134 to 125. Thus, people are not overeating in relation to current production.

Furthermore, prices increased drastically in June, 1947, although there was no significant change in either production or consumption. And to top it off, The Washington Post Poll recently found that Washington housewives had been forced to cut their meat consumption because of inflated prices—yet prices rose.

2. The bad corn crop argument—The papers have announced that floods and frost will reduce the expected corn crop. Can any sane person believe that corn which has not yet been harvested, to be fed to yet unborn hogs and cows, should boost meat prices now?

3. The export argument—Meat exports constituted only 2.2 per cent of total production this year. How, therefore, could it have had any real effect on prices?

What are the real reasons for the price rises? I submit that uncontrolled speculation on the Chicago grain market and profiteering on the part of the big meat packers are the major causes. For example, in 1946 the four big meat packers realized 122 million dollars, or a 21 per cent return on investment. The margin on 1 pound of beef went from 4.76 cents in June, 1946, to 16.26 cents in June, 1947, an increase of 242 per cent for the meat packers in one year.

And is it true that the people have such "high" incomes which force prices up? The Department of Labor recently stated that in United States manufacturing industries, real wages averaged $29.99 per week for a family of four. This represented a $6 per week increase over 1939, but productivity of labor had risen some 25 per cent during that period, indicating that labor is not even getting as much out of every dollar produced for the employer as it received in 1939.

There is only one real solution for high prices today, and that is control of speculation, rollback of prices, restoration of price control and rationing of scarce items.

White Collar Deluge

By Malvina Lindsay

College Craze

THE PRESENT mass advance of students on college campuses is causing many taxpaying citizens to ask: So what? Will this mean, a few years hence, an army of jobless, disillusioned, white collar young people? Or will it mean the long-hoped-for transfusion of young leadership and alert citizenship into national life?

The American urge to go to college—and get ahead in the world—is reaching its peak this fall as about 2½ million young men and women begin their higher education. Veterans have chiefly caused this big registration, though here is also a surge of other students. High employment and prosperity are causing more farmers and industrial workers to send their sons and daughters to college, often to get the education the parents longed for and lacked.

Also more people are able to give their children the prestige and contacts of college life. And the fact that the "crowd" is now going to college makes young people generally more avid for campus experience.

Many colleges, through Federal and State aid, have increased classroom and housing facilities, and are able to take on more students this year. Students unable to get into the big universities or "name" schools are now turning to the smaller colleges, which for awhile they were prone to shun.

A SOMEWHAT similar rush to college followed the first World War. Those who remember the lazy and inept citizenship of the 1920s and the international myopia of the 1930s do not have much hope the present college craze will provide a generation of citizens able and willing to solve the problems at which the oldsters have failed.

Most of the college veterans, it is pointed out, are fitting themselves to earn livings as soon as possible, and a high proportion of them are turning to technological fields. Also many are seeking business education. Many veterans would like to enter medicine, but training facilities are limited.

There has been a strong tendency in recent years to vocationalize colleges, and this does not encourage production of thinking citizens. And colleges have done little toward mass civic education—in fact, much less than have high schools. Some educators say colleges are giving all the citizenship training "the traffic will bear," as most college students are busy in specialized studies or in pursuit of material goals.

However, college students in the main are getting exposed in spite of themselves to ideas. Most veterans must take preparatory liberal arts courses before beginning technical studies. Also, in many colleges courses in political and social sciences are being brought down to earth and related to current problems. Professors generally, like the atomic scientists, are finding that in the "race of education with catastrophe" they must come out of their laboratories and ivory towers.

SEVERAL GROUPS of educators are now working on programs whereby colleges can better prepare young Americans for their responsibilities in democratic government without at the same time betraying the national tradition by drilling beliefs into them. Yet overcrowded teachers trying to cope with present classroom hordes will not be able to do much sideline training in democracy.

One encouraging sign for the future is the stamina veterans are showing in their college life. They have not only outranked other students in scholarship, but generally set such standards that the campus rah rah crowd had to work harder. This the veterans have done frequently under most difficult living conditions. Also veterans in many trailer villages have shown political initiative by setting up self-government, electing "city" officials and starting community projects, such as nurseries.

The rush to college is likely to continue for several years. Some predict enrollment will reach three million. Whether this will unload on the country more persons headed for mental occupations than it can absorb remains to be seen. This may hinge on how far the Nation goes in creatively expanding industries and cultural pursuits.

As to whether these invading hordes of college graduates can make a better world also is in the balance. Some campus signs give hope they will at least inject a shot of more vigorous, daring leadership into the middle-age-minded Nation that war's upheavals have developed.

Old-Fashion Plea

I appeal to every American male to come out shouting against the new fashions.

The new dresses look simply atrocious. I don't think that any man wants our women to look like great-grandma's mother just so that some fashion designers can make a lot of money. We like the modern girl and think she looks best in a simple, uncluttered and short dress and it is high time that we men let our women and the fashion designers know how we feel. ROGER SALLE.

Matter Of Fact

Decline And Fall?

WITH INFINITE reluctance, the President and the congressional leaders have taken the first hesitating steps toward dealing with the crisis abroad. It now seems possible that a bare minimum of the necessary dollars will be forthcoming. But dollars are only half the problem. Dollars are not edible. That is why, in moments of gloom, those close to the Washington scene are sometimes tempted to suspect that some future Gibbon, industriously compiling his Decline and Fall of the United States, might write as follows:

Many causes have been advanced for the extraordinary events which occurred in the middle years of the twentieth century. Yet a close study of the contemporary records leads the honest historian inescapably to the conclusion that the United States (together with Western civilization as a whole) was destroyed by reason of the inordinate appetite of the American people for meat.

To satisy this appetite, hardly less than 90 million tons of grain were fed to beasts and fowls in the year 1947-48. Had the Americans been able to divert no more than three or four million of these tons of grain to the feeding of the famished people of Europe, the disaster which shortly overcame the United States might clearly have been averted. It is a remarkable fact that the American leaders, or at least the most powerful and informed among them, were wholly alive to this crucial importance of a few million tons of grain. Yet they were, or believed themselves to be, powerless to act.

Difficult as it now is to credit, the area then known as the United States was at that time wealthy, populous, and enormously productive. So industrious were its people, and so vast its natural riches, that the country emerged from the second German war more prosperous than it had ever been before. By constrast, the nations of western Europe had been crippled by the long conflict. The governments of those nations were reduced to reliance on the United States for wheat with which to feed their populace and coal with which to sustain their manufacturers.

SINCE THE END of the war, the Soviet Union, now also a wasteland, but then second in power and resources only to the United States, had been attempting by every means to extend its area of power and influence. The chief instrument to this end was the International Communist Parties, directed from Moscow. In 1947, these parties were exerting all their energies to seize control of the nations of western Europe, and particularly of France and Italy They found an ally in the western European weather. Following a disastrous harvest, it became evident by the autumn of 1947 that the French and Italian people were menaced with starvation in the approaching winter months.

It was clear to the American leaders that unless something were done, this circumstance would lead to Communist, and thus Soviet, control of all Europe. The foreign policy of the United States, for evident strategic reasons, had been shaped to avert precisely this end. Thus it is with amazement that the historian comes upon the announcement of an American official, known as "the Secretary of Agriculture," in the month of September, 1947. This official, named Clinton Anderson, announced at that time that exports of grains to Europe must necessarily be reduced. Whereas 15 million tons of grain had been shipped to Europe and elsewhere in the preceding year, this amount must be decreased to approximately 12 million tons. Little short of 90 million tons was to be fed to the beasts, to satisfy the American appetite for meat.

IT IS WITH a sense of wonder also that one reads the opinions credited to Anderson in certain reputable journals of the day. Anderson was said to have informed the President of the United States that neither the Congress nor the people would approve such "extreme measures" as a reduction in the size of the bread loaf, a limitation in the feeding of wheat to animals, or a decrease in the use of grain for manufacture of spirituous liquors, copiously consumed in the United States in those days. Thus, although the Congress was asked to approve such sums as were needed by the European countries to purchase the necessary foodstuffs, no serious measures, other than an appeal for self-restraint, were taken to assure that these foodstuffs would be available. Not unexpectedly this appeal, in time of peace, was largely fruitless.

The inevitable political and economic chaos in Europe thus supervened, with the inevitable consequences. A now forgotten doctrine then known as the "Marshall Plan," which had been designed to save the situation, had to be discarded. The United States soon found itself a continental island, set in the midst of a vast Soviet-dominated ocean. No opportunity for a final peaceful settlement between the Soviets and the Americans, other than a peace of surrender, remained. The consequences were inescapable.

One mystery will always remain to plague the speculative historian. The American people had demonstrated a conspicuous moral fiber during the war years. Had some sudden cancer destroyed the temper of the people, so that they need must feed 90 million tons of grain to their beasts that they might eat heartily of choice meats, while the Europeans starved for lack of three million tons of grain? Or did the American leaders misjudge and undervalue the character of that now vanished race?

Mission To Greece

ATHENS, GREECE.—Virtually all the Americans who will work with the American Mission for Aid to Greece — conveniently shortened to AMAG—are now on the job here in Athens. It has been a long, hard pull since that momentous date of March 10, when President Truman first announced the program.

There have been many disappointments along the way. Getting the right man for the right job has been difficult and at times impossible. Yet the group, as finally assembled, is well above average.

It includes many younger men of proven ability who, out of a sense of duty, were persuaded to come. Philip F. Maguire, director of the foreign trade and supply division in AMAG, held a number of responsible positions in Government in Washington before he went as assistant to the president of a large corporation. Herbert P. Lansdale, jr., had 14 years experience in Greece with the YMCA from 1925 to 1939.

Both top men are former Governors of Nebraska. Aid Director Dwight Griswold chose as his Deputy Robert L. Cochran, who was Governor from 1934 to 1941. The current wisecrack is that you can find as many Nebraskans in Athens as there are Missourians in Washington.

Griswold is hard working and completely unspectacular. He does very little talking either on or off the record. The impression he gives is of a man who knows he has a tough job and is getting down to it in a hard, slogging sort of way.

GRISWOLD AND his wife have thus far evaded most of the invitations showered on them by the elite of Athens. The social lobby here is as well heeled, as persistent and as insidious as its counterpart in Washington.

What he may lack in imagination and boldness, Griswold makes up in sheer determination and perseverance. That, at any rate, is the view of a former associate who is now a member of the mission.

You could never mistake the director for anything but an American and a Middle Westerner. Rizospastis, the Communist paper in Athens, calls him Gauleiter Griswold and sometimes Supergauleiter Griswold. Nothing could be more ridiculous in view of the man's calm indifference to the outward shows of pomp and authority and his apparent determination to stay carefully within the limits of the power defined for the mission by act of Congress.

Something most Americans fail to realize is that Communist and other opposition newspapers are printed here without any restriction on what they say. Day in and day out they attack the American mission in the familiar jargon—dollar imperialism, support of the monarcho-fascist government of Greece.

AN INTERESTING object lesson in democracy is to see Griswold face the combined press of Athens at his weekly press conference. Communists representing Rizospastis and the Soviet news agency, Tass, fire all sorts of questions at him and he replies with unemotional detachment. It is the kind of lesson that might in time get through even to the sealed world inhabited by the Stalinist-Marxist mentality.

Griswold has a separate press conference each week for American correspondents, to whom at times he may want to speak frankly off the record. He has been criticized for excluding the British correspondents from this conference. But it seems to me a perfectly legitimate prerogative under the circumstances.

Factors entirely beyond his control have made the director's job tougher since he arrived on the scene. The drought, so disastrous in its effect throughout Europe, has cut down Greek production of bread grains by an estimated 200,000 tons; perhaps as much as one fourth of the total crop.

This is one reason it has been necessary to recast the mission budget. That food deficit, which must be made up in part at least if anything like stability is to be maintained here, will cut deeply into a total fund that is obviously small in comparison to the urgent needs of the country.

Gradually the impact of the American aid program is becoming evident. There are signs of greater stability and confidence. Members of the Greek government seem eager to cooperate with the mission. In fact, they appear often too eager to surrender authority to Americans. But for some time to come the signs of success will be best measured by a microscope. The terrible ravages of seven years of war and revolution cannot be repaired overnight, no matter how much the earnestness and the good will of the repair crew.

1st 4000-Mile Guided Missile To Take 10 Years, Experts Say

By James J. Strebig
Associated Press Reporter

Two aircraft designers said yesterday it would take 10 to 15 years to produce a guided missile of 4000 range but that robot warfare between continents was definitely possible.

The cost of evolving such a weapon was estimated from 200 million to 300 million dollars. The figures were given the President's Air Policy Commission by John K. Northrop, president of Northrop Aircraft, Inc., Hawthorne, Calif., and A. E. Lombard, engineering consultant for Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp., San Diego, Calif.

The methods and equipment needed to make missiles capable of carrying a 5000-pound warhead at 600 miles an hour for 4000 miles "are already well known in this country," Northrop said in a statement, but added that there are unsolved problems.

Lombard said the manufacture of such missiles will require facilities similar to those used for building man-carrying aircraft. However, new type plants probably will be needed to supply the fuel, he said.

The commission is holding hearings in preparation of a national air policy report.

Northrop said long-range guided missiles fall into three categories:

1. Susonic (600 m.p.h.) pilotless aircraft, requiring 3 years and six million dollars to develop the first five. (This resembles the German V-1 except for range.)

2. Supersonic (1400 m.p.h.) pilotless aircraft requiring 6 years and 30 million dollars to develop.

3. Supersonic (3500 m.p.h.) rocket requiring 10 years and up to 250 million dollars for development. (This resembles the German V-2, except that the range would be many times greater.)

(Subsonic means below the speed of sound, and supersonic above that speed which is normally regarded as 763 miles an hour.)

Under questioning by the commission, Northrop said the air force shelved the subsonic project nine months ago because funds would not permit work on the full program. The supersonic program was retained despite the longer period required, he said, because it represents a more advanced weapon and will be more difficult to intercept.

Northrop said he feels the subsonic project should be pressed, since it could be brought to completion earlier and would be available while work continued on the other types.

Asked whether other countries can have such weapons in the same time, he said it "certainly must be assumed that they can."

Once the subsonic guided missile is developed, Northop said production could be in what ever volume was required because it would be similar to building a fighter or trainer aircraft.

Guy W. Vaughan, president of the Curtiss-Wright Corp. told the commission in a statement that in event o fanother war "subversive elemeents could cause unprecedented delay in industrial centers."

Because of this, the head of the Nation's largest wartime aviation producer recommended that special attention in national preparedness "be attacheed to manpower if Russia is to be our enemy."

Vaughan's statement to the five-man commission said "inestimable time and money" were lost in the recent war in reaching decisions which should have been made by a single government official.

Previously, R. M. Hazen, engineering director for the Allison division of General Motors Corp. at Indianapolis, had said the United States has "at least caught up with and in some ways is ahead" of the British in jet propulsion.

Public Information

A Communication

THE DEATH on September 20 of Fiorello LaGuardia throws into sharp focus the type of citizenship he represented and adds poignancy to some of his public utterances. The "Little Flower" was always a zealous public servant, and, in distinction from propaganda, advertising and selling, he believed in public relations.

This belief found notable expression, when in the summer of 1941 he was a guest of honor at a luncheon winding up a conference of Navy public relations officers. The mayor expressed himself, inter alia, as follows:

"If I were to give you my advice . . . I would like to give you three points as to what you're not selling. Remember please you are not selling breakfast foods; you're not peddling cigarettes; and you're not plugging shortening. So it isn't necessary, in keeping the American public informed about the Navy, to invoke or employ that high-pressure system."

Later, LaGuardia, in telling of his experience 13 years previously in a submarine, praised the frankness of all the officials in giving him the accurate information necessary for hearings before a Congressional committee.

"Now that was the unique technique in public relations of telling the truth. That should not be different today."

TELLING THE truth in public relations—that is what a propagandized world is crying for. At the time LaGuardia spoke, four months before Pearl Harbor, Navy Public Relations, a branch of the Navy Department, was created by Frank Knox. Created by pulling out a small subdivision of Naval Intelligence and erecting it into a full-fledged office, it had been filling the public prints and the radio air waves with a flood of bombastic utterances.

This was in keeping with a policy of "selling the Navy," a phrase which most of the regular officers in the service found profane and totally out of keeping with the traditions of the Navy, especially on the brink of actual war. Very little substantial information was conveyed to the public in this program.

Emotional reflexes, entertainment or disparagement of the enemy, and a general popular blur were aimed at and to a large extent accomplished. Corresponding techniques were employed by the Army and, independently, by the Marine Corps, while any and all merchandizing concerns with substantial prospects of war profits joined the hue and cry. Reliable information was scantily dished out as relatively unpopular. Accordingly, Pearl Harbor not only found the Army and Navy unprepared at Hawaii; it also found a public opinion in the clouds.

THE HISTORY of Navy Public Relations in the archives of the Navy Department shows that this same technique, as too often divorced from the truth, continued to be Navy policy through the four years of the war. It began with an emphatic instance on December 7, 1941. The Japanese knew on that day that the United States Pacific Fleet had been put beyond the possibility of offensive action, but the United States public was lulled into the beginning of the complacency which continued through the war.

On the part of the regular Navy, especially those in charge of operations as distinguished from administration, this policy had an understandable and honest basis in "security. Sound in its simplest workings, this barrier to information was pushed to absurd lengths at times during the war. When it came to secrecy regarding operations by land or sea in stages of planning, the whole of the newspaper, periodical and radio interests were loyally cooperative with the service restrictions.

Where editorial and radio comment drastically quarreled with the "security" and "aid and comfort to the enemy" alibis was in the wide realm of conditions or circumstances after the event. Too often was "security" advanced to cloud over or to palliate errors in judgment, actual negligence—in short the realities of what had already happened. This policy of misinformation had the natural effect of lost confidence in Army and Navy communiques.

The point at issue is vital. What is the object of public relations policies in the executive and administrative branches of the Government in war or in peace?

Do we as a Government or as a people actually desire information pleasant or unpleasant, or do we prefer entertainment?

The burden of proof rests upon those who, with Fiorello LaGuardia, advocate a policy of truth in building up and sustaining national morale and an alert, responsive public opinion by sound and reliable information.

Nevius Tract Ex-Owners Get 75% of Price

Former owners of the Nevius tract yesterday won court permission to collect $637,120 as initial installment of the price the Federal Government will eventually have to pay for the 25-acre site on the Virginia side of the Memorial Brdige.

The installment represents three quarters of the $850,827 which the Government placed on deposit as fair value for the land, taken over by condemnation last June as the proposed site of a new Veterans Administration hospital.

However, proprietors of the tract, headed by Avon M. Nevius, retired Washington banker, felt the Governments' offer was too low. A condemnation jury will establish the sales price in the December term of the Federal District Court at Alexandria. Meanwhile, the Government's deposit has been held in escrow.

Yesterday Nevius and a group of associates went to Federal Court in Richmond, Associated Press reported, and requested the right to withdraw 90 per cent of the $850,827 on deposit. Judge Sterling Hutcheson okayed withdrawal of three fourths of the funds, the rest being continued in escrow to meet claims aring out of possible title defects.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, administrator of veterans' affairs, and Dr. Paul R. Hawley, his medical chief, personally selected the Nevius tract as a site for a 25-million-dollar 750-bed hospital. At the instance of Representative Howard Smith (D., Va.), the House Appropriations Committee blocked use of the site for a veterans' hospital on the grounds that it cost too much and that cheaper land wasc available nearby.

All of which raises the question as to what the Government will do with the Nevius tract now that it owns it and can't use it for a VA hospital.

Charity Rate At Freedmen's Raised 50%

The Budget Bureau yesterday ordered a 50 per cent increase in the daily rate charged for District charity patients at Freedmen's Hospital.

Donald MacPhail, Budget Bureau information officer, said the new rate of $13.90 per day would be retroactive to July 1. The District is currently paying $9.25 a day for care of patients it sends to Freedmen's.

MacPhail said the new rate for tuberculosis patients would be $10.20 a day, nearly double the present daily charge of $5.20.

Notofication of the new rates has been sent to the Commissioners, MacPhail announced.

Geoffrey Thornett, secretary to the board of commissioners, said last night that the letter of notification had net yet been received at District Building and that the Commissioners had not considered the new rate.

Charles E. Burbridge, superintendent at Freedman's Hospital, said he had received no official notice that the new rate had been set.

He declined to say whether the rate increase would be enough to cover increased costs at the hospital. "I have no comment to make," he said, "until we get an official ruling."

Chest to Study Revision of Merger Plan

The board of trustees of the Washington Community Chest yesterday agreed to set up a committee to study possbile suggestions for altering the plan to marge their organization with the Council of Social Agencies.

The committee, which is to be appointed by Lee D. Butler, Chest president, by Tuesday, will meet with a similar committee already organized by the delegate body of the Council to iron out any conflicting views.

A final vote will be taken later in October to decide the fate of the reorganization plan consolidating Washington's two major welfare bodies—a merger which was referred to yesterday as "evolutionary and revolutionary."

Dr. Ernest Griffiths, president of the council and one of the six members of the 10-member joint committee, which had drawn up the plan August 29, who was present to answer questions, emphasized that more efficient planning would evolve from the merger, as well as "greater financial responsibility."

The plan, which calls for a single board of trustees of 212 members, would have the same number of representatives from the public at large and member organizations.

Coleman Jennings, member of the executive committee of the Chest, said that half of the community organizations would be picked by the baord of trustees, and the other half would be represented on a rotating basis.

Henry Beitscher, president of the Washington CIO Industrial Union Council, who spoke from the floor, expressed fear that the professional worker would be subordinated to the minor role of "suppliant" under the proposed merger.

Business Unit 2, one of the nine soliciting groups of the Community Chest Federation, led 30 campaign leaders on a tour of five Chest agencies yesterday afternoon to instruct them in the general work of the agencies. The fall campaign will get under way November 12.

Fairfax Board To Decide Today On Injunction

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors today will decide whether it will sek an injunction against the Virginia Electric & Power Co. for violating the county's zoning ordinance.

At its last meeting, the board instructed Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh B. Marsh to determine whether VEPCO's action in proceeding with its plans for a new power line through the county without a building permit violates the law.

Hardee Chambliss, jr., Fairfax attorney representing a group of landowners, has asked the board to seek the injunction. Five landowners already have filed injunction suits, asking VEPCO be permanently restrained from (1) proceeding with condemnation of the land and (2) constructing the 110,000 volt line. The suits charge a violation of the ordinance.

Fairfax Laborer Burned to Death In Night Blaze

A Fairfax County man was burned to death Monday night in a fire which destroyed his three-room cabin located off Route 1, about four miles south of Alexandria.

State Police said the man was identified as Sam Smith, about 30, who had been emlpoyed as a laborer working on the construction of Shirley Memorial Highway. He has no relatives here, they said. His wife is believed to live in Holly Hill, S. C.

Penn Daw and Mount Vernon Fire Departments answered the alarm at 10:45 p.m., but were able only to save surrounding cabins. Smith's body was found on the bed, where he had apparently been sleeping when the fire started.

The fire is believed to have started from a stove in Smith's room.

County Fair Set October 11

Chief Takes Forced Ride

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 30 (AP).—The police chief of Allentown took a ride—at gun point—while his men stood by helplessly today.

Two hours later Chief Wayne Elliott leaped from his machine in nearby Bethlehem and in another three hours his kidnaper, identified as 23-year-old Erber Julius Worseck, was captured here.

Elliott and aides had gone to a house in Allentown to arrest Worseck for robbery. Worseck appeared with a gun and forced the chief to lead the way to a police car as policemen stood by under instructions from their boss not to shoot.

Elliott said he finally told Worseck "I had to get out of the car and he let me stop. I got out started running and never stopped."

Surrounded later, Worseck gave up.

Linguaphone Institute Gives D. C. Highest Rating in Speech

Washingtonians speak with a "modulated level and a cross between the broad 'A' and the hard 'A'." And that makes it, dictionwise, the best American-English-speaking town in the whole United States.

That's the conclusion reached by the Linguaphone Institute of America, which teaches languages by phonograph records. Its speech survey placed Boston (famous for its broad 'A') second, and Nashville third.

In New York, Max Sherover, president of the institute, yesterday explained: "In Washington we have the merging of the best accents from 48 states. . ."

The institute also announced it particularly likes the accents of Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Florida Senator; Mrs. Martha Taft, wife of the Ohio Senator; and Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge jr. (R., Mass.).

Race Discrimination Denied in Arlington

Board Files Answer to Suit Filed by Negro Girl Refused Admission to High School

Arlington School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp and the Arlington County School Board yesterday denied any discrimination or inequality between facilities offered white and Negro students in Arlington public schools.

The statement was an answer to a test court suit filed by Constance Carter, 15, of 3425 S. 22d st., Arlington, charging she was barred from entering the Washington-Lee High School for white students.

The girl's suit, filed in Alexandria District Court early in September by Leon A. Ransom, her attorney, claimed Negro students are "denied and deprived of same or equal educational facilities" in Arlington high schools, and claimed she had been unable to take courses in typing, Civics III, Spanish, or physical education at the Hoffman-School for Negroes.

In their reply yesterday drawn up by Arlington Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence Douglas, Kemp and the board members said the courses Miss Carter asked for "would be given if there were qualified students who required them." The girl was denied admission to Washington-Lee High, the reply said, because of Section 140 of the Virginia Constitution, which "prohibits the teaching of white and colored children in the same school."

Admitting that perfect equality between any two systems is "impossible of achievement," the statement declared is the fixed and determined policy of the public school system of Arlington . . . to afford equal opportunity and facilities" for the two races.

The statement also denied the claim made in the suit that the dual school system is a violation of the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

Woman Asks Police Apology

Mrs. Elva Davis, 64-year-old great grandmother, yesterday filed formal complaint with the police department over the unwelcome hospitality of Ninth Precinct police.

Through a letter written by her daughter, Mrs. Cecil Rhodes, Mrs. Davis, widow of a Spanish-American war veteran, demanded a personal as well as public apology.

While waiting for a bus at 13th and H sts. ne. about 11 p. m., September 20, Mrs. Davis was ushered into a police patrol wagon.

Police have said they thought she appeared unable to take care of herself. Taken to the Ninth Precinct, she was sent home in taxi, collect.

Inspector Walter H. Thomas, who was acting police chief in Major Barrett's absence, said he had received the letter and that an investigation was being made by Inspector Clarence Talley to see if police were guilty of any "wrong-doing."

P-TAs Urged To Seek World Gain in Amity

Officers of local Parent-Teacher Associations were urged at their anual leadership conference yesterday to work toward world understanding by promoting programs that cultivate a friendly feeling toward other peoples and nations.

Mrs. Florence Cornell, principal of the Adams School, where the conference was held, told a group conference on world citizenship that P.-T. A no longer can limit their activities to their school, their community or even their nation.

She urged that they undertake the four-point action program on world understanding adopted by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Under this program PTA groups will conduct study groups on the United Nations, will encourage persons of other nationalities to participate in community affairs, will promote the observance of special days such as Brotherhood Week and World Good Will Day and will encourage the schools to place greater emphasis on a world community.

The PTA leaders also were urged at the morning session to work locally for legislation requiring pre-natal and pre-marital blood tests and for adequate protection of children against sex offenders.

In the afternoon the 275 women attending the conference heard Mrs. Albert L. Gardner, a vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, outline national PTA objectives.

Montgomery Gives Morgan $3600 Cut

Republican Commissioners Say Democrat Failed to Keep Regular Office Hours

The salary of Montgomery County Civil Service Commissioner Joe Morgan was cut from $4800 to $1200 annually yesterday by the county commissioners.

Morgan

The county commissioners said the cut was made because Morgan "has not adequately performed the duties of his office in that he has failed to keep regular office hours."

The cut becomes effective October 15. Morgan is a Democrat. The commission majority is Republican, the only Democratic member, Charles H. Jamison, being absent at yesterday's meeting.

The commissioners several months ago abolished the post of which was held by Mrs. Lillian Davidson, 6656 Hillandale rd., administrative assistant to Morgan, Chevy Chase, Md.

After that action, Morgan charged the dismissal was "political reprisal for my having insisted upon merit system rule in the emergency appointments of five county employes."

Morgan could not be reached for comment yesterday.

In other action yesterday, the commissioners adopted an ordinance prohibiting parking in front of all theaters except in incorporated towns, and authorized purchase of a $930 combination grader and a snow plow. The purchase will bring to four the total number of snow plows in the county.

A letter from Philadelphia authorities was read, expressing appreciation for cooperation from Montgomery County detectives in the recent arrest of George Alexander Neill, wanted in Philadelphia a charge of murder of his 11-year-old niece.

Jane A. Delano Post To Install Officers

New officers of the Jane A. Delano Post, No. 6, American Legion, will be installed by National Executive Committeeman Joseph J. Malloy in ceremonies Saturday at 8 p. m. at the legion clubhouse, 2437 15th st. nw.

New commander of the post, composed entirely of former Army nurses, is Miss Isabel B. Knight, succeeding Miss Grace Stokes. Other new officers are Mrs. Hannah A. Howard, senior vice commander; Miss Clair O. Hurley, junior vice commander; Mrs. Emily K. Eck, historian; Mrs. May Lee Reinoehl, chaplain; Miss Edna Spielman, adjutant; Mrs. Julia Long, finance officer, and Miss Grace L. Spoek, sergeant at arms.

Civic Groups Urged To Recommend Laws

The Montgomery County legislative delegation yesterday urged that civic organizations and other groups, now resuming regular monthly meetings, submit their recommendations for legislation as early as possible.

The delegation plans to hold public hearings in the county from time to time as suggestions are received, it was announced. The delegation or representatives will gladly meet with any citizens group upon their request, a spokesman said.

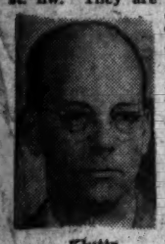
Lie Detector Tests Given Employes of Army Store

Questions Include, 'Have You Ever Taken Anything Without Payment?'

By Jerry Kluttz

Something new in Government is happening to workers in the Army's post exchange at 2127 C st. nw. They are being given lie detector tests. The employes there — civilian and military — are being asked these questions among others: Have you ever taken anything from the exchange without paying for it? Do you know of anyone who has stolen from the exchange?



Kluttz

All of which would strongly indicate that a shortage exists there. The exchange sells groceries and other supplies to military people.

However, the officer in charge insists that there is no shortage and that the tests are being given as a "precautionary measure." He added that the exchange has one of the best accountability records in the entire Army.

"We know," he explained, "that the average employe will take a 5-cent candy bar once in awhile. We're trying to find out if he takes one or two bars a year. Nothing serious is involved."

But a lie detector test for all the employes there is a rather serious step. Naturally, all the employes are concerned. The officer wouldn't reveal the results of the tests.

PEOPLE: Larry Richey has been appointed special assistant to Herbert Hoover, the chairman of the 12-man committee to study Government reorganization. He was No. 1 secretary to the former President when he was in the White House. . . Edgar M. Hoover, an economist whose specialty is productive capacity and investment, has joined the staff of the Council of Economic Advisors. He was on the teaching staff at the University of Michigan and he served with several Federal agencies. . . Also at CEA, Paul T. Homan, a former Cornell professor of economics, has replaced Don Wallace who has joined the Princeton faculty.

INTERIOR: Its 600-odd employes in Chicago will be moved back here starting this week-end. Housing still hasn't been found for about half of the employes. In fact, a number of officials and employes in Chicago say they won't return here unless homes are first found for them. The three Interior agencies to be moved here gradually are the Bureau of Indian Affairs, National Park Service, and the Fish and Wildlife Service.

PROGRAM: The American Federation of Labor will be asked to indorse a legislative program for Federal workers at its San Francisco convention next week. The program, to be presented by James Burns, AFGE president, includes:

An immediate cost-of-living pay raise; a more liberalized retirement system; a $10 daily travel allowance; immediate firings of the disloyal and unfit; a 5-day, 35-hour work week; a dismissal wage to people who are laid off in reductions of force, and the establishment of a board of appeals with employe members to settle employe grievances.

JOBS: The Army's Quartermaster General has openings for CAF-3 typists and stenographers, and CAF-2 tabulating machine operators. Get further information in Room 1-1007, Tempo A Building, 2nd and T sts. sw., or call REpublic 6700, Branch 71767 . . . And the Navy Ordnance Laboratory needs sewage disposal operators. Apply at the personnel office at the Gun Factory.

NOTES: At Federal Security, Arthur J. Altmeyer has been appointed acting assistant administrator . . . Civil Service has announced an exam for substitute postal railway clerk for veterans only . . . At Air Forces, Brig. Gen. John K. Gerhart is the new director of the legislative and liaison division.

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: Proposed changes in the efficiency rating system as revealed here Monday were confirmed yesterday by the Civil Service Commission. The commission said the changes had met with "enthusiasm" and hinted they would be formally ordered in a short time. The changes are:

1. To give at least a three-month warning to employes who are to be given either a "fair" or "unsatisfactory" rating and to tell those employes in detail how they can improve their work, and,
2. To abolish interim ratings.

The commission explained that tens of thousands of employes are being reassigned to new jobs because of the postwar shakedown. Under the present system they would have to be given interim ratings. The commission said many of these people would not be welcomed to their new jobs and it anticipates a tendency to give them poor ratings. It suggests they were given a "presumptive" rating of good or better until they are given sufficient time to prove themselves.

Woman Sobs On Stand in Custody Suit

A Washington woman who had been fighting her own daughter for custody of the latter's 6-year-old son yesterday broke down on the witness stand as she pointed to her daughter ond sobbed, "I can't testify against her."

Speaking of her daughter, the witness, Mrs. Clyde King, continued: "That child is as dear to me as Butch (the son) is."

Earlier Mrs. King testified that her daughter, Mrs. Edith Bessie Dye, 24, had "deliberately burned" the child with a cigarette, when she became irritated at some misbehavior.

Mrs. Dye, who is separated from her husband, left the child, Edward, in the custody of her mother and stepfather, when the boy was a year old.

She joined the Wacs in 1944 and sought to regain custody after her discharge last year. She had previously testified that she left her parents' home after her stepfather had made improper advances toward her.

Cross examination of the stepfather yesterday by Attorney James Toomey brought the admission from King that he and Mrs. King had lived together for a year prior to their marriage but that they occupied "two separate bed."

With King still on the stand, the hearing and recessed by Associate Justice F. Dickinsin Letts until today.

Print Shops, ITU Dickering In Baltimore

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—Union and management officials continued discussions behind closed doors tonight as the midnight deadline for expiration of the contract between Baltimore local 12, International Typographical Union, and a group of Baltimore printshops approached.

Negotiations declined to make statements when they emerged for a supper recess. It was understood before the meeting convened that discussions would center around wage clauses of a contract offered by the union.

Representatives of both sides had said they could not hazard a guess as to whether ITU members would work after midnight in the 22 print shops organized as the Graphic Arts League if an agreement were not reached.

Prelude to Court Test

The case has attracted much attention as a possible prelude to a court test of the Taft-Hartley law.

The International Typographical Union, as a means of getting around the closed shop provisions of the new labor law, adopted a no contract policy at its recent convention and decided to press instead for posted "conditions of employment" arrived at without formal negotiations.

The Baltimore local and the international subsequently were cited by the general counsel's office of the National Labor Relations Board. The office contended the union had been guilty of unfair labor practices by failing to bargain collectively with the league. It was the first action of its kind under the new law.

The local offered a contract Friday, with, it said, the approval of the international's executive board.

Union spokesmen said the contract's provisions square with terms of the Taft-Hartley law. On the other hand, some industry officials said the league could not sign the offered contract because of the new law.

Couple Gives Snake-Eating Snakes to Zoo

By Charles Yarborough
Post Reporter

A young Army doctor and his wife who went menagerie-gathering on their vacation, stocked the Zoo with rain-predicting monkeys and snakes-that-eat-snakes yesterday.

Dr. Randel

Two of their South American specimens—an infant spider monkey and an equally young ocelot—are still on the nursing bottle; too young to qualify for the Zoo.

Dr. Hugh Randel, 26-year-old George Washington University medical graduate of Ponca City, Okla., and his attractive wife, Gloria, strictly expedition amateurs, used native-language handbills to an advantage Frank Buck never dreamed of.

The following residents of the Guatemalan and Honduran jungles moved into the Zoo yesterday afternoon under the gleeful scrutiny of Dr. William Mann, the director:

Six howler monkeys, who roar before a rain and when they are mad, glad or indifferent—a fact which minimizes their worth as weather prophets.

Other Additions

A spider monkey, 16 turtles, three curassows (buzzard - like birds) and a jaguar.

A cannibalistic snake, the sumbador, which likes snakes better than any other food; five boa constrictors, seven or eight rattlesnakes and the dreaded fer-de-lance, one of the world's most poisonous reptiles.

Randel, due to report for duty at Randolph Field, Tex., Friday, trapped snakes as a hobby in Oklahoma and since acquiring medical knowledge, refers to them by their scientific names.

His wife, who says she never saw a snake outside of a zoo until she went on the safari, handled one of the boas yesterday as though she was trying on gloves. "I have no fear of them," she said. "I just never thought about it one way or the other."

Drove to Mexico

They rolled out of Washington July 21 in a 1939 Oldsmobile, drove through Mexico and shipped the car to Guatemala, where they picked it up and started driving again. They carried camping equipment and edded down in the car or by the roadside.

In the Santa Barbara department of Honduras they had their handbills printed, offering money for snakes and animals. Scattered over a 200-mile area in the jungle, the handbills produced. While doing some hunting on their own, one of the Honduran natives with them was killed when an enraged tapir rolled over him as he attempted to get to one of her young ones.

Nearest escape the Randels had came when they rounded a turn on the Honduran jungle road and faced a drunk native, wildly waving a machete. As they slipped the car past him, the machete took out a chunk of Oldsmobile.

The car was sold in Honduras and they came home by boat which rode out the last minor hurricane off Jacksonville, Fla.

Zoning Hearing Set In Prince Georges

An informal hearing on the proposed zoning ordinance and zoning plan for the Prince Georges County portion of the Maryland-Washington Regional District will be held tomorrow night at 8:30 at the Whitefield Methodist Church, Lanham, Md.

The hearing will be held for residents of the Lanham, Hynesboro, Seabrook, Glendale and Ardmore areas. It is sponsored by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to acquaint residents with the zoning plan.

Arlington Boy Is 36th Polio Case in Area

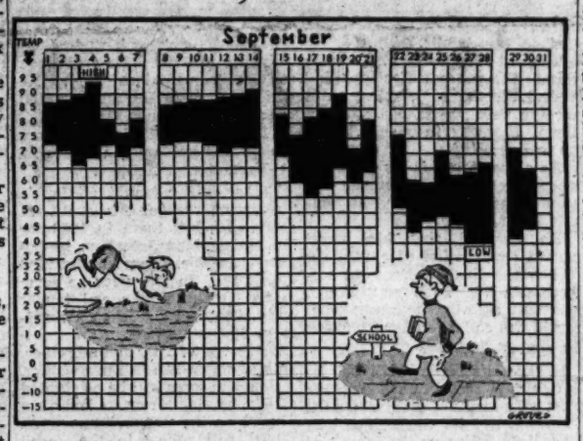
An 8-year-old Arlington, Va., boy yesterday became Greatr Washington's thirty-sixth polio case this year, the District Health Department announced.

The boy, whose home is in the 3000 block of South Buchanan st., is being treated at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the health department said.

So far this year, there have been 12 polio cases in the District, 24 in the suburban area, health officials revealed.

Last year at this time there were 22 cases in the District, 76 in the suburbs, they said.

September Was Either Too Hot Or Too Cold, Recount Shows



Black columns indicate highest and lowest temperatures each day in September for 24-hour periods ending at midnight

September suffered from a split personality. It was either too hot or too cold.

Washington's normal September temperature (according to 76 years of Weather Bureau records) is 68.1 degrees. This year, September ran 8 degrees above normal for 21 days, and abruptly fell to 8 degrees below normal for the last 9 days. The average temperature for this September, however, was close to normal, 70.6 degrees, say the figures compiled by Albert F. Nagrum, District weather observer.

High and low for the month were separated by 54 degrees. The mercury hit 94 on the 4th; dropped to 40 on the 27th and 28th. However, no records were broken. All time maximum temperature for September was 104 in 1881; minimum, 36, in 1904.

Cold from Canada

A cold front moving in from sponsible for the unseasonable cold snap. Volunteer weather ob- Canada in successive waves is reservers on the outskirts of the Capital recorded the mercury as low as 31 degrees—one degree below freezing.

In fact, the last nine days were cold enough to require twice as much fuel for heating buildings than during the same period last year. Heating engineers figure on lighting the furnace, o rturning on the steam, or starting the oil burner, when the mercury falls below 65 degrees.

Washington's much - publicized humidity was unusually high for September. The monthly average of 77 per cent was 5 per cent above the normal, and only 3 per cent below the recorded high of 80 in 1934.

Eleven Days of Rain

Rain was with us 11 of September's 30 days, three more than usual, with rainfall amounting to 3.70 inches, or .46 inches above normal.

But if the District had more than the regular amount of rain it also had more sunshine. The sun showed up 68 per cent of the time, as against 62 per cent for the alltime average.

There wasn't much of a breeze. Th average for the month was a velocity of 6.4 miles per hour, as against a normal velocity of 5.8.

According to the bureau record, Washington can expect an "Indian Summer" in October, only eight rainy days, lots of sun, and an average temperature of 57.8.

Blast Hurts 3 At White Oak Laboratory

Most seriously injured, according to a Navy spokesman, was Leo Gowan, a chemical engineer, of 6832 Shepherd st., Radiant Valley, Landover Hills, Md., who suffered the loss of his right hand and lacerations and burns of the face. He was admitted to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda.

Also injured were M. Gilkerson, 5501 Temple Hills rd., Temple Hills, Md., who suffered minor burns of both hands, and W. K. Smith, Beverly Hills, Alexandria, who received minor burns of the wrist and ankle. Gilkerson was admitted to the Naval Hospital and Smith was treated at the Naval Gun Factory Dispensary and then discharged.

A fourth man, Harold R. Joiner, 5703 36th ave., Hyattsville, Md., was treated at the scene for slight shock, according to the Navy.

According to the Navy spokesman, the blast occurred when experimental explosives on which the four were working were detonated prematurely. The explosion itself was "minor," the Navy said, and caused no damage to the laboratory.

School Faces Investigation

The Washington Post

Mrs. Joan Langlotz with her sons, Ronald, jr., 10 months, and

A complaint by Washington parents that one of their children had been tied in a bed at a nearby Maryland nursery school yesterday brought promise of an investigation by Maryland authorities.

State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson of Montgomery County said he would probe charges that the two young children of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Langlotz, 3221 Connecticut ave., were found in a hot room without ventilation at the nursery Monday.

Dawson said he understood Maryland law gave welfare authorities the right to open injunction proceedings to close the 5-year-old Hite Nursery School for operating without a license.

Welfare officials said it was their "understanding" that the school was not licensed. Miss Maude C. Hite, who operates the school on Rockville Pike, Montrose, told newsmen she did not know she had to have a license.

Langlotz, 22-year-old former Marine, and his wife, Joan, 18, put their two children, Wayne, 2, and Ronald, jr., 10 months, in the school in May. The mother had been ill since birth of the second child.

Mrs. Celia Peterson, Mrs. Langlotz's mother, said they visited the children Sunday; found both of them suffering from bad colds and said they would send a doctor out later. She said they were told the school would call a doctor.

Dr. G. V. Hartley of Rockville called to see the children Sunday night and said he was at first refused admittance, but "talked" his way in and found both children with bad colds.

Mrs. Peterson and the parents conferred with welfare authorities on Monday and had two policemen with them when they visited the school. The policemen and Langlotz went into the upstairs room which Langlotz said was heated to more than 90 degrees.

Miss Hite denied the child had been tied to the bed. She added the room had been painted about six weeks ago that it was "not too hot." She said the children were "underweight and undernourished" when they came to the school.

She said she had talked with her board of directors before refusing newsmen an opportunity to visit the school yesterday afternoon. However, she said the establishment would be open to them at 10 a. m. today "when school will be in session."

"There was a heavy smell of fresh paint and all the windows were closed. A heater was going," Langlotz said.

The official police report at the Rockville station says the "room was very hot" and that "Wayne was suffering from a high temperature. Ronald's eyes were puffed and he had a high temperature."

Sergt. Marion B. Dayhoff, one of the policemen, said later Wayne was tied to the bed with a cord, but the incident does not show on the official police report.

Dayoff said one end of the cord was tied to the bed; the other knotted around the boy's sleepers below the foot; but not around his leg or ankle.

The children were taken out of the school Monday and returned to the apartment where the Langlotzes live with Mrs. Langlotz's mother. Langlotz is an employe of a construction company and plans to enter the Columbia School of Music under the GI bill.

Admitted Drinking

Girl Slapper Dismissed From Force

The Commissioners yesterday dismissed Police Pvt. Alfred M. Burnell, whom a Police Trial Board found guilty Sept. 5 of drunkenness and slapping a waitress.

They took the action after listening to a lengthy appeal by Burnell's attorney, Fred Icenhower.

"Icenhower offered no new evidence," Commissioner John Russell Young said after the decision was announced. The attorney merely offered a plea for leniency, he revealed.

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett approved the board's recommendation, Young said.

"We felt the trial board was perfectly justified in its action," added Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young. "We considered the case very carefully."

The Police Trial Board found Burnell guilty on two counts of conduct unbecoming an officer, drinking in public and being under the influence of liquor.

In one instance, he was found guilty of slapping Miss Mary H. Pence, 1301 Ridge pl. se., when she refused to let him take her home August 8 from the Hillcrest Grill, 2714 Good Hope rd. se.

Another witness, Dudley Proctor, 5202 Jay st. ne., accused Burnell of cursing him after askink to look at his permit and registration card. Proctor, a Negro, also testified Burnell had made disparaging remarks about Negroes and that he "had the characteristics of a drunken man."

Burnell admitted having a drink in the Hillcrest Grill kitchen but declared he remembered none of the incidents.

D. C. Auditor Pays Visit to 4th Precinct

District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton and his chief investigator, Bernard A. Harrison, made a surprise visit to the 4th Precinct station late yesterday.

Pilkerton said he checked with two investigators auditing the precinct books to see if they were setting up a "control system," or complete check of the records, to be compared to corresponding records at Juvenile Court, as far back as July 1, 1946.

The Washington Post disclosed Saturday that the auditor's office had ordered an investigation of all funds in the precinct after learning that a shortage in the juvenile funds had been made up by men at the station. The story also revealed that Pvt. Oscar L. Fisher, Fourth Precinct station clerk, who committeed suicide September 18, was behind in collection turn-ins for three police benefit associations.

The auditor's examination is confined to accounts of the precinct's collateral funds and those funds deposited with the precinct for payment through Juvenile Court. Pilkerton said the audit should be complete by the end of the week but it would probably take several more days to check with Juvenile Court figures.

Meanwhile the Policemen's Association has taken steps to strengthen its dues collection system. At the time of his death Private Fisher was four months in arrears in turning in dues collections for the association.

Capt. John Fondahl, association president, hes sent to all precincts and officers of the organization mimeographed copies of proposed amends to the by-laws which will keep a closer check on dues collections.

The amendments will be put to vote at the association's next meeting October 21.

Inauguration Of Darden Set Today at Virginia U.

Former Governor And Congressman Will Be School's Third President

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 30.—Colgate W. Darden, jr., one of the most beloved men in this historic old Commonwealth, will be inaugurated here tomorrow as third president of the University of Virginia.

Darden, who has served his State in the Virginia House of Delegates, the United States House of Representatives, and as Governor, last year personally halted a strong movement to draft him for United States Senator to succeed Carter Glass.

He was selected as president of the university after a Nation-wide canvass last April, and took office late in June.

He will be formally inducted into office tomorrow in ceremonies before the combined faculties of the University of Virginia and Mary Washington College, and scores of distinguished educators.

Ceremony on Lawn

The inauguration ceremony is to be held on the lawn near the university rotunda, unless inclement weather necessitates holding it in Memorial Gymnasium.

The academic procession will begin forming at 10 o'clock at the rotunda and will march down the lawn to a removable stage, first constructed for the Virginia Music Festival.

Faculty and delegates to the inauguration will be seated on the lowest level of the terraced lawn, with students on the scond level, and other members of the audience above.

Edward R. Stettinius, jr., university rector, will induct Darden into office. Governor William M. Tuck will speak on behalf of the Commonwealth of Virginia. Principal address will be delivered by Sir Alfred Zimmern, emeritus professor of international relations at Oxford University.

Will Tell of Plans

Then Darden will mount the platform to tell of his plans for administration of the university, which he entered as an undergraduate 33 years ago.

But even before Colgate Darden, jr., enrolled at the university, his contemporaries had been sure he would make his mark in the world. When he was graduated with honors from Franklin High School in Virginia, the class prophet wrote of him: "One day, he will be governor of Virginia."

Before that time came he served in World War I as an ambulance driver and a Marine Corps combat pilot, pursued graduate studies which took him to Oxford on a Carnegie fellowship, returned to the United States where he was successively teacher, lawyer, banker, farmer, member of the General Assembly, Representative in Congress, and then, in the election of 1941, he was swept into office as Governor.

Refused to Serve

When members of the Democratic Nominating Convention last year in Richmond attempted to "draft" Darden for U. S. Senator, his popularity was so great he had to refuse flatly to serve if elected before his backers withdrew his name.

At that time, he gave as one of his major reasons for refusal to enter the political race his desire to "get acquainted with my family."

He was married on December 3, 1927, to Miss Constance S. du Pont of Wilmington, Del. They have three children, Colgate W., 3d, Pierre du Pont and Irene Sophie Darden.

The university's new president is a tall, spare man whose hair is just beginning to gray. He is soft-spoken. He moves with an easy grace and dignity. By some of his admirers, he has been called "just as plain as an old shoe."

He is expected to bring to the University of Virginia, his admirers say, the same calm insight which has distinguished his political career.

Apple Growers Gain in Control Of Codling Moth

Virginia and West Virginia apple growers are gaining greater control over the codling moth through the use of DDT at the expense of losing some control over other pests.

Department of Agriculture officials said yesterday apples grown in the two States will have fewer worms from the codling moth than three years ago. But the red banded leaf roller and orchard mites are on the increase.

"And I have the feeling some other pests will be bobbing up," one official said.

He explained that the DDT sprays are not effective enough against some pests like the leaf roller and the sprays presumably kill some other insects which are natural enemies.

The reduced number of cloding moths this season is attributed to the now extensive use of DDT and that fact that cool, wet seasons the last two years helped to hold the pest in check.

The intruder picked up a kitchen chair and struck Mrs. Richardson a glancing blow on the side of the head, knocking her to the floor, and then fled, leaving two guitars behind on the back steps, she told police.

Mrs. Richardson was treated at her home by a private doctor.

8 Million Hike Is Costs Seen By Transit Co.

Contract changes sought by AFL employes of the Capital Transit Co. would cost the utility $8,003,033, a management spokesman declared yesterday.

In the opening day of presentation of the firm's case to a three-man arbitration panel at Hotel Raleigh, J. E. Heberle, vice president, announced that the 35 per cent boost in wages sought by the union alone would boost company costs by $5,230,100. The other demands, including shift bonuses, additional vacations, sick leave and holiday pay, would bring the figure above the eight million dollar mark, he said.

Simultaneously, the arbitration panel was informed by Heberle that the net income of the company from July to December of last year totaled $159,413, compared with a $827,811 net income in the first six months of the year. An exhibit placed in the record by Heberle showed that operating expenses rose from $9,722,896 in the first half of 1946 to $10,599,752 in the second six months. This was attributed to wage boosts and increased manpower.

Heberle tangle dseveral times with O. David Zimring, union arbitrator, on tax figures included in the report. At the suggestion of Dr. George W. Taylor, former chairman of the old War Labor Board and impartial arbitrator in the local case, a further breakdown on tax deductions will be submitted.

Earlier, company officials testified the firm has spent 33 million dollars for modernization of equipment and other improvements in the last 13 years. Officials claimed $15,758,312, or 58.9 per cent, of the company's revenue this year will be consumed by payrolls. They estimated 59 cents out of every dollar earned by the firm goes into wages.

The hearing will resume at 9:30 a. m. today.

Wallace Decries U. S. Propaganda For 'Rotten' Aims

Boston, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Former Vice President Henry A. Wallace, in a stinging criticism of American foreign policy, charged tonight that "every propaganda technique known to man is being used to win support for basically rotten policies."

In a speech at Boston Arena he said: "It is quite obviously not official concern with civil liberties that troubles the men who direct our foreign policy—even if that is the banner under which they would mobilize us.

"Is it the restriction or civil liberties within the Soviet Union that concerns the men who are directing American foreign policy?

"I think not. . . . We embrace Peron. We arm other Latin-American dictators. . . . We let American-made arms suppress Indonesians without threatening the Dutch government."

Wallace said the peoples of Europe and Asia are "not fooled" by the United States.

"They know our interest in Greece and the Middle East is an interest in oil, not principles," he said.

Inflation May Be Sound, Wilson, GE Head, Feels

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP)—Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Company, said here today that the current inflation of prices "may not be as artificial as it looks," but that on the contrary "our price structure seems to be rather strongly based."

Wilson spoke at the dedication of two laboratories at the Locke insulator plant.

He said that "much American economic thinking . . . is . . . unduly influenced by the depression of the '30's," with the result that "temporary conditions" are regarded as "permanent trends," with "questionable overemphasis on security at the expense of opportunity."

12 Millions Asked for 'False Arrest'

By Howard L. Dutton
Post Reporter

Attorney John M. Holzworth, who has spent the last 20 days in District Jail, apparently unable to raise $1000 bond on bad check charges, yesterday filed suit asking 12 million dollars damages for false arrest.

Attorney General Tom Clark, two associate justices of the District Court and Robert F. Barrett, superintendent of police, were among those named as defendants in the suit filed in District Court.

Others named were: George Morris Fay, District Attorney; Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, who yesterday held Holzworth in $1000 bond for the grand jury; Curtis Reid, superintendent of the District Jail; William B. Jaynes, husband of Lizzie Jaynes, cashier slain in the Garden Tea Shoppe holdup 16 years ago; Assistant United States Attorney John Fihelly;

Others Named in Suit

The Statler Hotel, Washington; Associates Justice F. Dickinson Letts, and Alexander Holtzoff of District Court; Arthur Garfield Hays, New York attorney; American Civil Liberties Union; Roger Baldwin, head of the American Civil Liberties Union; the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York; the Shelton Hotel, New York; FBI Agent Joseph I. Cavanaugh and three other men who could not be identified.

The attorney asked two millions for himself and 10 millions in behalf of the "Yukon Engineering Co." of Minneapolis, Minn.

The suit asserted that Holzworth was in the process of completing a deal for the engineering outfit for the purchase of 600 miles of Canol Highway in Alaska, when he was arrested.

As a result of his arrest, Holzworth declared, the company lost 15 millions in profits and he himself lost $500,000 in fees.

He charged that his arrest caused cancellation of a contract to buy the Gustave Dore art collection in New York for $125,000. The suit asserted he could have resold the collection for $300,000.

Jumped N. Y. Bond

Holzworth's recent high bid for the Dore collection on September 8 set off a series of events. On the following day he was arrested by New York police on the complaint of the Hotel Shelton there that he had passed two worthless checks. Two other New York hotels also were pressing complaints.

The attorney jumped $100 bond in New York and came here to argue habeas corpus proceedings before District Court Justice Alexander Holtzoff, seeking the release of Thomas Jordan, who is serving a life sentence for the slaying of Mrs. Jaynes in the Garden-T-Shop murder.

He was denied the petition and five minutes later was arrested by the FBI, charged with passing a bad check for $25 at the Statler Hotel.

Reissig Plan Brings Smile From Young

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, yesterday dismissed with a smile and "no comment" a clergyman's suggestion that a "change of leadership is needed" in the District Government.

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, made the statement Monday while addressing the Washington Ministerial Union.

He said he hoped a movement would be started to obtain "adequate leadership" for the municipal government and the police department.

Commissioner Young's face broke into a broad, amused grin when reporters asked him to comment on Dr. Reissig's speech.

"No," he chuckled. "I don't have anything to say about that."

Asked if he knew Dr. Reissig, the Commissioner said he believed they'd been introdued at one time. "His name is familiar," he observed.

Young said Dr. Reissig had never contacted him personally, however, regarding police affairs.

Police Superintendent Barrett, when asked about Dr. Reissig's statement Monday, replied "no comment," but added: "Who is that guy?"

Knolls Area Given Street Repair Right

Prince Georges Board Makes Hampshire Into a Special Improvement District

Residents of Hampshire Hills Knolls won't have to do their own street repairing any more. The Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday made the area into a special improvement district.

The commissioners voted to include the old Special Improvement District 11, which is about one-third of Section 4, Hampshire Knolls, in a new Special Improvement District 32, which will include all of Section 4, numbering about 186 houses.

Knolls residents can vote to have their streets repaired and tax themselves for it, with approval of the County Commissioners, and more than 50 per cent of the property owners.

On August 3, the resident patched streets themselves under auspices of the Hampshire Suburban Citizens Association. At that time a petition was initiated to have the area placed on the special improvement district list.

At their meeting yesterday in Upper Marlboro, the commissioners also approved street improvements on Fowler Lane, I[illegible]sham Heights, as requested by r[illegible]dents. A letter from the State Comptroller advised that the State tax for 1948 will be 11.13 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Brice Bowie, circuit court clerk, reported collection of $1047 in license fees for beer, wine and liquor and hucksters licenses during August.

The commissioners again postponed action in the case of Policeman Arnett W. Cord, this time until next Tuesday, at his request. Cord had been granted a continuance a week ago to enable him to prepare his defense. Cord was suspended on charges by James Rogers, Cottage City auto salesman, that Cord had assaulted him and ordered his retention in jail after bond was offered. Rogers subsequently was found guilty of being drunk and disorderly and of assault.

Candidate Promises Juvenile Crime War

Arlington Republican To Ask Citizen Group Aid in Improvements

Oren Lewis, Republican candidate for Arlington Commonwealth's Attorney, yesterday promised, if elected, he will devote more attention to the county's juvenile crime.

He was one of seven Republican candidates for Arlington and Virginia State offices to speak at a luncheon of the Arlington Republican Women's Council.

If elected, he said he will call immediately a meeting of interested Arlington citizens' groups to survey the county's educational and recreational facilities.

He charged the Democratic incumbent in the Commonwealth's Attorney's office "has ignored the mounting problem of juvenile delinquency" in the county.

Talmage Wilcher, Republican candidate for State Senator, another speaker, told the Republican women that Democrats in the State's General Assembly, who vote as the Democratic Party decides, were "responsible" for what he termed "deplorable" conditions in the State schools, public welfare facilities and juvenile reform system.

Other speakers were Q. Ethel Clair and Frederic G. Dawson, candidates for the Virginia House of Delegates; Charles Orlando Pratt for trial justice; John Locke Green for county treasurer, and Clyde B. Stovall for commissioner of revenue.

County Treasurer John Locke Green, the only incumbent Republican, said his tax collections had been 97 per cent complete this year with reutrns "still coming in," and challenged the Democratic Party "to attack that record."

House of Delegates Candidate Frederick G. Dawson said Arlington had lost an estimated two million dollars in revenue due to a delay by Democratic incumbents in providing for a reassessment of private holdings there.

Greenbelt Audit Starts Today

An audit of public accounts in Greenbelt, Md., focal point of a proposed investigation of the town's administration, will be started today by a private auditing concern, Town Manager James T. Gobbel, revealed yesterday.

Gobbel, who has been accused by former Mayor George F. Bauer of mismanaging town funds, disclosed he had requested the audit prior to the meeting of the Town Council Monday night, when a "full investigation" of the mismanagement charges was authorized.

He said the firm had been engaged to examine the books in line with an established policy of having the accounts audited at least once a year.

The audit is scheduled to clarify Bauer's accusations that Goebbel had authorized payment of salaries in excess of amount approved by the Town Council for certain town officials. The town manager has vigorously denied the charges and has requested immediate action to either prove or disprove the allegations.

The Town Council also has called for a complete probe of the town's administration and has invited "all persons having charges to place against any town official" to file them with the council. October 10 has been set as the deadline for filing charges, which must be in the form of written, sworn statements.

The town's administrative setup also will be investigated by a committee composed of the five Town Council members and four other residents who have not yet been designated.

Man, 72, Asks Divorce, Charges Communism

Miami, Fla., Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Arthur M. Griffing, 72-year-old real estate broker, sued his wife for divorce today on the grounds that "she is a communist."

Griffing said his 40-year-old wife married him last Aug. 2 but on their honeymoon he noted signs of "growing frigidness" on the part of his bride. Later, Griffing said he was advised by his wife's uncle that the family was Communist and his bride did not deny the statement.

Altmeyer Urges Cut In Unemployment Tax

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 30 (AP).—Federal Social Security Commissioner Arthur J. Altmeyer suggested that the Federal unemployment tax for employers be cut from 3 to 2 per cent. Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach expressed hope Congress would bring the employment service and unemployment compensation programs under Labor Department administration. Both spoke at the annual meeting of the interstate conference of employment security agencies.

Woman's Year's Work On Home Ruined in Fire

Tucker, Ga., Sept. 30 (U.P.).—When Mrs. Nona Shelton's home burned down a year ago she set about building a new one all by herself, board by board, nail by nail and brick by brick.

This morning, Mrs. Shelton was feeding her chickens, which provide her livelihood. She turned back to the house and saw flames leaping from it. While neighbors restrained the anguished woman from plunging into the flames, her new house burned down and she lost everything.

Earthquake Shocks Rock Northeastern Iran

Tehran, Iran, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—A series of continuing earthquakes has rocked Khorassan province in northeastern Iran and has claimed an estimated 400 lives the government announced today.

Prof. Irwin Corey, who is about the funniest guy unhung, opens at Club Cairo tonight. If the "Perfessor" doesn't roll you off your chair, there something wrong—with you. Held over are those fancy young prancers, Purcell and Rey, the luscious Copacabana girls, Nancy Doran and Terry Allen.

Joan Brandon
At the Lotus

A BA-A-AD BOY, but sidesplitting, is Johnny Morgan, star of the Fiesta. He's vastly more the showman than he was two seasons ago at Delmonico's, knits the show together with a fantastic network of unpredictable songs and stunts. You'll like the mayhem he commits on "Managua-Nicaragua" . . . Gorgeous young critters all are the Florida Copa Girls, especially in their Balinese costumes with the gold pagoda hats . . .

The piano-organ duo of George Berg and Lee Potter at the Dubonnet Room is now a trio, the Debonnaires. Guitarist Hany Bryant has been added.

STRICTLY FLASH is the Lotus' new revue. Blond Joan Brandon, wearing half a dozen stunning gowns in the course of the show, presents Betty Little's boy and girl dancers, Lynn and Conway and the Barretts—all stepping and whirling with bright precision. Buddy Shaner's songs punctuate the dancing turn. Climax of the show is Joan's "Magic Bar" and a cocktail party on the house . . . Bandleader Al Sakol will give a party tomorrow night to celebrate his first year at the Lotus.

Adman Homer Humphreys gaped with delight at the Rainbow Room debut of Barbara Grant, lovely singing comedienne. For in Barbara he suddenly recognized the "Sweetheart of Maxwell Field" in 1944 when he was a GI there . . . Others gaped at Babs, too. Her figure incites open mouths and popped eyes.

THE HAPPY VISITORS. The Opti-Misses, 53 strong, lunched at the Muses, made speeches, had a big time exactly like the Optimist man of their families . . . Dining in the Pall Mall Room were R. W. Clark, vice president of the Northern Pacific Railway, and R. E. Smith, general freight traffic manager of the same line . . . Dr. Arturo de la Garcia, young 'n' good-looking, held hands across the table with Dona Mason in the King Cole Room . . . The Claims Men's Association relaxed and put claims in the back of their minds when they lunched at the Good Earth . . . Twenty leading execs of McMannes, big new store in the former City Club, celebrated its successful opening by going next door to Olmsted's and having a roast beef party . . . And whom did we see in the Balalaika but the Post's own Ida Jean Kain! She'd dropped in to wheedle a few beauty secrets outa Gypsy Markoff . . . In the Anchor Room was pretty Vicki Griffin, foil for Mike Hunnicutt on his television show.

Merry-Land has booked its Ko-Ko-Nuts for a full six months following an experimental period that has zoomed beyond the fondest hopes . . . Olivia Davis, pretty owner of the spot, recently snapped a bone in her ankle, has kept going regardless.

"HIGH BUTTON BOOTS." A weekend scurry to Philadelphia to see "High Button Boots.. (It goes into New York next week) resulted in hearing some song honeys sure to be picked up by the big bands. Among them are, "Next to Texas, I Love You," "Papa, Won't You Dance With Me?" and "I Still Get Jealous." Another beaut, "Too Soon," has been dropped from the show as tempo retarding. But it's being recorded by Sinatra.

OF MARRIAGES. Nat Conway, leader of the Shoreliners in the Neptune Room, believes in "Abie's Irish Rose" marriages. He's been married twice, both times to gentile girls. His first marriage was terminated by the death of his wife . . . Dolores Gilbert, pianist at Ciro's, was a French war bride of World War I. She met Sergt. "Bud" Gilbert at Versailles. They have a son and daughter in their early teens.

The intricate murals in Ruby Foo's have been retouched to their original lacy beauty by Lilo Darrish, chic New York singer. It was a labor of love. Lilo is the daughter of Mrs. Florence Pike, co-owner in Ruby Foo enterprises.

YOUR LISTENING DELIGHTS. The light sparkling dance music of Florian Zabach in the Mayflower Lounge could well be described as "champagne music." It's that effervescent . . . Bob Simpson plays the cream of the medium oldies at the Old New Orleans—things like "Stella by Starlight," "Almost Like Being in Love" and "As Time Goes By" . . . Paula Rae of Bob Knight's Band in the Lounge Riviera makes a cunning hillbilly when she sings "A-Feudin', A-Fightin' and A-Fussin'"

D. C. Utilities' Net Off 33% In 8 Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Plagued by fast-rising expenses, Washington's four utilities showed a 33 per cent slump in combined net income for the first eight months this year, compared with the like 1946 period.

Aggregate net income of the four was $4,581,311, against $6,550,787 in the first eight months last year.

Their recent August reports to the Public Utilities Commission emphasized the dropping income trend. The only favorable showing for the month was by Washington Gas Light Co., which reduced its August net loss to $110,789 from $119,708 last year.

Also stressing the trend was Monday's request of Cheaspeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for higher rates here. In May, Capital Transit Co. was granted higher fares, but so far this year income is still sharply lower than in 1946.

Cornel Wilde Adds New Skill

Hollywood.—Already famed as actor, student of Byron's life and collegiate fencing champion, Cornel Wilde also should become noted as an accomplished illustrator.

Few of his friends at Columbia Studio, where he costarred with Ginger Rogers in "It Had to be You," realized that in 1936 Cornell drew the illustrations for one of the most widely read textbooks on swordsmanship—"Fencing," by Joseph Vince.

Now Cornel has received word from A. S. Barnes & Co. of New York, the publishers, that they are preparing a reissue of the book, using again all illustrations Cornel did 11 year sago.

Estelle's Role Permits a Cold

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT TOWN: The summer-fall transition has given Estelle Winwood a brute of a cold, but the National's show goes on . . . Estelle's only got two scenes in "Lady Windermere's Fan," but they're lulus . . . Just the way she likes 'em nowadays . . . "The trouble with those old starring parts," she tells you, "is that you've got the weight of the world on your shoulders. Give me a small, smash part, good billing and I'm happy." . . . Up in Westchester her nearest neighbor and best friend is Tallulah . . . We bore each other to death, so we can be completely relaxed." . . . That's a wig she's wearing as the Duchess of Berwick; her own hair's reddish blond and you can pull it . . . People delight her, and we cooked up a phrase, "New friends are best." . . . She's mad for cards, says it's only in fun, but she's been known to bankrupt some of her best friends . . . Her first husband, by the way, was Arthur Chesney, still in demand as a London character actor . . . Which makes her the former sister-in-law of Hollywood's Edmund Gwenn.

THE MAN BEHIND that roving camera about town lately is John Demott, on from Hollywood to make background scenes for a coming flick . . . His job was tougher than you'd think . . . The picture's period is 1907 and he's had to find buildings and settings that date from then . . . He combed some official film libraries and found his best angles in our tree-graced parks.

ANNA MAY WONG slipped right through our fingers . . . Our date calendar was wrong and we were skulking in a downtown ginmill when we should have been bending elbows with Anna . . . But an impressive spy tells us she asked Anna how come she doesn't make any more movies in Hollywood . . . "Oh," smiled the villianess of a hundred movies, "out there whenever they need a Chinese actress, they call in Katharine Hepburn."

IRWIN SHAW isn't in town, but his first piece as drama critic for the New Republic is . . . Irwin explains why a playwright becomes a critic: "Being forced to see and evaluate perhaps 50 plays a winter and carefully to formulate and defend in public one's opinions 50 times, can only help a man when he sits down and writes 'Act I, Scene I' " . . . In our Stars and Stripes days we met an unmistakable New Yorker, a chap with a gift of gab whose personality was as gentle as his appearance was tough . . . It wasn't until some hours later that we discovered he was Irwin . . . Now, after his scrap last season with the New York critics over their reception of his "The Assassin," he's joined their circle . . . His pieces should make swell reading.

BARBARA COLE of Chevy Chase has a tough ethical problem. . . . A dancer in the new Tschaikowsky operetta, "Music in My Heart," she's also understudying a principal, Dorothy Ethridge. . . . The New York opening is tomorrow night and at the moment Miss Ethridge has laryngitis. . . . Barbara's problem is that she wants to wish Dorothy well, but she can't help dreaming about being just like those understudies in the movies who make good on opening night. . . . Barbara, daughter of Mrs. Woodlief Thomas, studied here with Lisa Gardiner and Mary Day and has appeared with Ballet Theater, "Song of Norway" and "Oklahoma!"

BEHIND THE BRUSHWORK is Red Skelton, approaching Gloria Grahame for a silent movie sequence in "Merton of the Movies," opening tomorrow on the Capitol screen

Lotte Lehman Signs for Film

Hollywood.—Lotte Lehman, internationally known singing star, has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and makes her film debut in "The Big City," starring Margaret O'Brien. In an outstanding singing and dramatic role, she will appear in a cast including Karin Booth, Danny Thomas and musical comedy star Betty Garrett.

A highlight will be her singing of three lullabies and "God Bless America," Irving Berlin's famous song. M-G-M's purchase of the right to use this song will further enrich the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of America, who already had netted $137,610.35 from it.

Title Change

"I Surrender Dear" is the new title for the Columbia musical headlining Gene Krupa and his Orchestra. Virginia Grey, Jack Leonard and Michael Duane are also featured in the Sam Katzman production. Arthur Dreifus directed the film, formerly titled "Glamour Girl."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Appointments Please Republicans

By Drew Pearson

Republican political strategists who winced every time the late Franklin Roosevelt linked the Republican Party with the big bankers, now aren't wincing anymore. In fact, Truman's recent appointments have brought broad grins to Republican faces, for no longer are they worried by that big business - banking bugaboo.

Barrows

Especially interesting to Republicans are Truman's latest appointments to the Air Corps. They include: Arthur S. Barrows, president of Sears Roebuck and director of the Illinois Continental Bank, as undersecretary, with Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, polo-playing chairman of Pan American Airways, as assistant secretary.

These appointments follow other banking appointments, notably General William Draper, former vice-president of Dillon Read, as Assistant Secretary of War, and James Forrestal, also of Dillon Read, as head of national defense.

New Big Business Champ

Latest Truman appointment to the War Department, Undersecretary for Air Arthur Barrows, has an equally interesting background. As a member of the U. S. Military Government in Germany, he went directly counter to the American policy of encouraging small German business. Barrows wrote a directive instructing U. S. military officers to "put pressure on German economic ministries to correct their procedures for the allocation of coal, iron, and steel so as to close out small, inefficient plants and to concentrate industrial production in the larger efficient plants."

Barrows wrote this despite the fact that it was the large German plants which made up the backbone of Hitler's war machine; and it was these big plants which all Allied policy has wanted suppressed. Top American planners have sometimes disagreed on other phases of German policy, but nearly always agree that small German business should be encouraged.

Fortunately, Gen. Lucius Clay stopped the Barrows directive before it could be sent out. But as undersecretary of one of the armed services, there will be very few with authority to put Mr. Barrows in his place.

Vaughan Gets Unification Itch

The contagious spirit of unification has caught the President's military aide, genial Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan. The man who got to know Truman only because he was a member of the Missouri National Guard would now like to merge the National Guard with the Army Reserve.

It is against regulations for an Army officer to make such a proposal out of channels, but big-for-his-boots General Vaughan brazenly set forth his ideas in an article for the Reserve Officers Magazine. At the last minute, however, he got cold feet and called it back.

Later, a friend in the reserves, Col. William Neblett, talked Vaughan into releasing it again, and the article will appear in the next issue of the magazine.

Vaughan will argue: "The present plan for our security force established a National Guard and a reserve, units of which are found in every local community throughout our country. The functions of these overlapping units are identical. How much more efficient these citizens' components would be if combined into one force, subject only to Federal control!"

U. S. Food Cost Doubles

Over at the mammoth Department of Agriculture building some studious-minded men employed by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics have just come up with some interesting figures that have a lot to do with your grocery bill.

The statisticians with the long charts and the slide rules now calculate that the Nation's food bill for 1947 will come to approximately 36 billion dollars. Back in the prewar years when prices were down and food was abundant, food cost the American people only about 13 billion dollars a year.

All the increase is not due to price rises alone, the economists say, because increased earning power has permitted us to eat better than ever before. However, price increases do account for more than half the increase.

To show just how much busier your grocer's adding machine is you can dip back into the record books to the depths of the depression, when the country only spent 11 billion dollars a year on food.

Shanghai Doctors Ridicule Report Of Octuplets

Shanghai, Sept. 28 (INS).— Reputable physicians in Shanghai today scoffed at a Chinese newspaper's report that a Chinese woman gave birth to octuplets.

A correspondent of the newspaper Shun Pao reported from the isolated village of Ishing, in Hopei Province, that Mrs. Chang Ping Wei, 27, gave birth to eight sons last June—seven of whom were said to be living.

Medical authorities in Shanghai pointed out that the correspondent solemnly declared that Mrs. Chang carried the children for four years before their birth. They also pointed to the statement that the multiple births occured last June, with no corroborating report since that time.

Attempts to investigate the story were unavailing, because the village is deep in Communist-held territory.

The Potomac River was called "Co-hon-go-roo-ta" by the early aborigines, "Espiritu Santo" by the Spanish, "Elizabeth" by the early English explorers, and the "St. Gregory" by the pilgrims of George Calvert, Lord Baltimore.

Eight Drunks Receive Stiff Sentences

Eight more "chronic drunks" were thrown "the book" when they appeared before Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott yesterday.

Judge Scott, who on Monday jolted 19 "repeater" drunks with maximum sentences, gave five continued offenders the maximum sentence of a $500 fine or 180 days in jail yesterday.

The five were Frank Riley, 52, no fixed address; Lewis H. Putnam, 45, no fixed address; Eddie Stewart, 44, 1207 M st. nw.; James H. Bohanon, 46, 415 9th st. nw., and John W. Hickey, 50, 460 I st. sw.

Riley's record, examined by Judge Scott, required five and a half pages of single-spaced, typewritten copy. It dated back to 1906.

These were some of the other stiff sentences handed out by Judge Scott yesterday:

Claude Green, 49, 418 1st st. nw., $300 or 90 days; Skari Ragnar, 47, 3409 M st. nw., $200 or 60 days, and Henry Bethea, 38, 430 D st. nw., $200 or 60 days.

In all, 36 drunks paraded before Judge Scott yesterday as compared with 59 on Monday. However Monday's list included those arrested Saturday and Sunday.

Public Works Spending Up 43% in Year

State and local public works construction reached nearly a two-billion-dollar-a-year pace in the first half of 1947, the Federal Works Agency reported yesterday.

New construction projects started by these governmental divisions, exclusive of residential building, were valued at 954 million dollars for the six months. This represented a 43-per-cent increase over the 668 million dollars awarded during the same period last year.

Forty States and the District of Columbia recorded increases in their public works contract totals over the corresponding six months of last year, according to FWA.

The values of all State and local public contracts (including awards for Federal air highway projects) for the first six months of 1947 in the Washington area are listed as:

District of Columbia, $8,563,000; Maryland, $32,989,000; Virginia, $24,040,000.

District of Columbia, $3,087,000; Maryland, $15,745,000; Virginia, $17,418,000.

District of Columbia, $7,877,000; Maryland, $8,289,000; Virginia, $21,645,000.

FWA forecast a further gain for the third quarter of this year. Preliminary figures indicate that contracts let during July, August and September will be 30 per cent greater in value than those awarded for the preceding three months, it said.

Increases ranged from 258 per cent for the State of Washington to 1 per cent for Nebraska.

In connection with the report, Thomas H. MacDonald, Commissioner of Public Roads in FWA, asserted that large cities face "stagnation and decay" unless they start now to do something drastic about traffic congestion.

Urban express highways "developed with vision" will go far toward preventing this, he said. The question for large cities to consider, he declared, is not whether they can afford expressways, "but how can they possibly afford to be without them."

Justice Proctor, Mrs. Coleman Married at St. Alban's Rectory

JUDGE AND MRS. JAMES M. PROCTOR
She is the former Mrs. Elizabeth Barry Coleman

District Court Justice James M. Proctor, 65, and Mrs. Elizabeth Barry Coleman, 49, former manager of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, were married yesterday in a quiet ceremony at St. Alban's Rectory.

The rites were performed at 11 a. m. by the Rev. Charles B. Austin, pastor of West Washington Baptist Church, with only members of the immediate families present.

The couple left for a trip through the South. After their return, they will make their home in the Kennedy-Warren apartments, where Justice Proctor has lived for some time.

Justice Proctor, whose first wife, Mrs. Mary Harrington Proctor, died September 26, 1946, has two sons, James M. Proctor, jr., a practicting attorney here, and Edward A. Proctor of Detroit.

A one-time chief assistant United States attorney for the District, Justice Proctor was appointed to District Court in 1931 by President Hoover.

Scottish Miners Return

Edinburgh, Scotland, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Reports from Scottish mining areas indicated a total resumption of work today following a strike in 43 Scottish mine fields by 13,000 miners. It was estimated that 80,000 tons of coal were lost because of the strike.

GOP Majority Plans New Try To Cut Taxes

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 30 (AP).—The Republican majority will make another effort to lower taxes when the Eighthieth Congress reassembles, Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.), said tonight.

Speaking before an open meeting sponsored by the Shawnee County Republican central committee, Martin declared in a speech prepared for delivery:

"We hope then the people will have convinced some of the Democratic members who put loyalty to the President first that the Nation wants taxes reduced."

He predicted that the Taft-Hartley labor law would "go down in history as a great charter of liberty for the working men and women of America."

Of congressional committee meetings called for early November at the request of President Truman for consideration of aid to Europe, Martin said he hoped "the President will have specific and detailed information concerning the requirements this Nation will be asked to meet, for what purpose the funds are to be allocated and how the Administration proposes to supervise the expenditures.

The House leader praised the achievements of the present Congress and asserted that it had stopped "the steady march of America toward bankruptcy, and some form of centralized government—probably state socialism."

Nine Hunters Wounded

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 30 (AP). At least nine West Virginians had been wounded in accidental shootings up to today in the State's 1947 squirrel season which opened last Saturday morning. The latest reported victims included:

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

McGrath Sees Party Behind Him as Leader

Senator J. Howard McGrath scoffed yesterday at reports of Democratic disunity over his nomination as the party's national chairman, while minor rumblings of discontent made themselves heard.

The Rhode Island legislator told International News Service that "I don't believe any friction will occur."

"I am convinced," he added, "that the party is 100 per cent behind the recommendations of Mr. Hannegan and President Truman that I become Democratic national chairman. Anything else I have to say will have to await my taking office. I am not officially chairman yet."

McGrath was proposed Saturday by Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, who announced his resignation in a letter calling a meeting of the committee for October 29. The Rhode Islander's selection "with the indicated approval of President Truman" is expected to be confirmed then.

At Norwalk, Conn., however, John Cahill, chairman of the Massachusetts State Democratic Committee, openly opposed McGrath as "too busy in the Senate" to give the necessary time and thought to the national chairmanship. Cahill proposed instead that the job be given to Federal Judge James McGranery of Philadelphia.

As to that, McGrath said he didn't believe any effort would be made to force McGranery into the chairmanship. He pointed out that he had worked closely when he was Solicitor General, with McGranery, then an Assistant Attorney General, and described him as "a close friend and a wonderful fellow."

State Chairman Gene Cervi of Colorado expressed regret that a Westerner had not been chosen. He was "amazed," he said, that "Washington does not realize that the salvation of the Democratic Party is in the West" and added that he and other Western leaders had never heard of McGrath.

A few other State leaders were lukewarm toward the chairman-designate, largely because they don't know him personally. They indicated, though, that they had nothing against him and would not oppose him publicly.

Yanks' 5-Run Inning Beats Bums, 5-3

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

New York, Sept. 30.—Not since Boy Wonder Bucky Harris outwitted the late John McGraw in the seventh game of 1924, has the World Series witnessed as audacious a piece of managerial strategy as was unfolded in the Yankees' victory over the Dodgers today.

POVICH

Today it was 23 years later, and it was Harris again in the role of sensationalist. Not the eager-faced kid who managed Washington back there in the 20s, but a leathery, seam-lined 50-year-old Harris who still demonstrated that he was not wedded to orthodoxy.

You remember that 1924 business. How Harris, in a bold attempt to get McGraw's left-handed hitters into the Giants' lineup, started a right hander, Curly Ogden, and then withdrew him after Ogden pitched to one batter. Then it was that Harris trotted out Left Hander George Mogridge who had warmed up secretly under the stands. And how the Senators won that ball game and the World Series.

THE YANKEES had Frank Shea in there pitching, and in the fifth inning the Yankees went in front, 2 to 1, after getting to Brooklyn starter Ralph Branca who was wild. The bases were still full of Yankees, and nobody was out, and now it was Shea's turn to bat.

But the Yankee walking up there with a bat wasn't Shea. It was somebody wearing No. 6. "Bobby Brown batting for Shea," the loud speakers announced. Ye gods, was the reaction in the grandstands. Harris was lifting Shea for a pinch hitter, honest.

It didn't make sense to a lot of people. You don't take out your best pitcher when he's in front 2-1, and pitching good ball. The Dodgers had made only two hits off Shea in five innings, and one of those was the drooping Texas Leaguer by Dixie Walker that had produced their only run.

Shea wasn't hurt at all. The Yankees weren't desperate, according to the scoreboard which showed them in front. And granting tell that Harris was reasoning. The bases were still full of Yankees thing except hit into a double play, the Yanks would still have the bases filled with only one out. This wasn't the time to take your best pitcher out of the ball game, you'd always been taught.

BUT HARRIS DID. The heck with traditional tactics. You could Well, the Yankees did get some more runs, two more, and they and some more runs would be nice, might sew up the ball game. Now was the time to get 'em if the Yankees could, and Shea isn't much hitter. Anyway, he had Joe Page warmed up, and Page is the best relief pitcher in the baseball business.

Well, the Yankees did get some more runs, two more, and they came out of the inning with a 5-1 lead. Pinch Hitter Brown walked and eventually Tommy Henrich was up and he singled two Yankees home. That 5-1 lead was a wonderful thing to have at that stage of the game.

It worked out great for the Yankees. But Harris was putting himself on the spot. He could have been the goat of the opening game if the Dodgers rapped Page hard enough to win it in the late innings. They did rap him pretty well, at that, and scored two runs to cut the Yanks' margin to 5-3. It was Bucky Harris gambling again in a World Series that he was right, and doing very well at it.

If the opening game of the series developed one fact, it is that Jackie Robinson is a handy guy to have on your side. The first Negro player ever to figure in a World Series was giving the Yankees a horrible time of it all day, and the fact that he went hitless could not obscure the threat he is in the Dodger lineup.

In four times at bat, he drew two walks, flied out and grounded out, but it took a dazzling play by Shortstop Phil Rizzuto to keep a hit away from Robinson in his third appearance. He stole second base in the opening inning as if it was duck soup. His presence on first after walking in the third inning, had the Yankee battery jittery, and Shea threw four times to the bag to keep him close. Eventually, Shea balked and Robinson was waved to second.

Robinson's base running style is novel, in that he takes perhaps the longest lead off first that any player ever attempted. That's because he can scramble in either direction, no doubt. Caught between bases on Reiser's grounder in the first inning, he had the Yankee infield in an uproar before being run down and tagged, and Reiser raced all the way to second. The Yankees are alerted to him all right. After the game, Manager Bucky Harris said, "We've got to keep that guy off base." That alone is a nice order.

73,365 See Opener, Set New Record

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The New York Yankees broke out of the shackles of Ralph Branca's no-hit pitching after four innings today, and mauled the Brooklyn Dodgers for five runs in the fifth to win the opening game of the World Series.

By a score of 5 to 3, the Yankees beat the Dodgers before a record-breaking crowd of 73,365 that was sardined into big Yankee Stadium, with standees and aisle-sitters 7000 deep.

On only four hits, the Yankees won the ball game, packing three of their blows into that fifth inning to wipe out a 1-0 lead held by Branca and shatter what had been Brooklyn domination of the contest.

And with the opening victory to their credit the Yankees rocketed into the role of 1 to 3½ favorites to win the series that resumes tomorrow with Allie Reynolds on the mound for New York and Southpaw Vic Lombardi pitching for Brooklyn.

Young Shea Gets the Win

Rookie Frank Shea, a Pacific Coast Leaguer a year ago, was the winning pitcher, but his was a brief five-inning role, ended suddenly by a startling piece of strategy by Yankee Manager Bucky Harris, who pulled him for a pinch-hitter, with the Yankees leading 2-1.

It was the Yankees' three outfielders, Joe DiMaggio, Johnny Lindell and Tommy Henrich, who struck the big blows that collapsed Branca and the Dodgers in the fifth inning. DiMaggio opened the inning with the Yankees' first hit of the day. Lindell swatted a two-run double. Henrich pasted a two-run single. One Yankee run was forced across the plate.

Not a Yankee had reached base for four innings, and four of them had struck out against Branca's fast ball. The Dodgers, with a 1-0 lead and Jackie Robinson cutting fancy capers on the bases, were riding high and there was joy among the Brooklyn supporters.

Then the Yankees Strike

And then the Yankees lashed back. Joe DiMaggio opened the inning with a one-base smash that Shortstop Pee Wee Reese grabbed far to his right, but too far for a play. It was the beginning of the end for Branca.

Jittery, he lost control and walked George McQuinn without getting a strike over the plate. On his next pitch, he hit Bill Johnson on the arm, filling the bases with none out.

Johnny Lindell looked at one more of Branca's pitches and then walloped the next on a line into left field, perilously near the foul line, but fair. It was a two-bagger. DiMaggio and McQuinn scurried home. Johnson raced into third.

Nobody out yet.

Brooklyn coaches discussed the situation with Branca, but there was no move to relieve him. When Phil Rizzuto drew a walk to refill the bases, there was new activity in the Brooklyn bullpen, however.

Unusual Move by Bucky

Now Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees made a bold move. Yankee Pinch Hitter Bobby Brown moved into bat for Shea. Harris was pulling his pitcher in a bid for more runs and a big inning, despite the fact the Yankees were leading, 2-1, nobody was out and Shea had pitched splendid two-hit ball to that point.

The 73,000 fans were murmuring at this unorthodox move, but it was not until Branca was wide with two balls to Brown that Brooklyn removed him. Big Hank Behrman, another fast-balling right-hander, took up the pitching and walked the third Yankee run across with a pass to Brown.

The Yankee lead stalled only temporarily at 3 to 1. Jackie Robinson made a smart stop of Stirnweiss' drive and threw Lindell out at the plate for the first out of the inning, but Tommy Henrich delivered handsomely for the Yanks. A sharp single past Reese into left field brought Rizzuto and Brown home with the fourth and fifth runs of the inning.

That was all the Yankees got. Against Behrman and Reliever Hugh Casey they were held to one hit for the rest of the game.

Joe Page took over the Yankee pitching after the fifth. The Dodgers rapped him for four of their six hits, and made it close with single runs in the sixth and seventh, but Specialist Page held 'em hitless in the last two innings to make the victory stick.

It was a sorry finish for the Dodgers, who had grabbed a 1-0 lead off Shea in the opening inning and were taunting the

Shotton's Comment Is: "We Got Beat"

By Ted Smits

Yankee Stadium, New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Manager Burton Edwin Shotton of the Dodgers put his hands on his hips, wiped the smile off his face, took so much time it seemed he hadn't heard the question, and then said in that sharp, country-boy voice of his:

"We got beat. What is there to say but that."

That was at the door of the Dodger dressing room today. When he had come out of the dugout, the last of a long line of solemn, silent men, he was smiling.

Later, after the Dodgers had held a brief, private review of what had happened, he was smiling again. He is not a man who discourages easily.

"If the curve ball that Johnny Lindell hit in the fifth inning (with the bases loaded) had been outside the foul line instead of inside we'd still be in the ball game," said Shotton.

Just Made Bad Pitch

"I would have liked to win it, certainly. But we aren't going to fold up. I'll be back here tomorrow.

"Nothing happened to Ralph Branca (who had pitched flawless ball up to the fifth inning). He just got the ball in the wrong place. That's because he's human. He didn't want to get it there, you know.

"If they get the bases full and hit the ball between you they get runs. I don't know any remedy for that."

As for Branca, he had been pale as a ghost and sweating before the game started. For four innings he had set the mighty Yankees down in order. Then the roof fell in.

Afterwards, with his color back and a faint smile on his lips, he said, no he wasn't scared, and that all he was thinking about was to "get that ball game over with."

No, He Wasn't Scared

Someone thought maybe the wind bothered him.

"I didn't even know which way the wind was blowing. You don't think I was scared, do you?"

No one did.

But Dixie Walker offered expert, outfielder testimony on the wind.

"It was playing the fool with those balls," he said. "It was the worst you'll ever see it."

"Aw, we had to play it conservative," said Jackie Robinson. "That's when we got four runs behind. That's not our kind of game.

"But we're going to keep right on running unless they get someone in there with a better arm," he added.

The pointed reference was to Yankee Catcher Yogi Berra, who before the game said he was on to Robinson's ways. He may have been, but Robinson stole second no sooner than he got on base in the first just to get the feel of things.

Everyone managed to read one telegram. It was stuck up with adhesive tape on a mirror. It was addressed to Shotton and said without benefit of punctuation:

"I will be pulling for you Burt and I am sure you will win the series best of luck."

It was signed "Leo."

Bucky Gambles For Big Inning

By Austin Bealmear

Yankee Stadium, New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—"I could have been right or I could have been wrong," said Manager Bucky Harris today after his New York Yankees had turned back the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-3, in the first game of the World Series, "But I took that chance."

The Yankee skipper was recalling the fifth inning when he lifted his starting pitcher, Rookie Frank Shea, for a pinch hitter in the midst of the Yankees' scoring spree, although Shea had given the Dodgers only two scratch hits in the first five frames.

"I was playing for the big inning," Harris disclosed jubilantly in his dressing room deep under mammoth Yankee Stadium.

"There was nothing wrong with Shea, but I took him out to keep the inning going. I knew Joe Page could handle it the rest of the way."

It's Reynolds Today

As Harris named Allie Reynolds, a right-hander with a 19-8 record, as his starting pitcher tomorrow, the Yankees went calmly but happily about the business of dressing and accepting congratulations from clubhouse visitors, including Club President Larry MacPhail, who wore a grin from ear to ear.

"That was the big one," said George McQuinn. And his teammates echoed his sentiments in one form or another.

What surprised the Yankees most was the sudden collapse of Ralph Branca after handcuffing the American League champions for four innings.

"I was amazed at the way Branca blew," said Joe DiMaggio. "He was so good at first you couldn't see what he was throwing."

There was some grumbling about umpires' decisions which went against the Yankees, but most of it was lost in the jubilation over the outcome of the game.

Yes, Robinson Is Fast

Catcher Yogi Berra was busy explaining how it happened that Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese stole second on him.

Reynolds said he felt "swell." He hadn't been told he would pitch tomorrow.

"I sure hope it's me," he said.

W. Va. Bans 'Swampers'

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 30 (AP).—Attempting to prevent the possible spread of swamp fever to West Virginia racing centers, stewards at Wheeling Downs ruled that no horses which have raced in New England at any time this year would be permitted to be stabled here or appear in races at the track.

Bums Turn to Vic Lombardi Today; Yanks Use Reynolds

By Bob Considine

New York, Sept. 30 (INS).—The old Brooklyn slogan, "wait'll next year," was revised today to "wait'll tomorrow."

But this is said to have had nothing to do with the fact that he readily signed a Brooklyn contract when it was offered to him.

Vic won 12 games this year for Brooklyn. Reynolds won 19 for the Yanks.

Jackie Robinson, first Negro ever to play in the World Series, got what amounted to an ovation from the fantastic crowd as he stepped to the plate. Frank Shea, a little confused by it all, promptly walked him. Robinson just as promptly stole second with a stirring burst of speed and a driving slide.

Brokly nfinally extracted a measure of revenue out of Tommy Henrich—the man who once struck out and yet reached first base to start the incredible rally with which the Yanks beat the Dodgers in the critical fourth game of the 1941 series.

Tom Dewey was on hand, too. But Bob Taft was in Moscow. Moscow, Idaho, that is.

There appeared to be some suspicion that the fellows who showed up, properly dressed in Yankee uniforms, were imposters—for five innings.

The Yanks made only three hits during the course of scoring those five runs in the fifth inning. The Dodgers returned the compliment by making three hits off Page in the sixth—but they were lucky to get even one run.

The longest hit of the day was an out. Joe DiMag came up in the eighth anad, though he was batting into the teeth of a gale, hit one which Carl Furillo caught—on the dead run—in front of the 415-foot sign in front of the bleachers in left center.

'Gator, Trusdell Wrestle Tonight

A 12-foot alligator, with Tuffy Trusdell, well-known Dixie grappler, as an opponent, will occupy the spotlight in tonight's wrestling show at Turner's Arena. They are returning here by popular demand, having staged an exhibition in August, with Tuffy body slamming the reptile into defeat.

June Byers, pretty Dallas (Tex.) wrestler, ranked No. 1 challenger for Champion Mildred Burke's title, will meet Mae Weston of St. Louis in another feature attraction.

Babe Sharkey and big Ben Morgan will clash in an added attraction. Two 30-minute matches find Red Ryan opposing George Macricostas and Henry Kulkovich tackling Ed Parquette, the first at 8:45.

Jury's Out: Series Halts Cabbie's Trial for 3 Hours

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—The jurors stirred restlessly in their chairs, gazed out the windows, frequently consulted their watches.

They paid little attention to testimony in the assault trial of Taxi Driver Pete Girolye in the Brooklyn County Court. Finally, Judge Samuel Leibowitz became annoyed.

"Judge," he said, "it's pretty hard to keep concentrating when it's such a big day in Brooklyn."

Leibowitz shook his head, a smile hovering on his mouth. He declared a 15-minute recess. He went to his chambers and called a television dealer. Within 20 minutes, a set had been delivered to his private library.

THEN he returned to the courtroom and asked the jurors if they like to take time out to watch the world series. They whopoed their joy and filed out of the courtroom.

"Does that mean me, too, your honor?"

Some three hours later, a saddened group of jurors returned to their seats. The Dodgers had lost to the Yankees.

Graziano Now Threatened With Ban by N. B. A.

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 30 (INS).—President Abe J. Greene of the National Boxing Association concurred today with a ruling by the the State of Illinois barring from the ring any boxer who has received a dishonorable discharge from military service.

This threatens Rocky Graziano, world's middleweight champion, with being counted out in some 20-odd additional States. But Greene declared the ban will not be placed in effect until the War Departmest confirms that Graziano's dishonorable discharge from the Army still holds good.

He said:

"Newspaper reports quote Graziano's manager as saying that he has official papers to show that in some manner the boxer was cleared of a dishonorable discharge. We shall check with the War Department to get the true story of the entire matter. If Graziano can establish his innocence, he will get every opportunity to do so."

Colts Tackle 49ers Sunday

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts will be out to even up an early season defeat at the hands of the San Francisco 49ers when they meet the West Coast team Sunday in Municipal Stadium in an All-America Professional Football Conference contest.

The Colts were on the losing end of a 14-7 score in San Francisco September 14.

Since then, Baltimore has been strengthened by the acquisition of Al Madar, former University of Michigan end, and Buzz Trebotish, former 49er fullback.

Jones to Box Roache Here

Herbie (Biff) Jones, the 19-year-old southeast southpaw, who came close to upsetting highly-rated Johnny (Honeyboy) Bratton this summer at the ball park, will commence his 1947-48 indoor operations at Turner's Arena next Monday night, meeting "Whistling Willie" Roache, well known Wilmington, Del., colored featherweight, in the feature 10-round attraction.

This is a stiff assignment Matchmaker Gabe Menendez has lined up for young Jones. Roache will be fighting in the Arena for the first time, but his record throughout the country shows that he has been up with fighters like Champion Willie Pep, who was given a scare for 10 rounds; Sal Bartolo of Boston, who fought "Whistler" in a 15-round out for the NBA title; Ike Williams, the present lightweight ruler, and Phil Terranova, former featherweight ruler.

Anacostia Eagles, the Western Division unlimited league pacesetter, simultaneously will invade Edgewood field to oppose Potomac Post No. 40.

Other Sunday Metro League games set for 2 p. m. follow:

Death Cheats 'Luckiest Kid' Of Series Thrill

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—"Gee, Joe, I'm the luckiest kid in the world," said 8-year-old Patty Ciccarelli when Joe DiMaggio walked into his hospital room.

That was three weeks ago. The Yankee star called on Patty because the little boy was dying of leukemia, fatal blod disease, although Patty didn't know it.

A radio store heard his story heard his story and installed a television set in the hospital room so the little boy could follow his idol, Big Joe, on the screen.

Today was to have been Patty's big day—the World Series with Joe and the Yankees against the Dodgers.

But Patty died at 5 a. m.

Ex-Big Leaguer Dies

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 30 (AP).—Edward H. Walker, 73-year-old former pitcher for the Cleveland Indians and Southern Association hurler, died today at his home after a long illness. Walker pitched Cleveland in 1901 and 1902.

Cubs Bring Up 12 Farmhands

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs' rebuilding program for 1948 was in full swing today with the purchase and recall from minor league affiliates of 12 players.

Prize catch in the "new blood" Cub formula apparently was Cliff Chambers, a nifty lefty who notched his twenty-fourth win against nine defeats, as Los Angeles defeated San Francisco, 5-0, in a play-off for the Pacific Coast League crow nlast night.

Four days after releasing veterans Stan Hack, Claude Passeau, Bill Lee and Billy Jurges, the Cubs reclaimed Chambers and three other Los Angeles chattels and bought outright eight players from six different minor league clubs.

Outfielder Clarence Maddern, whose grand-slam homer featured the Los Angeles title triumph last night, Pitcher Bob McCall and second sacker Lou Stringer, were the other Angels recalled.

They purchased Pitchers Ben Wade, who had a 17-11 record for Nashville and led the Southern Association in strikeouts with 139; Don Carlsen and Jess Dobernic of Los Angeles; Howard Auman (20-14) of Macon in the Sally League; Lee Anthony (14-14) of Tulsa in the Texas League ;and Bob Kelly, free agent from Cleveland, Ohio.

Little Delaware, Unbeaten in 32 Games, Big Threat to Terps

Little Lou In Big Role With Hoyas

LOU MILLER, the little man they didn't know was there, will be very much in evidence in the Georgetown backfield Friday night when the Hoyas open their home season against Fordham.

Lou is a half-pint halfback who came to the Hilltop from Baltimore Loyola High, where several of his eight brothers now play football. They can thank Lou for even being allowed on the field.

"When I first went out for the team at Loloya," says Lou, "I neglected to mention the fact around home. Since there are so many of us, Mom didn't miss me all through practice and for most of the season.

"It was lucky she didn't. She's always been afraid of football and probably would have forbid me to play, if she had known about it.

"ALONG ABOUT MID-SEASON she finally spotted a picture of me in the local paper's sports section. You never heard such a fuss.

"Fortunately, my Dad was once a pro footballer himself, and he came to the rescue. Now Mom not only approves of my playing, she never misses a game."

THAT PICTURE Miller refers to was occasioned by his sparkling play with Loyola when he led the Blekefield eleven to two Catholic championships and a State title.

Hoya Coach Jack Hagerty admits to being much impressed with the speed and drive shown by the 5-foot-6-inch, 165-pounder in pre-season drills and in the Georgetown opener against Wake Forest last Saturday.

"Hope Mom approves of my home season debut against Fordham, Saturday," grinned Lou.

Maryland Is Toughest Foe to Date

Big Maryland university, safely over its opening hurdle of the 1947 football season with a 19-13 win over South Carolina, may bump into a David in little Delaware University at College Park Friday night.

The Blue Hens from Delaware will carry the longest unbeaten streak in college football into the Maryland game—32 games without a loss and 26 straight victories—and along that route they have beaten some boys just as big as Maryland.

Admit Underdog Role

Spokesmen for the tiny Newark, Del., club freely admit the Blue Hens will be underdogs in the College Park tussle Friday night, explaining that the Maryland eleven is probably the toughest the Hens have faced since starting their streak in 1940.

But Coach Bill Murray, a stingy fellow with a syllable, sticks to his favorite expression—"We take 'em all as they come." And there's no despair in the lanky mentor's voice.

Two All-Star Linemen

Leading the Hens' old-fashioned and unorthodox, but highly deceptive, double wing offense are two linemen who earned honorable mention on the Little All-America team last year—Guard Walt Marusa and Center Jack Messick.

Spotted through the lineup are Halfback Bill Cole, who ran 56-yards for a touchdown against Penn Military last week; Fullback Joe Caody, who boasts a kicking average of over 40 yards; and Quarterback Jim Buchanan, a stellar field general who has capably replaced the injured Fred Sposato so far.

Troha to Miss Friday's Game

College Park, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—Johnny Troha, Maryland's second-string right end whose play in last week's game against South Carolina drew praise, suffered a shoulder separation in scrimmage today and will not be able to play against Delaware Friday night, Coach Jim Tatum announced.

Quarterback Joe Tucker suffered a mild concussion Saturday; Vic Turyn, who shares the signal calling duties with Tucker, has a pulled side muscle; Lou Gambino, halfback who made all of Maryland's touchdowns in its 19-13 win over South Carolina, hurt his leg in that game; reserve back Sammy Behr is nursing an infected foot, and Halfback Jim Larue has been out of action with a shoulder separation three weeks.

Mr. Pace Paces Press Tourney

Frank Pace, former assistant to Postmaster General Robert Hannegan, won the National Press Club's golf tournament yesterday with a 77 at Woodmont Country Club. Trailing Pace were Sam O'Neal with 78 and M. W. Fillus with 79.

Low net honors went to Carl Butman, who scored 103—33—70. Behind Butman were John McClure with 81—9—72, Robert Fleming with 82—9—73, Leo Freudberg with 92—19—73 and R. S. Cramer with 92—19—73.

3 Dixie Teams Seek Revenge This Saturday

Richmond, Va., Sept. 30 (AP).—Saturday might rightfully be dubbed revenge day in the Southern Conference.

For Saturday, three of the day's four Conference clashes will find three teams out to gain revenge for the pretty fair lacings their respective opponents handed them a campaign ago.

The Citadel's Bulldogs probably have the biggest bit of revenging to do. In 1946, the charges of Coach Quinn Decker bowed to William and Mary's Indians, 51-12, and Saturday they invade Williamsburg, Va., to try to get even.

The Citadel, victor last week over Presbyterian, undoubtedly plans to fill the air lanes with passes, and that's exactly what William and Mary Coach R. N. (Rube) McCray is expecting. Yesterday, the Indians went through a long drill on pass defense, McCray figuring that the Citadel knows it won't be able to go through the Tribe's forward wall nad will be out to try to pass over it.

Clemson's Tigers hops to claw back at Wake Forest's Deacons for the 19-7 beating they suffered last season. This time the game will be played at Clemson.

Wake Forest's coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker isn't taking the tilt with Clemson lightly and indicated as much yesterday when he announced the Deacons would seek an added spark to their offensive in this week's practice sessions. The Peahead wasn't satisfied with the way the team's offensive bogged down within scoring range last week in the squad's 6-0 triumph over Georgetown.

State Ace Hurt

Davidson, beaten last week by William and Mary, has its eye set on evening things with North Carolina State, which a campaign back walloped the Wildcats, 25-0.

Coach Beattie Feathers of N. C. State reported the team's No. 1 blocking back, Bob Bowlby, would miss the Davidson contest because of a shoulder separation. That Feathers looks for plenty of passing from Davidson was shown through the fact that the Wolfpack spent much of yesterday drilling on aerial defense. The teams meet at Charlotte, N. C.

The other Southern Conference fray between Virginia Military Institute and George Washington at Lynchburg, Va., will find the two elevens facing each other on the gridiron for the first time in 25 years.

Two of the league's top teams—North Carolina an dDuke—will be playing away from home. North Carolina goes all the way to Texas to battle th eTexas Longhorns at Austin. Duke invades Tennessee.

Pimlico's Bid For Harness O. K. Hits Snag

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—A Racing Commission hearing on an application to conduct harness racing on the site of the present Pimlico airport in Baltimore County was adjourned suddenly today after opposition interests contended it would be illegal to use the airport for other purposes.

The hearing was one of three for harness track applications held by the commission today. Hearings on for other applications had been held previously and three more are scheduled.

The application for a track on the site of the Pimlico airport was filed by Baltimore Trotting Races, Inc.

Stuart S. Janney, jr., chairman of the commission, ordered the hearing adjourned pending an opinion on the case from the attorney general's office.

The commission said it will decide which applications to approve after all 10 of the groups applying for permits have been heard. Three more applications are to be heard October 7.

Two trotting tracks were proposed for the Fort Meade Junction area between Baltimore and Washington at today's hearing.

Howard Raceway, Inc., sought permission to build a track just south of the Fort Meade Junction State road and one mile east of the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard, in Howard County.

Severn Trotting Association, Inc., proposed to construct a track in Anne Arundel County on the other side of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks near the Howard County line. C. Ferdinand Sybert, Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates, presented the application.

Laurel Opens Today With Field of Ten in Capital Handicap

DEAR FOLKS:

At Laurel

Perhaps its just a coincidence, but the closest betting window to the pressbox is the $50 win seller. Looks like the scribes will have to do some hiking before they bet. Jockey Reds Howell, who has been riding with success in New Jersey has signed to ride for the Bomar Stable here. Don Padgett, who led the riders in 1946, and J. Bowes Bond, who topped the trainers, are on hand for the opening. Alfred G. Vanderbilt will ship in his Final Touch for the $10,000 Maryland Futurity. Swamp fever or no swamp fever there is a stall shortage here and many horses are being kept at Bowie. Scratch time is 8 a. m. and not a half hour later as first announced. The lower press box once the only one at the track, has been taken over by Dave Woods and his publicity staff. Exactly 118 horses entered for the first day's program were excluded from the overnight sheet, showing there is an ample number of platers around. Washington fans will park easier if they use the entrance just north of the town of Laurel. The bridge at the other entrance is still a bottleneck. See you on the rail.—Bill

$10,000 Test Magnet for Sprint Aces

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

The new owners of the Laurel race track—the Maryland Jockey Club—will pause long enough in their earnest effort to improve the plant to allow the thirty-seventh turf season to open there this afternoon. For the next month—25 racing days in all—Laurel will offer a stake-studded program.

The big-money horses get off today in the $10,000 added Capital Handicap, traditional opening day feature at the Baltimore boulevard oval.

Despite the swamp fever situation that has curtailed interstate shipment of thoroughbreds, Racing Secretary Charles McLennan has gathered a respectable field for the handicap with the most notable absentee, Elmendorf Farm's Polynesian, track locked in New York by the Jockey Club rule that bans the return of horses which leave that State.

Former Winners Vie

Chief interest in the famous six-furlong test, won in its inaugural running by Billy Kelly in 1919, will center around two fleet horses which have won the race—the Shamrock Stable's Air Patrol (1947) and the Pentagon Stable's The Doge (1946). Both horses have shown a distinct liking for the Laurel track and are co-favorites in the overnight line. Air Patrol, owned by Art Rooney of pro football circles, has a running mate in Little Harp.

The Doge is asked to carry top weight of 123 pounds to 121 for Air Patrol. Incidently, Little Harp, at 104 pounds, is the lightweight of the party of ten. Christiana Stables' Sea Snack is likely to draw a steady play and carries 116 pounds.

The record for the race is 1.11 shared by Rough Time (1937) and New Moon (1945).

Plenty Of Cheap Horses

While the Capital, as well as the $3500 Quatre Bras, a test of a mile and 70 yards and the secondary feature, loom as classy events despite the swamp fever threat, the remainder of the card reflects "hard times". Five of the events number entries from Maryland's minor tracks. However, there is no shortage of this brand of talent, each of the fields drawing an overflow of entries.

Laurel customers, as usual the majority from Washington, won't find any drastic changes in their favorite track. There has been a tidying up here and there but most of the heavy-money improvements have been in the stable and parking areas.

President Henry A. Parr, 3rd watched the heavy machinery being moved out temporarily yesterday and said, "When materials permit, we are going to do a lot of things including the building of a new clubhouse, etc. So far, we have been able to do little more than scratch the surface."

As far as actual racing is concerned, the track is in better condition than ever before. The Telemer has been installed to automatically flash the times at the various poles and finish. Another Laurel innovation is the Movie Patrol in vogue at Pimlico for the past couple of seasons. This setup is the last word in providing stewards, judges, starters and other officials with undeniable evidence of what transpires in any race in a matter of minutes.

Laurel Keeps Fans Posted on Series

Inning-by-inning scores of the World Series games, as well as important developments in the fall classic, will be announced over the public address system at Laurel, President Henry A. Parr 3d said yesterday.

73,365 Fans See Yankees Win World Series Opener, 5 to 3

Robinsin Shines Despite Bums' Loss

Yankees with evident relish by their fancy stuff on the bases, particularly Robinson.

Robinson, the first Negro player ever to appear in a World Series, made possible the first run of the series after Shea walked him with one out in the opening inning.

With contempt for Shea's efforts to hold him on the bag, he stole second base, drawing a low throw from Catcher Yogi Berra. And it was Robinson's presence on second that made the Dodgers' run possible.

Robinson Puts on a Show

Pete Reiser was no immediate held with a grounder into the pitcher's box. But Robinson, trapped between second and third by Shea, skedaddled between the bases so smartly before he was tagg out, that Reiser made it all the way to second.

Dixie Walker got Reiser home with a fuzzy single into short left field that Johnny Lindell couldn't reach.

In the third inning, Robinson put on an individual show for the customers, to the distress of the Yankees. He walked with two out, and challenging Shea with his long leads off first base, he drew four throws to that bag from the pitcher.

And then, in a fifth attempt to pick Robinson off, the ball slipped out of Shea's hand and fell to the pitching mound. It was ruled a balk, and Robinson trotted to second. Reiser flied ot Henrich to end the inning.

Johnson Saves Yankees

The Dodgers made motions to score at least one more run off Shea in the fourth when Walker led off with his second hit, a smash off George McQuinn's glove. Gene Hermanski lashed a fierce drive toward left field, but the Yankees were in luck. Third Baseman Bill Johnson speared it, and Walker was easily doubled off first.

Harris' strategy of removing Shea was looking bad in the sixth inning when the Dodgers, struggling to get back in the ball game, made it rough on Lefthander Page. Eddie Stanky greeted Page with a single through the box, and only a superb stop by Phil Rizzuto turned Robinson's smash into a force play at second.

The Dodgers weren't through, though. Pete Reiser grounded to First Baseman McQuinn and was safe on first with a tricky slide that carried him out of the reach of the Yankee first sacker who attempted to tag him on the base lines.

McQuinn, the Yankee infield and Manager Harris protested violently to Umpire Babe Pinelli that Reiser had run outside to avoid being tagged, but it was no dice.

Gurillo Scores Robinson

With men now on first and second, Dixie Walker flied out but Manager Burt Shotton moved Carl Furillo in as a pinchhitter for Gene Hermanski and he larruped a single to center to score Robinson from second. Page got the side out on Edwards', grounder to Rizzuto.

In the seventh, the Dodgers cut the Yanks' lead to 5-3 on only one hit Reese's single to right. Reese stole second as Pitch Hitter Eddie Miksis fanned for the second out, and then the Dodgers gotta gift run. Page unloosed a wild pitch into the dirt and Reese scored all the way from second before Berra could retrieve the ball.

That was all the Dodgers ever did get through. They made the most hits and they stole the only two bases that were stolen, but they were licked by that Yankee big inning, an old sad story of World Series challengers of the Yanks.

Peiping, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Chinese Communists struck a major blow in the battle for Manchuria today, razing five railway stations, north of the great wall and cutting off all except air supplies from China proper, a government spokesman said.

Gen. Hsu ChiMing, chief-of-staff of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Peiping office, said: "The expected Communist offensive has started. There will be bloody battles along the Peiping-Mukden railway."

Unofficial sources said Nationalist troops were being rushed to Linyu (Shanhaikwan), where the great wall meets the Gulf of Chihli. A major battle for the city was looming, a dispatch to the newspaper Ta Kung-Pao reported.

First War Dead From Pacific Leave Honolulu

Honolulu, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Honda Knot, her somber gray brightened by six brilliant wreaths of flowers, moved slowly today out of Pearl Harbor with the bodies of 2292 American war dead bound for the mainland.

The wreaths were tokens of farewell from the people of Hawaii and five service branches, the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Coast Guard.

Navy planes circled and dropped wreaths in the water in memory of the dead whose bodies never will be recovered.

Included in the Honda Knot's holds were some of the first Americans to lose their lives—585 bodies of men who died in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

The bodies were the first of tens of thousands to be returned from the Pacific.

School Students Stage Riot After Football Game

La. Crosse, Wis., Sept. 30 (AP).—For two hours last night, policemen and firemen battled high school students in what was described by Chief of Police Herman Rick as "the worst riot in the history of the city."

The melee, in the heart of the business district, followed a football game between La Crosse Central High School and La Crosse Aquinas, a Catholic high school.

Chief Rick said groups from both schools took part. He said the youths rolled barrels of rubbish from alleys and set fire to them, hurled rocks at Polic esquad cars, smashed a $250 plate glass window, damaged parked automobiles, and finally released tear gas bombs.

The Washington Post

Our first request for an increase in Washington telephone rates since 1920

Higher costs the reason. $3,700,000 in general wage increases in past two years.

We have filed an application with the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia for an increase in telephone rates—our first request in 27 years. This is an important step and we would like every customer to know the reasons for it.

Present Rates Not Enough for 1947 Costs

For a long time the cost of almost everything that goes to make good telephone service has been going up, up, up. True, we have been doing a big volume of business, so our revenues have gone up, too.

But our expenses have risen much faster than our revenues. Since 1939, for example, our revenues have gone up 142%, but our cost of doing business has jumped 198%.

Wages Are the Biggest Item in the Cost of Telephone Service

By far the biggest item in the cost of providing telephone service—bigger than all other costs put together—is wages. Because of current wage levels and the size of the force required to furnish you with good telephone service 24 hours a day, wages now amount to more than 70% of all telephone operating expenses.

Our total payroll is now running about $13,000,000 a year more than in 1939. In the past two years, general wage increases have added about $3,700,000 to payroll expense.

Proper Rates Essential to Good Service

The people of Washington need and demand good telephone service. To provide good service requires good people at good wages. We must also expand the telephone system to keep pace with the demands for service.

$70,000,000 Program to Improve and Expand Telephone Service

We are planning to spend $70,000,000 in this city for new buildings and equipment in the next few years. Over $14,000,000 has been invested under this program in the last twelve months.

This money, which will mean more and better service for everyone who uses the telephone, must come, as it always has, from the hundreds of thousands of men and women who are willing to invest their savings in the telephone business. They will not invest in the business unless it remains financially strong.

A Modest Request

To meet these increased expenses we are not asking for a penny more in new rates than we need now. The increase we are now requesting will make up only a little more than 50% of the large increase in wages that has taken place in the past two years alone.

PROPOSED RATES IN GENERAL LESS THAN 1920 RATES

Since 1920, there have been rate reductions resulting in annual savings to our present customers of five times the amount of the modest increase now requested. The higher rates proposed will still be lower, for the most part, than the rates in effect 27 years ago.

One Policy—Yesterday—Today—Tomorrow

It is a long-established policy of our company to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost to the public.

Rising costs now force us to ask for an increase in telephone rates—in order to maintain the kind of service the people of Washington have every right to expect.

Frederick Fair Opening Aided By Fine Day

Frederick, Md., Sept. 30 (Spl.).—Ideal early autumn weather marked the opening of the 85th annual Frederick Fair this afternoon. A crowd estimated at 5000 by-fair officials witnessed judging of the dairy cattle and swine classes and patronized the various midway carnival attractions. Grandstand patrons were treated to a program of harness and running races in addition to free vaudeville performances on the infield stage.

Exhibition space was at a premium especially in the livestock and household departments. An unusual exhibit in the Art Department this year shows replicas of different types of fire engines.

Conspicuously absent for the first time in history is the farm machinery exhibit. Machinery dealers of Frederick and nearby counties recently voted to boycott the fair when a charge was made for space.

The exhibition will continue through Friday with shows nightly. Tomorrow will be Governor's Day when Gov. and Mrs. William Preston Lane, jr., will be guests of the agricultural society.

4-H Club Winners Named

Judges completed prize selections in the 4-H Club Holstein and Ayreshire dairy cattle classes and in all swine, colt and baby beef classes today. Guernsey entries will be judged tomorrow.

Jack Remsberg, Middletown, showed the champion 4-H Holstein and David Ifert, also of Middletown, was selected as the champion Holstein showman. Davie Lee West of near Frederick, exhibited the champion Ayreshire and also was named the champion showman for that breed.

Peter Wight, Urbana, showed the champion beef steer. David Burtner, Frederick, was chosen the champion swine showman, and John Hoffman, Walkersville, was champion in the colt show ring.

Household Winners

Among the prize winners in the household department of the fair today were: Best house dress, Miss Exie Baker, $2; best homemade blouse, Mrs. Chester Shaw, $2; Patchwork quilt, Mrs. Theodore Reeder, $2; oldest quilt, Mrs. Hester Richardson, $2; crocheted luncheon sets, Mrs. Stephen Langley, $2; needle point, Mrs. John Hann, $2; best specimen of hand sewing, Miss Barbara Thomas, $2.

Awards in the art department included: Oil painting of head or figure, Joseph Urner, $3; landscape, Mrs. Alvie Etzler, $1.25; marine, Mrs. Florence Eichelberger, $1; water color head of figure, Mary Eby, $3; landscape, Ruth Gale, $1.25; marine, Mary Fogle, $1; original poster design, Frances Keller, $1; original costume design, Darrell Phebus, $1.

Communism Is Debasing, O'Conor Says

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—Declaring that "the Communist threat" would "enslave all who come within its reach," Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) today said communism has "debased the millions" in the Soviet sphere of influence.

O'Conor addressed the 30th annual convention of the Service Star Legion, composed of women relatives of war veterans. About 350 delegates from 132 chapters throughout the country are attending the six-day convention, which will end Saturday with a visit to the National Cemetery in Arlington, Va.

"We are warned seriously," O'Conor said, "that the Communistic forces, sponsored and financed by the undemocratic Soviets, are threatening the destruction, throughout Europe and eventually throughout the world, of all that is decent and noble in government."

"Here in our own country we face a rising spiral of prices that threatens, if unchecked, to destroy the very fabric of the American system of free enterprise. Such calamity, if it should come to America, would thrust the whole world into such distress and despair as history possibly has never recorded.

"America must do its part to keep starvation and misery from engulfing the world. At the same time, aid to the suffering of other lands cannot be permitted to endanger seriously our own fabric of living," O'Conor declared.

Frederick Police Hearing Continued Until October 21

Frederick, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—After testimony by 11 of 21 witnesses in the case of Lt. Reno M. Six, charged with dereliction of duty, the local police board announced shortly before midnight last night it would continue its closed hearing Oct. 21.

The five-man board heard testimony for four hours on the charges, brought by Sgt. Daniel M. Swomley, a veteran of 13 years on the force.

Charges against Lt. Frank K. Dorsey of "conduct unbecoming an officer" also were given a closed hearing. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Abrecht, Dorsey's neighbors, who brought the charges, testified about 40 minutes. The board said it would announce its decision within the next few days.

The board last week cleared Police Chief Frederick M. Straley of dereliction of duty charges brought by Swomley. After a series of hearings, the board declared there was insufficient evidence to uphold the charges.

Fire Prevention Measures Urged For Md. Farmers

Maryland farmers were urged yesterday by Albert V. Krewatch, extension agricultural engineer of the University of Maryland, to make a constant check of properties "not only during National Fire Prevention Week, October 5-11, but at all times throughout the year."

Pointing out that about 90 per cent of all farm fires are preventable, Krewatch declared that too many farmers have failed to realize the importance of maintaining a "constant and vigilent" check on all possible fire hazards. He suggested use of a check-sheet for farm homes and other buildings, copies of which can be obtained from the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the university.

Fire prevention measures suggested by Krewatch include regular cleaning of flues; frequent inspection of stove and furnace pipes; installation of electric wiring in accordance with approved standards; careful storage of inflamable materials; careful maintenance of permanent electrical appliances and proper grounding of lightning rods; thorough curing of hay prior to storage; enforcement of nonsmoking regulations in barns and other buildings and cooperation with neighbors and fire department officials in the organization of an efficient fire-fighting group.

2 American Held 3 Hours by Russians

Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP).—Russian soldiers led by a major arrested a lieutenant colonel of the U. S. Army and a civilian employe of the Military Government in the Russian sector of Berlin today and held them for three hours before releasing them without any explanation or apology.

Lieut. Col. John P. MacNeill of Oakland, Calif., chief of the German court section of the U. S. Military Government for Berlin, and the chief prosecutor for the Berlin military government courts, Fred A. Tappan, jr., of Atlanta, Ga., were the Americans involved.

WBAL License Hearing Postponed

By The Associated Press

The Communications Commission yesterday postponed a hearing on renewal of the license of Radio Station WBAL, Baltimore, and on an application of Public Service Radio Corp. for operation of a station on WBAL's power and frequency.

The cases had been consolidated for hearing next Monday. The commission said WBAL asked additional time for preparation of its case. The commission said the hearing now probably will begin sometime in November.

The commission said stockholders of Public Service Corp. include Drew Pearson, columnist, and Robert Allen, newspaperman.

Father, Son Held

Baltimore, Sept. 30 (AP).—A father and son were held in $2500 bail each today on charges of assaulting and robbing a merchant seaman earlier in the day.

The defendants—William A. Nichols, 38, and William W. Nichols, 17—were taken into custody shortly after John M. Francis, the seaman, reported two men offered to drive him to his ship but instead drove him to the city line and, at knife point, robbed him of $4.

During the ride, it was testified in Northeastern Police Court before Magistrate August Koslovsky, the automobile was stopped by two policemen, who cautioned the driver about his speed. Francis made no outcry and the car was permitted to proceed.

The men were traced by the license number the traffic policemen had jotted down. Koslovsky ordered the father and son held for grand jury action.

British Cruiser Sheffield Arrives for Annapolis Visit

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—HMS Sheffield, carrying the British commander of the America and West Indies station, anchored here today for a six-day courtesy visit to the Naval Academy.

The vessel's arrival was the occasion for a round of salutes—21 guns exchanged between the cruiser and the Annapolis naval station. Then followed 15 guns from the station for the chief guest, Vice Admiral Sir William Tennant, knighted for war service. Another 15-gun salute came from the Sheffield from Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., Naval Academy superintendent.

When a boarding party from the academy came alongside the cruiser fired still another salute, this time for Harold Braham, British consul at Baltimore. In the party were Braham, Capt. C. L. G. Evans, attache for air at the British Embassy in Washington; Capt. Wallace F. Petersen, Annapolis station commanders, Commadores Donald I. Thomas, his executive officer, Byron L. Gurnette, flag lieutenant to Admiral Holloway, C. R. Burke, academy public relations officer, and Lieut. Marie B. Kelleher, his assistant.

The Sheffield, which won more World War II battle honors than any other cruiser of her class, will remain here until next Monday. During her stay, there will be a round of entertainment at the academy and aboard the ship.

On the program tomorrow is an official visit of Admiral Holloway to the Sheffield.

Painting Ladies

Alice Atcheson, Irina Wiley Join In Gala Show

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WASHINGTON'S two paintingest ladies are joining forces, exhibiting their chef d'oeuvre at New York's fashionable Wildenstein Galleries, with a gala opening October 8. They're Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the former Under Secretary of State, and Mrs. John Wiley, whose husband is our Ambassador to Portugal.

Alice Acheson has exhibited her paintings a number of times and last spring had a most successful showing at the United Nations Club. Mrs. Wiley, who's Polish born, had her own studio, turned out excellent portraits during the years the Wileys lived here.

John was sent to Colombia as Ambassador two years ago, was transferred to Lisbon last spring. Irina's paintings include a few executed in Portugal this past summer, a number done in Bogota.

Eskimo's "Big Boy"

GENERAL CARL SPAATZ tells a lovely story about Professor Bruce Hopper who has doubled as public relations man and compiler of the Air Force history. Professor Hopper, who's tall, handsome and immensely dignified, accompanied the General on a recent trip to Alaska. At an Arctic airport, a crowd of Eskimos met the General's plane.

As Spaatz and Hopper left the cabin, a plump Eskimo lady, fur parka and all, darted from the sidelines, flung her arms around the professor. Astonished, he disentangled her, said stiffly there must be some mistake. "Oh, no!" she gurgled gaily, "you suit me, fine big boy!"

Professor Hopper is returning to Harvard this fall. He'll certainly have amusing anecdotes galore for his history students!

Sonny Whitneys Return

FASHIONABLE New Yorkers are trickling back into Washington almost every day. Newest addition to the Little Cabinet is Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney who has been appointed Assistant in the Department of Air by his pal and former Long Island neighbor, Stuart Symington. Sonny had a wartime job on the aviation board, liked it so much he has been pulling wires to get back to Washington. He's well equipped for his job since he was one of Pan American Airways' original backers, and has always maintained keen interest in aviation. Sonny's backed by all sorts of new projects including technicolor films, but lately he has been devoting his energies to his racing stable and to real farming.

With Sonny's arrival there'll be a bit of domestic and protocol confusion in official circles. His first wife is now married to Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman and their two almost grown children live most of the time with Marie Harriman. Sonny's second wife was the temperamental, auburn haired "Gee" Hopkins, who's now the wife of Josiah Marvel, jr., our Ambassador to Denmark. The present Mrs. Whitney hails from Mansfield, Ohio, where she started a musical career singing in the choir. She's dark, pretty and, when the Whitneys lived on R street, made a nicely unpretentious hostess.

Coon Dogs For Fun

WITH THE WORLD full of misery it's nice to hear of something that sounds like fun. The Phillips Clarkes, who live out Hyattsville way, have bought themselves a nice pack of coon hounds. There are half a dozen sharp-nosed pooches in all. Come the really cold weather the Clarkes are planning a series of coon hunts and asking out their hardier friends for an evening of sport. It's a way, too, of getting round the high cost of meat situation and coon stew sounds delicious.

A three-decker "Dagwood" sandwich will give the youngster an exciting surprise when he opens his lunch box. With meat and cheese in the sandwich, carrot curls for a vegetable, milk, fruit, and cakes for dessert, he has a meal as well balanced as one served at home.

Milk is one of the most important items on any school lunch menu. If it's not available at school, provide your child with a thermos of milk "as is," chocolate milk, or cream soup.

Candy Competition

School Lunch Must Tempt Eager, Young Appetites

By Lucia Brown

WHEN you were a kid and carried your lunch to school, did you ever find you couldn't wait until you got there to sample a fragrant ham sandwich or a tempting mellow pear?

That kind of preschool nibbling isn't desirable, of course. (After all, what's a breakfast for?) But lunches that waken such an eager appetite are, says Miss Dorothy Bovee, Red Cross nutritionist. At the same time, they should be planned to give the youngster one-third of his vital food needs for the day.

Well-balanced school lunches are a particular interest with Miss Bovee, who directs the nutrition services of the District of Columbia chapter of the Red Cross. They have to be tempting these days, she says, to keep kids from making a habit of lunching on a candy bar and a bottle of pop.

'Hidden Hunger'

This winter, only 20 per cent of the school children in this country will have "Grade A" hot lunches available to them at school each noon. Some others will be able to go home for lunch, but the rest will have only paper bag or box lunches. It's these that are most in danger of suffering from "hidden hunger"—hunger that comes from not getting a proper variety of food, hunger that makes them slow in learning, more susceptible to colds, to tooth decay, and other ills.

Lunches carried from home should be meals, not snacks, she points out. There's a pattern for them that goes like this:

One main dish to stick to the ribs; 1 vegetable; 1 fruit; dark or enriched white bread; grade A milk in some form, and a dessert.

How to get all this in one small lunch box or bag? Here are a few suggestions from the nutritionist:

The main dish can be soup or stew, carried in a thermos bottle or purchase at or near the school if available. Or it can be a sandwich made of meat, cheese, eggs, fish, dried beans, or peanuts.

The vegetables can be raw carrots, tomatoes, lettuce, shredded cabbage, turnip strips, watercress, cucumbers, or cauliflower buds. Even if these are to be used in a sandwich at lunchtime, it's better to pack them separately in wax paper, and add them just before eating. They'll stay much fresher and more appetizing. Tomato juice, carried in a thermos, will also provide a vegetable for the meal.

The fruit can be almost any fresh variety. Or it can be dried prunes or apricots, carried in a small screw-top jar or wax cup, or used in sandwich making. Or it can be fruit juice to drink with the meal.

The dark bread can be cracked whole wheat, rye, pumpernickel, Boston brown, or date nut bread. Use various kinds to give variety.

Milk can be included "as is" or in the form of chocolate milk or cream soup. The dessert can be fruit, cookies, gingerbread, salted nuts, or a sweet sandwich.

Do's and Don'ts

Miss Bovee has a few do's and don'ts for making this business of packing a lunch easier for you and more interesting for the children.

Keep a special place in the kitchen as "lunch box corner" for supplies, she suggests. Have good tools and supplies and work like an expert.

Use a lunch box with thermos if possible. If lunch has to go in a paper bag, give the younster a little money to buy one hot dish (if available) at or near the school. A hot dish aids digestion and makes the whole lunch taste better.

Don't use luncheon meats so often that the children tire of them. Remember, though, that liver sausage is the best of them nutritionally.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Young Mother Is Worried Because Husband Abusively Insists Upon Giving Whiskey to Son, 9, Now Convalescing From Pneumonia.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young mother, 27, with two dear little boys aged 7 and 9 respectively. The older boy just recently recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia which left him weak and tired. Often he is quite listless by the end of the day.

Now my husband is giving the boy three doses of whiskey daily. Our doctor has prescribed certain vitamins for him, which he has been taking only a short time; not long enough yet to make a big difference. But I don't think he needs alcohol in order to be built up and I am very upset about this.

The other day when I objected to the whiskey dosing, my husband struck me and told me I was interfering. When I threatened to leave him, he in turn threatened to make life miserable for me and said he would put the boys in a school where they would get proper care. I am always home and since the boy's illness I am always fixing special dishes so that he will eat well.

Isn't Alcohol Bad Medicine?

AM I WRONG in saying that alcohol in any form is bad for the boys? My husband thinks that if whiskey gives him a lift, it ought to be good for the boys too. I am not a teetotaler, but I am convinced that children shouldn't be subjected to liquor.

Would I be justified in taking the boys out of his way if he persists in giving them liquor? He is giving the younger boy two tablespoonsful of whiskey, daily, too, and everytime I protest he hits me. Everyone says I should do something; and knowing how helpful you are, I am writing to you. Please advise immediately.

B. E.

Whiskey Always Lowers Resistance

DEAR B. E.: Whiskey isn't a tonic. It doesn't build health. Rather, it lowers bodily resistance to disease.

This information comes to me from two sources. Firstly, from a physician. Secondly, from a foundation which functions to educate the public against misuse of alcohol.

Speaking of your husband's dosing, the doctor says bluntly: "Certainly it's wrong. It's doing the boy more harm than good. Alcohol always lowers resistance; and for that very reason, doctors sometimes use it in testing the degree of recovery in certain types of cases. If latent infection still lingers, it tends to flare up after the patient is dosed with whiskey or beer."

Also he warns that your husband's malpractice of giving the boy whiskey every day is liable to "create a habit he'll never get over." In conclusion he bruskly says. "The boy's chances of full recovery depend on home care as prescribed by a good pediatrician."

The foundation furnishes a statement from Dr. Haven Emerson in much the same vein. Dr. Emerson, a man of international scientific standing, former president of the New York City Board of Health and a noted authority on the physiological effects of alcohol, wrote as follows in 1945:

A Depressant, Not a Tonic

"ALCOHOL may be used medicinally as a depressant to the central nervous system, as a sedative and as an anesthetic. There are other medical agents (however) which have largely replaced alcohol for each of these purposes: drugs that lack the toxic effects of alcohol and are less likely to develop addiction.

"Alcohol is not a stimulant to be relied upon to improve the circulation, respiration or digestion. It is not an indispensable drug and it's use has been steadily diminishing in the general hospitals of the country as other and more effective drugs have been discovered."

Weighing your husband's performance in the light of these pronouncements, he must be adjudged an unfit father, whose ignorance, obstinacy and brutality are a menace to the physical and moral welfare of his sons,—also a critical drain on your capacity to care for them properly while under his thumb.

For the sake of all, I wish he'd take this article to heart, admit his error and come down off his high horse. But if he won't, legal steps are in order to protect the children from his mistreatment and bad example.

Follow Ida Jean Kain's 10-Day Slimming Schedule

New Rounded Look Achieved by Curves And Exercises for Smoothing the Hipline

By Ida Jean Kain

THE most revolutionary fashion change is the rounded-hip contour, with curves replacing ultra-streamlines. That's a woman's natural figure. Good, good, good . . . the gals with big hips are shouting joyously . . . at last, fashion favors hips.

Don't jump to conclusions, girls. Hips are rounded, yes, but there's a difference between pulchritude, and shall we say . . . bulkritude. Actually the new rounded contours call for callipygian curves. And hips that measure a shade more than 12 inches larger than the waist will not be improved with padding.

And on the subject of padding, I'll bet a hoopskirt that women generally will accept only a modified form of that Paris-inspired style. It's my guess the designers will come a-cropper if they persist, for little if any padding will go on Mrs. America's hips!

For Problem Hips

If your hips are nicely curved and your weight within reason, you're all set . . . skip the calisthenics . . . hips no longer need to be ultra-slim. But the problem of smoothing off boxy hips, bulky hips or reducing big hips is still with us . . . perhaps more than ever since fashions focus there.

Rolling is smooth exercise, and easy . . .

Position: Lie on back on floor, knees bent, feet off floor. Holding knees in this position, roll across hips and on over to the thighline, touching thigh to floor, then roll slowly back across hips and bring the other thighline firmly down to floor, and so on, rolling bulges into rounded contours. Keep stomach muscles pulled up snugly as you roll to tone middle muscles, too.

Or, try a straight roll . . . lie on back on floor, legs straight down, then roll across hips to one thighline, and in slow motion, roll back to opposite thighline, from 12 to 25 counts.

Try Kicks, Too

Position: Stand erect, hands on hips, feet slightly apart. The exercise is to swing right leg back and up, keeping knee straight. Keep toes pointed; swing as far back as possible but without bending upper part of body forward. Repeat six times, then kick with left leg. Later increase the number of times.

A side-kick is also slimming. From same position, raise right knee to side, toes pointed down, then follow through by extending lower leg out, with knee straight. Bend knee again, then return foot to floor. Repeat with left leg. Do this exercise slowly and accurately, repeating 12 counts.

However, if excess weight is your problem, you'll need to curb calories, too. The new waist-whittling diet is needed, for these menus also reduce hips!

New York Dress Institute.

The "New Look" in fashions, illustrated by the career girl's suit above, cannot be achieved by the woman who ignores those excess inches around the hipline. Only a slim, molded waistline and nicely curved hips have a place in today's style picture.

Ancient History

The wedding ring, among the early Teuton tribes, was a sign that the bride had been sold by her father or guardian to the bridegroom.

Fish Salads Are Good for Lunch

Fish salads are an excellent luncheon suggestion. Boiled cod and haddock, packed into a tomato or green pepper cup, make an appetizing and economical salad. A salad of crabmeat, salmon, tuna or halibut, makes a tempting dish.

Your Questions On Homemaking

1. I have a recipe for the pastry for cream puffs but it turns out tough pancake-like things. What is wrong? Do you have a good recipe?

2. When frying tomatoes, what is the secret of keeping the slices together? When put on a platter, mine resemble stewed tomatoes? E. V. F.

1. There are several things that might make your cream puffs tough and flat. One is taking them from the oven too soon. They fall if not thoroughly done. At any rate, here's a good recipe for them. Perhaps you'll have better luck with it.

½ cup hot milk or hot water.

Add butter to liquid and bring to boiling point. Add sifted flour and salt. Cook and stir the batter until it leaves the sides of the pan and forms a ball. Remove it from the fire. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Be careful to beat one egg until well blended before adding the other. Place spoonsful of batter in 2-inch rounds on a greased tin, heaping them well in the center. Allow 2 inches between puffs. Bake them in a hot oven 400 degrees F. for ½ hour. Reduce the heat to 350 degrees. Bake 5 minutes longer. Test puffs by removing one from the oven. If it does not fall, it is thoroughly done. When puffs are cool, cut a gash in the side of each and fill with sweetened, flavored whipped cream or custard filling.

2. The grease should be very hot when you put tomatoes in to fry so that the flour or cornmeal in which they have been dipped will form a sort of crust immediately. This will hold the slice together. They should be fried only about two minutes, turning to brown both sides.

"Voice With Smile" Pleads for Courtesy, Tolerance

During the war, many a telephone subscriber was irritated by poor service and snippy operators. The girls were overworked, and everybody's temper was worn to a frazzle.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. For the most part, experienced girls are back on the boards, and have the situation well in hand. But the customers sometimes forget they're supposed to be gentlemen.

I've gotten many letters from operators, pleading for a bit of tolerance and courtesy. A note from Mary Lanham of Forestville, Va., is typical:

"Sometimes people go so far as to use bad language, and of course the company can remove their phones for that.

"Usually the display of temper grows out of the subscriber demanding that the operator do something which her employer has instructed her not to do.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

"Jackson Victimus," of Kensington, Md., has retained his sense of humor in spite of everything. He says:

"The other day I removed a dozen eggs from the refrigerator in a self-service grocery. Three different prices were marked on the carton.

DANGER!
BAD PUN AHEAD

Dorothy L. Erickson of 4098 Minnesota ave. ne. observes that the baking notes in our esteemed afternoon contemporary recently recommended that we:

". . . sprinkle toasted broad with a mixture of grated orange rind and sugar."

WILL DO, M. M.

"Please send the money to Children's Hospital . . . and I found this streetcar token in a coat pocket, so you can send it along." M. M.

PROGRESS REPORT

To give everybody a chance to submit a name, Dave will wait until early next week to make his choice.

He has set midnight, Sunday, October 5, as the postmark deadline for all entries. By Tuesday morning the mailman should be delivering the last of the suggestions—and then Dave will go to work.

If you haven't already submitted a name for this Durante-nosed meteorologist, send your entry to: Weatherbird, The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., Washington 4, D. C.

FORE!

Deputy United States Marshal J. T. McGhee snagged himself a hole in one on the Fairfax golf course the other day.

He was playing with fellow Deputy United States Marshal Don McCann, Russ Anderson of the Department of Agriculture and Cliff Werlla of the Federal Science Laboratory.

PERSONAL SERVICE

Edward Gursky, jr., of 3221 Connecticut ave. nw. recalls an ad which appeared for about 15 years in a small town New Jersey paper. It said:

"Pianos and players tuned. Phone Ridgewood XXXX."

Here's What to Do About Brooklyn

NEW YORK—Dr. Abe Feller, counsel to the United Nations, delivered a lecture in San Francisco. One of his listeners asked: "Do you think that the United Nations would have functioned better if there were no veto?" . . . That's like asking if the old Model-T Ford would have functioned better with atomic energy," replied Dr. Feller. "The answer in both cases is yes, but each of those would have been impossible without the other."

SPORTS DEPT.: Paula Stone, who was rooting for the Dodgers to win the pennant, tells of the first time she became conscious of the partisanship in Brooklyn. This was when her father, Fred Stone, was a vaudeville partner of Dave Montgomery and Brooklyn was a butt of their jokes. "What should be done about Brooklyn?" asked Stone . . . "The only thing you can do about Brooklyn," suggested Montgomery, "is to put a tent over it and charge everybody 25 cents to get out."

MOVIES: Henry Morgan, who went to Hollywood last week to appear in his first movie, made a preliminary trip there a few weeks ago for negotiations with several heads of studios. "Which studio wants you?" he was asked . . . "As a matter of fact, no studio really wants me," said Morgan. "It's just that each is afraid that the other studio might get me. This may not seem a lot of money for me—but it's certainly bringing me a lot of dinners."

SOCIAL NOTE: Ed Creagh, the United Press correspondent in London, attended a luncheon at the Mansion House of the Lord Mayor of London. The guests who were ascending the marble staircase were startled at seeing one of the uniformed flunkies extend his hand to Creagh in greeting. "Remember me?" asked the flunky, joyfully. "Connelly & Lennon's on 51st st. in New York? We used to meet at the bar there. I lived at the Vanderbilt house around the corner. I was Mrs. Vanderbilt's butler."

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: A veteran concert singer, who had retired more than 20 years ago, decided to make a comeback. She rented one of the large rooms at the Plaza—enough to hold 50 people—for her test performance. On the day of the concert she went to a Fifth ave. hairdresser, explained her needs and was given a unique hair-do, piled end on end. She then invited the hairdresser to the recital . . . The 50 chairs in the room were all occupied for her recital. And when it was over all the guests spoke to her. The hairdresser was last, and said: "I enjoyed it immensely. You have a grand voice." . . . "Thank you. Thank you so much," said the singer to her hairdresser. "You're the first one to say it. All the others said: 'Where'd you get that hair-do.'"

NEWS DEPARTMENT: Howard Cullman, who six weeks ago was invited by LaGuardia to be the guest speaker on his radio show this Sunday, will make the broadcast.

Robert St. John, author of "Land of the Silent People," has just completed another book on Yugoslavia. "The Silent People Speak." He set a typing record in writing it—300,000 words in three weeks . . . Nola Luxford, the newspaperwoman who ran the Anzac Club here during the war, will be decorated with the O. B. E. on Saturday . . . When Henry Wallace visited Albert Einsten last weekend, Wallace revealed that he's experimenting with radioactive nutrients on his tomatoes.
